U. S. OFFICIAL'S SECRETARY IS SLAIN BY WIFE

Hundreds See "Triangle" Killing in Downtown Jacksonville.

MOTHER OF 5 SAYS SHE "HAD TO DO IT"

Mrs. C. R. Frazier Calm as 27-Year-Old Expert Swimmer Dies.

Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 16 (A.P.).—Miss Manona Murrell, 27-year-old secretary of C. R. Frazier, Federal narcotic agent in charge of the Jacksonville office, was shot and killed on the postoffice lawn late today by Mrs. Frazier, mother of five sons. Mrs. Frazier was docketed at police headquarters on a charge of murder.

While hundreds of persons passed what is one of the city's busiest corners, Mrs. Frazier fired five shots into Miss Murrell's body as the latter left the Federal Building and started to get into her car.

"I did it to protect my home and to prevent one of my sons from killing her," Mrs. Frazier was quoted by Mrs. Cora Lee Register, policewoman, as saying.

Children on Hunting Trip.

Mrs. Frazier is 41 years old.

The policewoman quoted her as saying she "had to do it." She also said her husband had taken their three smallest children hunting yesterday and had not returned with them.

Mrs. Frazier was calm until several hours after she was placed in jail, police said, but later she telephoned to her physician for a nerve tonic and Capt. Willis Ponder said she told the doctor:

"Well, I have killed that woman."

Was Expert Swimmer.

Miss Murrell was an expert swimmer and a member of the local Red Cross Life-Saving Corps.

County Detective W. H. Gasque, who questioned Mrs. Frazier immediately after the shooting, said she told him, "I meant to kill her. I hope she is dead. She tried to break up my home. If I hadn't killed her my two oldest sons were going to tonight."

Bebe Daniels Home Guarded by Police

Star Receives New Letters From Annoyer Sent to Asylum by Lyon.

Los Angeles, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—A police guard was placed tonight around the home of Bebe Daniels, film actress, after her husband, Ben Lyon, screen player, notified county authorities two letters had been received from a man who in 1931 was sent to a State asylum for persistently annoying her.

The man, Albert Holland, was committed to the asylum in January, 1931, after Lyon had signed an insanity complaint. Holland, who asserted he had married Miss Daniels in Mexico, escaped from the institution in April, 1931.

He renewed his attempts to force his attentions on the actress in November, 1931, and was arrested and returned to the institution. Authorities said they were unable to learn whether Holland had escaped again or had been paroled. He is a former soldier. One letter received by Miss Daniels was postmarked West Los Angeles and the other was sent from Arizona.

Tokyo Fire Death Toll Is 12; Scores Injured

Tokyo (Saturday), Dec. 17 (A.P.).—Police figures on the fire yesterday in the Shirokiya department store showed today that 12 persons were killed, 48 seriously injured and about 80 slightly hurt. The death total was raised to 12 last night when two victims died in hospitals.

About 600 or 700 persons, most of them salesgirls, were trapped in upper floors of the building, and in the panic a few of them jumped and were killed. Hundreds were taken off a balcony on the fifth floor with ladders, ropes and canvas chutes. Five army airplanes assisted in the rescue work by dropping rope ladders on the roof.

Robber Binds Cashier And Escapes on Foot

Huntington, Pa., Dec. 16 (A.P.).—A robber entered the first National Bank at Mapleton Depot, near here, today, bound and gagged the cashier, J. Frank Mattern, and took about $1,600. He escaped on foot.

Weather Marks Crash; 2-Year Lowest Here

(Associated Press.)

Winter swept south of the Mason-Dixon line and snow tied up traffic in Texas last night as America shivered from Canada to the Gulf.

Weather records of 25 years standing were broken in a dozen States. Temperatures 25 degrees below the zero mark were frequent enough to be commonplace, and there were ice-covered rivers which never had been frozen over in the memory of the oldest residents.

But there was relief in sight for much of the vast zero area. Snow, accompanied by higher temperatures, fell in several States. Weather forecasters said winter's second cold wave would be en route back to its Arctic home by Saturday night.

The Nation's two largest cities received their full share of the frigidity. Chicago's temperature dropped below zero and New York's was the lowest in 50 years, at 13 above. Relief shelters were packed to capacity, and both cities had deaths from the cold.

Here are some reports culled from the Nation's weather map:

Texas—Eleven inches of snow at Amarillo; one to four inches over remainder of the State; freezing tem-

Cold Crowds Missions in Capital, With Snow Forecast Today.

The icy breath of Jack Frost, which permeated the Capital yesterday and sent the mercury down to 14 degrees, was just the lusty harbinger of snow that the weather man expects to fall this afternoon and tonight.

Though winter's chilly exhalations shoved up the collars of pedestrians and tried the patience of hundreds of motorists, whose cars were stalled because of frozen radiators, the man who says what the weather will be promises slightly warmer weather for today.

The first exposure victim of the cold spell was Ernest Van Horn, 52 years old, who was found in Desmonds court southwest. He was taken to Gallinger Hospital.

The weather sent the mercury down to 14 degrees, which was the lowest registration in the last two years. Predictions that 10 degrees would be registered last night and early today did not seem likely to be fulfilled. The reading at 10 o'clock last night was 18 degrees, with a minimum of 17 degrees forecast. Low for the day was recorded at 8 o'clock in the morning.

The cold crowded the mission houses throughout the city, and all

JOBS WILL SUFFER IN FUNDS SHORTAGE

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

Thirty employment agencies of the United States Employment Service, located at strategic points throughout the country, will be closed down at the end of this month if Congress fails to approve a $200,000 supplemental appropriation, President Hoover informed the House yesterday.

The threatened shutdown, coming at a time when unemployment estimates run upward to 10,900,000, is regarded as one of the first serious departmental repercussions from last session's sweeping appropriation cuts.

While the supplemental estimates covering the deficiency were en route to the Capitol, President William Green of the American Federation of Labor assailed House continuance of the furlough and threat of further Senate cuts as "having a most harmful effect upon the general unemployment situation."

Earlier the Senate economy committee resumed its sessions, but failed to reach agreement on anything but a minor modification of the economy act.

The employment service estimates forwarded to the House yesterday by the President were supplemented by a statement from Budget Director Roop, concurred in by Mr. Hoover. In addition to the employment office shutdowns, it disclosed, 155 employes must be discharged, and the rest put on a 45-day administrative furlough if the appropriation does not go through. Eleven employment agencies already have been closed, Col. Roop said.

John R. Alpine, supervising director of the employment service, last night said failure to approve the estimates would mean "the dismantling of what we have done." Between April, 1931, when the service was reorganized, and

2 Slain in Gun Battle After $3,418 Robbery

Cincinnati, Ohio, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—A county police officer and a bandit suspect were slain today in a gun battle following a daring $3,418 pay roll robbery, in which four men held a busy downtown office building lobby in a state of armed siege.

The dead are County Patrolman Daniel Souders, 38, father of seven children, and a man identified variously as Harold Cox and Roy Allard, 25. A second holdup suspect, Charles Murphy, 25, who gave his home as Bedford, Ky., was shot and believed fatally wounded. Murphy gave the identification of his slain companion. Two of the four robbers escaped, taking with them the pay roll money.

Kentucky Boat Blaze Brings $145,000 Loss

Spottsville, Ky., Dec. 16 (A.P.).—A packet boat, four towboats and two covered barges were destroyed by fire which started here late today. The loss was estimated by owners at $145,000.

About a dozen men on the boats when the fire started escaped. All the property was owned by the Williams Bros., of Evansville, a shipping firm composed of Capt. Edward Williams, Capt. Jeff Williams and Capt. T. A. Williams.

OFFICER'S KIN FOUND HANGING FROM DOOR

Admiral Parsons Leaves for New York; Victim Believed to Be Stepdaughter.

A woman, thought to be Mrs. Reeves Brace, stepdaughter of Rear Admiral A. L. Parsons, of the Westchester Apartments, was found last night in a New York hotel room hanging by a silk stocking from the closet door.

Admiral Parsons left at midnight last night for New York. Before he departed he said he understood it "was a case of accidental death." New York police said she had been dead about 12 hours. Her body was found after a maid made an unsuccessful attempt to enter the room.

On a table, police found a card bearing the name of her mother, Mrs. A. L. Parsons, of the Westchester Apartments, 4000 Cathedral avenue. Mrs. Brace had been living in New York, police said.

On the bureau was found an expensively framed photograph of a woman. An insignia of the type worn by officers of the air service was stuck in the frame. Beneath the picture was a sheet of paper on which was written: "This may be for the best."

A sealed note was addressed: "To the New York Police Department; this will explain everything."

Dr. Robert C. Fisher, assistant medical examiner, took charge of the note and refused to divulge its contents.

Later it was learned that pinned to the picture also was a card bearing the name of an inspector of the New York State police, whose identity authorities withheld, and that the paper on which was written "This may be for the best," also said: "This is what you told me to do."

Mrs. Brace registered at the Hotel Governor Clinton Thursday afternoon. Hotel officials said they received a telephone call from Mrs. Brace's mother in Washington last night, asking if her daughter was all right. There also were several other telephone calls from Washington for her, which she declined to answer.

When she took the room Mrs. Brace is reported to have told a maid she was tired "from a long trip" and did not wish to be disturbed until late the following day.

Petitions Seek Repeal Of Gaming in Nevada

Carson, Nev., Dec. 16 (A.P.).—Repeal of Nevada's gambling laws by the next Legislature was asked in initiative petitions bearing approximately 3,000 signatures filed with the secretary of state today.

The petitions demand the enactment of a law prohibiting all forms of gambling except pari-mutuel betting on horse races.

(Associated Press.)

An appeal was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday against the decision banning from the air the Los Angeles station over which the Rev. Robert P. Shuler broadcast.

Operation of the station, held by the Trinity Methodist Church, had been protested on the ground that it was being used for attacks on the Roman Catholic Church and for improper attacks on the administration of justice. The District of Columbia Court of Appeals sustained the Federal Radio Commission in refusing to renew the broadcasting license.

WINES KILLED AS HOUSE UNIT REPORTS BEER

DON'T WANT REPEAL TO BE JEOPARDIZED

Senate Group Decides Dry States Need Protection if Law Is Ended.

By J. BERNARD McDONNELL.

Responsible members of the House and Senate yesterday made it increasingly clear that the anti-prohibitionists have not won the victory they would have every one believe they won at the polls last November 8.

The House ways and means committee formally reported the amended Collier bill to legalize 3.2 per cent beer. But the same committee knifed the proposal that light wines—that is, wines which have been fermented naturally without artificial stimulus to their alcoholic content—also should be made legal.

The committee action turning thumbs down on light wines indoubtedly kills any prospect of remedial legislation along that line by the current lame-duck session.

The question of prohibition repeal or Volstead law modification hasn't reached the newspaper headline stage in the Senate yet, but the difficulties of the special judiciary subcommittee, headed by Senator John J. Blaine (Republican), of Wisconsin, an avowed wet, is fairly indicative of what the Senate will do.

Would Protect Dry States.

Members of the committee after several meetings agreed on incorporation of language designed to protect dry States from the iniquitous inundation which would follow repeal of the eighteenth amendment. This is in line with the Republican platform, to which Senator Joseph T. Robinson (Democrat), of Arkansas, party leader, subscribed almost as soon as the votes were counted in the last national election.

Settlement of the problem, however, was almost a minor incident in the committee, members of which agreed to meet again next Wednesday to consider other aspects and propositions.

The action of the House ways and means committee in rejecting the Lea wine bill is not, however, to be considered as a clammy defeat by unreconstructed drys. The wine bill was beaten by a vote of 14 to 9, but several who voted against the wine bill are to be listed among the wets. They voted against it because they feared the results.

Speaker Garner, incidentally, has been careful to confine to beer his remarks about the Democratic party's willingness to carry out platform pledges. Off the record many of the wets in Congress, as well as the limited number on the ways and means committee, would be just as well satisfied to see fail of enactment the beer bill, which was approved by the committee and introduced by Representative James W. Collier (Demo-

Loses Gems

Senator Lewis' Wife Left Purse With Jewels in Cab, She Thinks.

MRS. J. HAMILTON LEWIS.

Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis, wife of Senator Lewis of Illinois, last night reported the loss of her handbag, containing jewels, money and travelers' checks. She was unable to estimate the total value.

On arriving in Washington late yesterday afternoon from Chicago, she took a taxicab to her hotel. She believes she left the bag in the cab.

She said the jewels were in a green leather jewel-box in the bag, made of brown leather. They included a diamond and pearl necklace, a diamond ring, and other valuable jewels.

The checks were made out to Senator Lewis.

BOMB BLAST NIPS ARGENTINE REVOLT

Irigoyen Among 30 Leaders Arrested as State of Siege Is Planned.

Buenos Aires, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—Declaring that a seditious movement to overthrow the federal administration through a program of terror had been uncovered, the government tonight called a meeting of congress for tomorrow afternoon to declare a state of siege.

Former Presidents Marcelo T. de Alvear and Hipolito Irigoyen, and Adolfo Guemes, a prominent radical leader, were arrested on government orders.

The arrests came after 1,000 bombs, allegedly prepared for use in a nation-wide plot by extremists of the radical party, had been seized by the police. About 30 others, including former municipal police and army officials, also were arrested.

The government made public a declaration that the plan was to kill high officials and seize public buildings. The plot has been frustrated, the announcement said, and the proposed state of siege will be for a short time only, in order that means of defense may be completed.

One unofficial version of the alleged conspiracy was that it included a plan to kidnap President Augustin P. Justo.

An accidental explosion revealed the arsenal of bombs in the suburb of Flores. The male occupants of the house fled, but police found a list of 60 names, and immediately started making arrests. Among those detained are former Deputy Jose Maria Gutierrez, former Police In-

PAUL-BONCOUR TRIES TO FORM PARIS CABINET

LATEST U. S. STAND STUDIED BY CHIEFS

Herriot in Conference With President Lebrun as Crisis Continues.

Paris, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—Joseph Paul-Boncour tonight undertook the task in which Camille Chautemps failed—to give France a government likely to find the best solution to the war debt problem.

Late tonight he accompanied retiring Premier Edouard Herriot to Elysee Palace where the latest information on Washington's attitude toward the debts, cabled by Ambassador Paul Claudel, was shown to President Albert Lebrun.

It was said in official circles that the ambassador's cablegram indicated that Washington, to which was submitted the Chamber of Deputies resolution against making the December 15 debt payment, was willing to continue negotiations on the subject of the payment although the due date is passed. So far as was made known, no mention was made of the American attitude toward a general debt conference.

Decision Due Today.

After an hour's talk with M. Lebrun, M. Paul-Boncour left for home, announcing that he would talk with his friends, notably M. Chautemps, in the morning and then give the president his decision. He added that he would only begin the customary calls and consultations if he definitely decided to form a cabinet.

M. Paul-Boncour being attached to no party, commentators in the chamber lobbies thought he would have a good chance to succeed, though the negotiations might be long.

M. Herriot spent about half an hour at Elysee Palace with the president.

Chautemps Gives Up Task.

"I came as the premier and foreign minister charged with transacting current business," he said as he left. "I communicated to the president, as is my duty, a certain number of important documents and telegrams."

M. Chautemps, smart young radical leader, gave up his task of constructing a cabinet because he could not find a compromise between the former cabinet's decision to pay America and the Chamber of Deputies resolution to postpone payment pending examination of France's debt with a view to revision.

Having failed to find this compromise, which would be acceptable to Parliament and presumably agreeable to Washington and would assure be-

Suspect in Murder Here Held in Harrisburg, Pa.

Nick Alexopolus, 38, who has been the object of a Nation-wide police search since January, 1930, in connection with the murder of Christos Haralampidis, 55-year-old lunchroom proprietor, was arrested in Harrisburg, Pa., yesterday and will be brought to Washington today or tomorrow.

Haralampidis was beaten to death and robbed of several hundred dollars and a quantity of jewelry in a room over his lunchroom at 500 Ninth street northwest. Detective Sergt. J. J. Flaherty, of the homicide squad, left yesterday for Harrisburg to bring the man back here.

Pinchot Postpones Davis' Credentials

Election Certificate Will Not Be Issued Until After New Years.

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 16 (A.P.).—Gov. Pinchot will delay until after the first of the year action on issuing a certificate of election to United States Senator James J. Davis.

The elections bureau, working on the official vote of the Legislature, is not expected to complete its check on the senatorial vote before the end of the month. These certifications must be issued before January 2.

Gov. Pinchot said recently he would issue a certificate to Davis, but would attach a letter noting his doubts as to Davis' qualifications. Davis' retrial for alleged violation of Federal lottery laws is slated for January 9 in New York City.

Druggist's Punch Thwarts Holdup in Crowded Store

"I'm Sorry. I Had to Do It. I Was Hungry," Explains Prisoner After Empty Gun Is Knocked From His Hands by Proprietor.

A lone gunman last night attempted to hold up a crowded drug store at Fourth street and Rhode Island avenue northeast, only to be overpowered by the proprietor, knocked unconscious and finally arrested.

Shortly after 10 o'clock, a well-dressed man entered the drug store of Dr. Edwin Fraase, approached the drug counter and asked for a quantity of medicine. Dr. Fraase, busy with another customer, told the man he would be waited on next. The store was crowded. Several persons sat about tables, while others lounged about the soda fountain and magazine counter.

The newcomer, apparently waiting to repeat his order to Dr. Fraase, wandered about the store, carelessly fingering objects on counters. He watched his chance, and when the doctor was free, again walked to the drug counter and asked for the medicine.

Dr. Fraase turned to fill the order. Hardly had he turned his back, when the man walked behind the counter, approached the doctor, and pressed a gun in his side.

Half raising his hands, Dr. Fraase whirled suddenly, grabbed the man's arms and knocked the gun to the floor. During the struggle which ensued, Dr. Fraase's assailant was struck in the mouth and fell unconscious to the floor.

He was soon revived and customers in the store, who until this time had remained quiet, called police.

The man told police his name is Charles Watkins, of 405 G street northwest. He was charged with investigation at the Fifth Precinct Station.

As he was taken from the store, Watkins turned to Dr. Fraase, and with outstretched hand, declared:

"I'm sorry. I had to do it. I was hungry."

In relating the holdup later, Dr. Fraase said he didn't believe Watkin's gun was loaded at the time.

"I think he was attempting to load the revolver with bullets when he stuck it in my side," the druggist said.

COURT TELLS DUKE TO PROVE CHARGES

Asks Affidavits to Support Attack Made on Letts and Rover.

Holding that charges of deliberate and willful falsification of a bill of exceptions sent up to the District Court of Appeals by Justice F. Dickinson Letts and United States Attorney Leo A. Rover and his assistant, Capt. Harold Orcutt, were "conclusions rather than statements of definite facts," the appellate court late yesterday called upon the author of the charges, Jesse C. Duke, attorney, to supply the court with "definite and succinct statement of facts, supported by affidavits" not later than December 27.

Mr. Duke, in submitting an appeal to the Court of Appeals, had charged that Justice Letts, Mr. Rover and Capt. Orcutt had deliberately and willfully sent up a bill of exceptions that was "false, inaccurate, incomplete, deleted and diluted." He also charged the trio with thus obstructing justice.

The appellate court, in a memorandum signed by all five justices, said that the bill of exceptions complained of "fully covers" the assignment of errors. The petition, the court pointed out, did not include all the exceptions taken at the trial but, "it is not argued by the appellants that any omitted exceptions were ever brought to the attention of the trial justice. We are therefore faced with a charge without supporting facts on which to base it."

The court said that this aspect of the case had been given careful consideration, and the memorandum further said that Mr. Duke would be given the necessary time after the

"Iggy" Gets Chair For Crime Career

Chicago, Dec. 16 (U.P.).—Swaggering James Varecha, 17-year-old incorrigible who admitted murdering one man, shooting six others, committing 25 robberies and attacking two girls, was sentenced today by Chicago Justice John Prystalski to die in the electric chair.

The youth who called himself "Iggy-the-Bad-One," snarled and cursed during the three-day hearing to determine his degree of guilt but wilted when Judge Prystalski pronounced the sentence and set February 17 for execution.

Two spectators with vital interest in the verdict sat in the courtroom. One was Deputy Police Commissioner John Alcock in full uniform. His niece, Lillian Henry, 19, was one of the girls Varecha attacked. The other was Mrs. Anna Varecha, shabby and tearful. She had testified that all her efforts to curb "Iggy" in their tenement home had failed. She sobbed as she hurriedly left the courtroom. Alcock wore a grim smile. He had personally directed the hunt and capture of his niece's assailant.

Senate Agent in Chicago Studying Insull Crash

(Associated Press.)

James E. Stewart, agent for the Senate banking committee, was in Chicago yesterday making a further inquiry into the Insull Utilities crash.

This disclosure indicated that the committee will give early consideration to the Insull case, and probably take it up first when it resumes its inquiry into stock market practices. Chairman Norbeck (Republican), South Dakota, said, however, that no definite time has been fixed for resumption of the inquiry. Stewart is expected back in Washington next week.

U. S. TO STUDY DEBT REVISION IF PARIS PAYS

Attitude Is Made Clear to Claudel in Talk With Stimson.

CONGRESS REACTION ON DEFAULT AWAITS

Harrison Cancels Speech in Senate Pending French Developments.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

The United States is disposed to reenter the debt negotiations with France on the preliminary condition that France pay her December 15 installment. This was the information conveyed by Secretary Stimson to Ambassador Paul Claudel yesterday.

Hopes were high in official circles last night that the payment would be met in the next few days.

The possibility of payment hushed the several speeches that had been scheduled in Congress yesterday. Senator Pat Harrison (Democrat), of Mississippi, was to have discussed the war debts on the floor of the Senate. It was understood that a suggestion was thrown out by Stimson that observance of parliamentary silence would facilitate any negotiations which may occur.

Just one hour before Harrison was due to begin his address, Ambassador Claudel appeared at the Department of State. He was ushered at once into the office of the Secretary, who had just come from the Cabinet meeting at the White House.

For one hour Col. Stimson and Ambassador Claudel remained in deep discussion.

Speech Is Canceled.

The reaction of the French Ambassador's visit did not take long to make itself felt. The speech of Senator Harrison was hurriedly canceled and fashionable galleries who were awaiting the opening of the debate were disappointed when it failed to take place. The senator thus explained his position:

"Certain circumstances have arisen which I hope will work to the mutual advantage of both France and the United States and preserve the fine and friendly and cordial relationship that has always existed between the two countries.

"Since making the announcement that I would discuss war debts today, there has been in my opinion some change in the trend of events. It is therefore my opinion that the wise thing to do at this time is to withhold any remarks touching that very important question."

The senator quickly dispelled the implication that he had been formally requested by Col. Stimson to refrain from addressing the Senate on

Berlin Cabinet to Lift Ban on Former Kaiser

Berlin, Dec. 16 (U.P.).—The cabinet of Chancellor Kurt von Schleicher is preparing to remove the ban placed on the former kaiser's return to Germany, the newspaper Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung said tonight.

The law protecting the republic will be extended, the newspaper says, when the cabinet meets tomorrow, but the clause forbidding the former kaiser's return probably will be abolished.

PHILIPPINE FREEDOM APPROVED IN SENATE

Liberty in 14 Years, Should Islands Then Want It, Is Agreed Upon.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate agreed yesterday to freeing the Philippines in fourteen years if the islands vote for it, but the latter qualification so angered sponsors of outright independence that the legislation was tied up in a snarl of debate.

Senator Long (Democrat), Louisiana, an advocate of irrevocable independence for the Pacific possessions, hinted strongly that a compromise agreement had been violated in that it had been his understanding the plebiscite clause was to be stricken out.

He took the floor after the vote and warned that no bill would be passed unless the plebiscite provision is removed. He said he would talk indefinitely, despite that he was only "a country boy away from home," and then moved reconsideration of the 35-to-33 vote which rejected a motion by Senator Byrnes (Democrat), South Carolina, to strike out the plebiscite.

Long Changes Vote.

Long had voted for the Byrnes motion, but when he saw the result was going to be a tie—which means defeat—he changed his vote from "aye" to "no" and served notice he would ask reconsideration.

He held the floor the remainder of the day, saying he was prepared to go into all the "direct and abstract principles of the fundamental theory of the statutory laws involved," and then the constitutional question before asking another vote.

Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, warned that President Hoover would veto any bill without a plebiscite provision.

At the outset yesterday the Senate agreed to a limitation of debate on a motion to reconsider the amendment, previously approved, granting independence in eight years.

Compromise Adopted.

This motion was approved, 42 to 34, and then the 8-year amendment was rejected, 45 to 31, upsetting a previous vote for it of 40 to 38.

This paved the way for adoption, without a record vote, of the Hawes-Cutting compromise providing for independence after the islands had experienced twelve years of economic barriers, but not before the islanders themselves had voted for freedom in the thirteenth year. Another year would be provided for American withdrawal, making independence complete in about fourteen years.

The bill as originally reported would have brought independence in about 18 or 19 years.

Senator Cutting (Republican), New Mexico, coauthor of the bill with Senator Hawes (Democrat), Missouri, urged retention of the plebiscite clause.

"We ought not to force the Filipinos to take independence," he said, "if they do not want it after experiencing the disadvantages of tariffs."

Under the compromise, duty-free imports of sugar, cocoanut oil and hemp products into the United States would be limited the first seven years of the probation period. In the last five years before the proposed plebiscite, the islanders would be permitted to collect export taxes to help pay off their bonded indebtedness.

Prospect of New Army of 25,000 Federal Police to Check Crop Quotas Throughout Country Is Presented by Witness Before House Group.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

The prospect of a new army of 25,000 Federal police scattered throughout the country to check crop quotas under the domestic allotment plan of farm relief was presented before the House agricultural committee yesterday as opponents of the scheme were granted their first hearing.

Fred J. Lingham, representing the Millers' National Federation, told the committee the allotment plan, under which every farmer would be assigned his annual quota of production by the Secretary of Agriculture, contemplated the most elaborate and costly system of Federal bureaucracy ever projected in national legislation. He characterized the plan as unconstitutional and economically unworkable, and estimated that its attempted application would result in the immediate addition of approximately a billion dollars a year to the Nation's food bill.

Besides placing some 4,000,000 farms under a direct system of Federal surveillance, the scheme would require vast and costly checking systems at every flour mill, cotton textile plant and slaughter house in the country to enforce the proposed processing tax, the witness suggested.

This tax, equal roughly to the import tariff on the major farm crops, would be carried in a special fund in the Treasury to be distributed among farmers who accepted the Government quota assignments.

The plan has the support of President-elect Roosevelt and is being pushed by Democratic leaders in the House as the most promising untried method to increase farm income.

Vigorous opposition to the plan has developed since Chairman Jones of the House agricultural committee indicated early in the session that efforts would be made to hasten its enactment. Arrangements for pooling the opposition for a concerted drive to kill the measure in the House were launched yesterday.

Plan's Originator Heard.

After devoting the entire day to opponents of the measure, the committee held a night session last night to hear Dr. M. L. Wilson, of the University of Montana, explain the calculations by which he devised the allotment plan. Dr. Wilson is widely recognized as the author of the plan, though several other professors throughout the world claim to have originated various modifications of the same central idea.

Challenging the claim of the allotmenteers that the processing tax and national production quotas would wipe out wheat and cotton surpluses in two or three years, Mr. Lingham told the committee that the increased prices could operate in the long run only to call out larger crops. Secondly, he added, the higher food prices to city consumers would operate to curtail consumption and thus to aggravate the present surplus difficulty.

More important as an obstacle to effective administration of the processing tax, the witness said, is the likelihood that an entirely new bootlegging industry—in tax free flour—would be established.

Sees Bootlegging Threat.

"We believe that unless there was a policeman beside every grinding will there would be bootlegging of flour," Mr. Lingham said.

Pointing out that a force of approximately 12,000 persons now is employed in the Bureau of Internal Revenue to check and double check about 5,000,000 income tax returns annually, the witness said it would be almost humanly impossible to supervise the Government production quotas from season to season on the country's 6,000,000 farms.

The plan provided for in the House bill would administer these quotas through State, county and township allotment boards, which would report to Washington when any farmer planted more than his assigned quota of any crop. This violation of his contract with the Secretary of Agriculture would automatically deprive the farmer of his share in the processing tax.

The collection of this tax would be made at the primary processing plant, which would require some sort of Federal audit and control organization in more than 4,000 flour mills, 1,300 cotton textile plants and 1,277 meat packing establishments. If the plan were applied to tobacco also, another group of several thousand factories would be brought into the Government auditing group.

HOUSE GROUP KILLS WINE; REPORTS BEER

crat), of Mississippi, following the committee vote.

Representative Fiorella H. LaGuardia (Republican), of New York, who long has been an avowed anti-prohibitionist but who was made a lame-duck by the anti-Hoover landslide last month, sounded the keynote of many of the farseeing and conservative wets. They will go through with their pledges and vote wet whenever the opportunity affords, but they don't want piece-meal legislation, such as the ways and means committee beer bill, to defeat the major purpose of repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Representative Henry T. Rainey (Democrat), of Illinois, party floor leader, has voted for modification of the Volstead law, but, it is said, he would be just as well satisfied to have the whole question go over until a Democratic Congress, committed to repeal of the eighteenth amendment, convenes. The question of modification involves so many questions that even the most ardent wets are dubious about the results of any legislation which may have a fighting chance in this session of Congress or of approval by the pen of President Hoover.

The same wide chasm, which has separated the prohibitionists and the antiprohibitionists since the question became a matter of political issue, was shown in the surprisingly numerous reports and explanatory statements from committee members which were submitted on the heel of the formal report of the committee recommending that the 3.2 beer bill be enacted.

Hint of Sales Tax.

Representative Allen T. Treadway (Republican), Massachusetts, whose district is said to be wet and whose sympathies were certainly thought to lie with the modificationists, judging by his questioning of witnesses, made public a statement explaining why he voted against the beer bill. In the course of his statement Mr. Treadway gave hint of a revival of the proposed general sales tax, which was defeated in the last session of Congress.

Representative Willis C. Hawley (Republican), Washington, who voted against the favorable report, said that 4 per cent beer was just as intoxicating now as it was before the war and there were more reasons now for suppressing it than there were when prohibition was made the national law.

Representative Heartsill Ragon (Democrat), Arkansas, who consistently feared the return of the old-time saloon as a sort of a horrible morning-after chimera before wet witnesses appearing before the committee, joined with Representatives Morgan Sanders (Democrat), Texas, and Jere Cooper (Democrat), Tennessee, in a minority report in the course of which they said they couldn't support the bill because 3.2 per cent beer was intoxicating, no matter what the Supreme Court might eventually say about it.

Revenue Estimates.

The estimates of revenue which might be expected from legalization of beer ranged from one extreme to the other, depending on which report or opinion was read.

Chairman Collier, in his committee report, estimated an annual yield of $300,000,000 to the Treasury. Minority reports quoted Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills on the revenue prospects. He estimated a revenue of from $125,000,000 to $150,000,000. The committee estimated that enactment of its bill would mean direct employment of 75,000 men in breweries and 225,000 men indirectly. The report spoke of the proposed beer as "good, wholesome, palatable, non-intoxicating beer," legalization of which would go far toward eliminating illicit operations extant.

Mr. Collier said that rejection of the light wines bill was based on a belief of a majority of the committee that legalization of an alcoholic content of 12 to 14 per cent would be held in violation of the Constitutional amendment.

Dry Law Violator Gets 30 Days.

Convicted of possession of liquor when tried yesterday in Marlboro police court, Fred D. Payne, of Washington, was fined $50. In default of this amount he was sentenced to serve 30 days in jail.

JOBS WILL SUFFER IN FUND SHORTAGE

November 1 of this year, jobs were found for 1,842,055, he said.

The Senate economy committee at its session yesterday decided to recommend a slight change in the economy law covering the rate of interest on judgments against the United States, rendered, but not paid, prior to passage of the economy act. The latter reduced the rate of interest on such claims, and yesterday's decision would remove the retroactive effect.

Meantime, Secretary E. C. Babcock, of the Civil Service Commission, disclosed the committee has asked the commission for a report on the number and salary grades of employes who already have received administrative furloughs. Forms were circulated among the departments soliciting this information.

The economy committee adjourned yesterday subject to the call of Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, chairman. Monday a Senate appropriations subcommittee will meet to consider the Treasury-Postoffice appropriations bill, to which the House attached the economy act rider. In the Senate the economy provisions are being left to Senator Bingham's economy group, which will report its findings to the full appropriations committee.

Green Issues Warning.

President Green, of the American Federation of Labor, in his attack yesterday on reenactment of the furlough, and the proposal before the Senate economy committee for a cut on top of the furlough, warned that carrying out of these policies would create "a bad psychological condition."

The effect of the economy act was reflected in the failure of the Community Chest to raise its quota, and in a reduced volume of sales by merchants throughout the country, he declared.

"Labor everywhere regards the fight of the employes of the Federal Government against lowered living standards as its fight," he said. "The cause of the Government employe is labor's cause."

Furlough to Follow Leave.

He said if this session of Congress "fails to right the wrong" done Federal workers, "the fight will be carried on until it is won."

It was learned yesterday that employes of the Bureau of Immigration of the Labor Department, badly hit in last session's appropriation slashes, will be put on a month's administrative furlough, in addition to the 30 days' payless leave required in the economy act. The additional furlough would be distributed over the first six months of the new year. Similar furloughs are expected to be ordered in the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Senate Bills Asks Grazing Fees Cut

Measure Is Result of Date With Steiwer and Carey Which Hyde Broke.

(Associated Press.)

A resolution asking Congress to order Secretary Hyde to maintain lowered grazing fees in 1933 was decided on yesterday by Senators Steiwer (Republican), Oregon, and Carey (Republican), Wyoming, as the first outgrowth of the Secretary's failure Thursday to see them at an appointed hour to take up the matter.

Hyde, Steiwer and Carey said yesterday, had made no effort to apologize to them or explain his failure to keep the appointment with them Thursday, which was made by Carey.

The Agriculture Secretary explained to newspapermen Thursday night that he was late reaching his office and had another appointment.

Collector Warns Taxpayers.

W. R. Purvis Taylor, city collector of Alexandria, announced yesterday that taxpayers now delinquent on the second half of their city taxes on which a penalty of 2 per cent already has been added, will have an additional penalty of 5 per cent added effective January 1 next. Taxpayers, therefore, may save this tax by paying before then.

$100,000,000 SAVING PLAN GIVEN BY HINES

Veterans Disabled Under 50 Per Cent Would Be Denied $51,344,000.

(Associated Press.)

A saving of nearly $100,000,000 a year in veterans' benefits was dangled before a congressional economy group yesterday by Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, but the manner in which more than half of this would be obtained drew vigorous opposition.

The committee, a joint Senate and House group, created to find economies in the Veterans' Administration, had indicated rather general approval until Gen. Hines reached a $51,344,000 estimated saving to be obtained by prohibiting disability allowances to all veterans not permanently disabled by at least 50 per cent. This drew fire from Senator Robinson (Republican), Indiana.

Yesterday's recommendations by the administrator completed what he termed his "first group" of proposals. He figured the annual reduction at $86,000,000, plus $1,000,000,000 to be saved over 33 years by revising the hospital construction policy.

Gen. Hines said he would propose further slashes Monday, when the committee takes up what have been termed the "more controversial" phases of the question.

When Hines proposed the new disability basis, Robinson said if the present 25 per cent disability cases were cut out "you get back right where we started from with grave injustices."

When Robinson asked about "border line cases," Gen. Hines said these could be taken care of by liberal interpretation of the compensation provisions.

He added the amendment would remove from the disability rolls 358,555 men who would either have to be aided in obtaining employment or be taken care of by their local communities.

It was not only a question of economy, Gen. Hines said, but of whether the Government should continue to care for men who should be able to work.

Other changes in law and estimated savings he proposed yesterday were:

Prohibit payment of increased or retroactive awards of compensation more than six months prior to the date of administrative determination or of application for review—savings, $15,000,000 annually, affecting 146,000 men.

Amendment of emergency officers retirement act so that no person shall receive retirement pay unless he served for six months or more between American declaration of war and the armistice, April 6, 1917, and November 11, 1918, and actually suffered disability directly attributable to war service—savings, $3,386,000 annually, affecting 3,200 men.

Transfer of veterans who enlisted after the armistice from a compensation to a pension status—savings, $3,649,000 a year, affecting 13,000 men.

Dental and transportation and other expenses to nonservice connected group in reporting for physical examinations, savings, $857,000 a year, affecting 140,000 persons.

Abnormal Fever of Girl To Be Checked as Hoax

Los Angeles, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—Frankly puzzled over the case of a 20-year-old Mexican girl, Alice Tolan, who, hospital records show, has survived body temperatures as high as 115 degrees, physicians at the general hospital planned today an exhaustive check of the girl's condition.

A belief that the temperatures, which have ranged between 107 and 110 degrees on frequent occasions, might have been unnatural was fostered by a newspaper story. A reporter said in his presence the girl's temperature was taken and showed 110 degrees, but dropped to 99.6 degrees, slightly above normal, when a hot-water bottle was removed from her abdomen.

Shaw Hits Incompetence Slur at U. S. Employes

Government employes were urged by President John Arthur Shaw of the American Federation of Government Employes not to allow charges of incompetence to go unchallenged, in an address last night at a meeting of Washington Office, Panama Canal, lodge of the organization at the Lee House. Mr. Shaw presented a charter for the lodge to its president, C. M. Mears.

Michael D. Schaefer, president of the District department, and representatives of the other 29 lodges in Washington, were among the guests. Entertainment included vocal selections by Miss Anne Wilson, Miss Helen Stafford Smith, Mrs. Charles Quade, and Clarence Albright. R. F. Handley, president of the Wheeler Club, presented several acts from the club repertoire.

Daily Meals to Cost 42 Cents Per Sailor

(Associated Press.)

The Navy's chow bill for next year will be the lowest in sixteen years.

Because of decreases in wholesale food prices the sailors are to have their forthcoming three squares a day at a cost of 42 cents.

The cost of feeding the bluejackets during the last year was a fraction under 50 cents a head daily.

The Army ration is 31 cents daily per soldier. Experts explain that the difference in food expenses is due to the fact that the Army buys in larger quantities for its posts while the Navy is not able to follow this practice with its ships always on the move.

GLASS SEES VICTORY FOR BANK PROPOSAL

Senator Says Reform Bill Is Sure to Pass Unless Filibuster Arises.

(Associated Press.)

Quick Senate approval of his bank reform bill was predicted yesterday by Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, following a series of discussions among friends of the legislation, looking toward the elimination of disagreements.

"I don't entertain any doubt about the bill being passed," Senator Glass said. "And I don't think it will take much time either."

The Virginian, a former Secretary of the Treasury, said he believed the bill would be approved by the Senate within a week after its consideration begins, January 5, unless a filibuster develops, which he said was not now in sight.

Several conferences have been held by members of the subcommittee headed by Glass, which drafted the banking legislation particularly with a view to meeting objection from some quarters to its provision for State-wide branch banking.

Compromises have been suggested, and members of the group have agreed that in order to speed consideration of the bill it may be wise to limit branch banking privileges for national banks to States which permit it, in their own laws.

Another suggestion that has been considered, is that branch banking should be permitted in all States that do not forbid their own banks the same privilege. This would broaden the list of States in which national banks could operate branches.

No compromise has been worked out yet on the other most controversial feature of the bill, which would require Federal reserve member banks to divorce themselves from security affiliates within three years.

Senator Glass has offered to modify this period to five years, but apparently this has not satisfied opponents of the legislation. The Virginian has indicated that he will go no further.

Arlington Civic Group Again Elects Bennett

Lester Bennett was elected to serve his fourth year as secretary of the Arlington County Civic Federation by the executive committee at a meeting last night at the home of the president, Robert N. Anderson. William C. Hull was reelected chairman of the committee.

Those named are J. C. McClellan, William E. A. McShea, L. C. McNemar, Charles R. Fenwick and Arthur Orr.

spector Nestor Meana, former District Police Chief Ulises Cenillo, former Lieut. Col. Atilio Cataneo, former Capt. Francisco Videla and former Secretary of the City Council Leopoldo Lardo.

The minister of war said the army was not involved in the alleged plot. Police said they found a list of public buildings, which might be attacked with explosives, at the home of Col. Cataneo.

The police closed the national committee headquarters of the Radical party and also the offices of the Tribuna Libre, the party's official organ. Reasons of public order, it was explained, necessitated these steps.

The state of siege already was virtually established tonight. An attempted radical demonstration in the Avenida de Mayo, the principal boulevard of Buenos Aires at the end of which are the government buildings, was quietly dispersed by great forces of mounted and foot police. Patrols were on duty in the streets and about public buildings. Army detachments assisted in the guard work.

LIMITATION OF COAL PRODUCTION URGED

Representative Lewis Tells Mining Congress Result Would Be Stability.

Greater stability in the coal industry could be brought about by limitation of production, Representative Lewis (Democrat), Maryland, declared yesterday before the American Mining Congress. He said legislation he has proposed will result in greater stability if adopted. The measure is intended to "secure prices just to operators and consumers and fair living and working conditions for the miners."

Supply would be limited to demand under Representative Lewis' proposal and a "fair share" of the market would be apportioned to each producing region and mine.

An appeal for public support of the administration's proposals for reduced Federal expenditures and new taxes to balance the budget was made before the mining organization yesterday by Arthur A. Ballantine, Undersecretary of the Treasury.

The manufacturer's excise tax was described by Mr. Ballantine as "the best available measure for a broadly based addition to the revenues of the Government not likely to be unduly affected by fluctuations in business activities."

Revision of antitrust laws so that producers could cooperate in regulating production and in cooperative selling was urged before the Congress by Robert E. Tally, of New York, vice president of the United Verde Copper Co.

"Such revision," Tally said, "* * * might be effective only during periods of subnormal prices. All agreements or understandings should be subject to the supervision of the Federal Trade Commission."

The congress enters the third and final day of its annual meeting at the Mayflower Hotel today.

Los Angeles, Dec. 16. (A.P.).—The mercy of a court freed 20-year-old Ruth Borman today from a charge of stealing her own daughter, Nancy Irene Buchanan. Superior Judge Robert H. Scott ordered the indictment dismissed, saying it was contrary to humanity and justice as well as law.

The unwed young mother was arrested several months ago after taking Nancy Irene from the home of the child's guardian, Mrs. Violet C. Buchanan, heiress daughter of an aristocratic family of England and California Spaniards. Miss Borman said she had become lonesome for her daughter.

ROOSEVELT STUDIES WAR DEBT PROBLEM

States Mother of Fugitive Burns Once Asked Him to Intercede.

Prof. Raymond Moley, of Columbia University, who sat in during the conference on war debts between President Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt, shortly after Mr. Roosevelt's election, boarded the governor's private car at Poughkeepsie and was closeted with him for a half hour.

While Mr. Roosevelt was silent on the subject of European nations' financial obligations to the United States, his friends made known that he did not expect an invitation from President Hoover for another conference at Washington on the debt situation. Mr. Roosevelt himself said he had seen a published report that the President would invite him to another conference, but he declined to comment on it.

Dinner for Mrs. Dewson.

Mr. Roosevelt came to New York to attend two functions tonight, arranged in honor of Democratic workers in the last presidential campaign. One was a dinner for Mrs. Mary Dewson, chairman of the women's division of the Democratic national organization. The other was a dinner for 600 workers. Both were at the Biltmore Hotel.

The President-elect said he expected William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Matthew Woll, vice president, to visit him at his home in Hyde Park, 70 miles up the Hudson River, tomorrow. Green and Woll are understood to be backing Daniel J. Hogan, of Boston and Indianapolis for the post of Secretary of Labor in the Cabinet that will take office with Mr. Roosevelt after his inauguration March 4. Hogan was chairman of the labor division of the national Democratic organization during Mr. Roosevelt's presidential campaign.

News of the capture of Robert Elliott Burns, author of "I Am a Fugitive From a Georgia Chain Gang," at Newark, N. J., caused the New York Governor to remark that Burns' mother called upon him in 1929 at Warm Springs, Ga., to ask that something be done in behalf of her son.

Unable to Interfere.

"I merely told her," Mr. Roosevelt said, 'that the Governor of New York could not very well interfere with the Governor of Georgia."

The bills for the reduction of New York City employes' salaries, passed by the New York Legislature early Thursday at the conclusion of its extraordinary session, probably will be signed at Gov. Roosevelt's home in this city tomorrow, he said. They had not yet been engrossed today, but he expected they would be sent to him from Albany in time for the signing before he starts on his automobile trip to Hyde Park in the morning.

R. G. Tugwell, one of Mr. Roosevelt's advisors, and George Creel, war time publicity director for the Unfted States Government, were among those who conferred with him in his private car today during the trip to New York. Creel, now associated with a magazine, has been mentioned as a possible selection for press secretary in the Roosevelt administration.

Merchants Will Deliver Toys for Donors to Fund

The Post Urges Articles for Needy Be Put on Shopping Lists.

The Post Toy and Doll Fund snowball rolled steadily toward the $500 mark yesterday. By the time the count was taken at night, $456.14 had been cantributed.

But that is not enough. The Post Toy and Doll Fund, to be certain of its object, must rise to at least $1,000 by Christmas Eve and collect 10,000 toys. More than 4,000 toys already have been sent in. If you haven't time to send a check or bring in a toy or doll yourself, stop in some of Washington's stores, buy a toy or doll and mark it for "The Post Toy and Doll Fund." The kindly merchants will see that it reaches The Post Building. Another thing, when you are playing Santa Claus for your own little ones and buying those new toys, pick out one or two for The Post Toy and Doll Fund and send that along to the Santa Claus Lady at The Washington Post Building. You will enjoy your own children's delight all the more to know that you have given to needy little children in their names.

This is the day of candy, cookie sale and toy shower to be held in the playhouse of the four daughters of Representative and Mrs. Clyde Kelly, of Pennsylvania. "Come one, come all! Buy, buy, buy candy and cookies and bring a toy, too!" said the four girls to everybody who inquired about the sale shower yesterday.

Hop-Toy, the pekinese of Mrs. George Barnett, will be on hand to receive contributions from owners of pets who want to match him.

Some of the dolls that have come in have now gone to the doll hospitals of the various agencies in Washington. All of them are sure to be entirely recovered and nicely clothed to make a Merry Christmas in some home. Many new toys come in and many toys just as good as new. It is wonderful what can be done by clever fingers to make dolls and toys new. Some of the youthful contributors to the toy supply have had painting parties. Some of the little girls have had doll dressing parties. Many people have had the real spirit of Christmas by shopping for the little ones who might be forgotten or making dresses. A grandmother, whose two granddaughters are both grown up beyond the age of dolls, brought in quite a collection she found around the house.

Among the nicest gifts to be given through The Post Toy and Doll Fund are the picture puzzles made by a group of boys who took the pictures of their favorite events out of magazines or newspapers, colored them, pasted them on heavy cardboard and cut them with their Boy Scout knives into as many intricate pieces as possible.

Good people of Washington remember the eager-eyed little boys and girls who are looking forward to Christmas morning and will be keenly disappointed if all do not do their part. As you make out your last-minute Christmas list write down The Post Toy and Doll Fund.

Kentucky—A man was frozen to death at Barlow. It was 12 below at Carrollton with zero weather reported over the State. The mountain regions, however, were warmer than the rest of the State.

Ohio—Five dead, two by coasting; Mahoning River frozen for the first time in years.

Wyoming—Warmer weather forecast after mercury touched 28 below at Rock Springs.

Ice in some sections and low visibility in others kept airplanes grounded or caused air transport companies to discontinue carrying passengers. Pilots who did travel, however, said it was much warmer at elevations of 2,000 feet and above.

Ice Jams in Mississippi.

Jams of ice in the Mississippi and Illinois Rivers brought the Mississippi to its lowest stage in history at St. Louis.

The weather was comfortable in California and generally along the Pacific Coast, with rain forecast for the northerly section. In contrast, Oklahoma had a foot of snow.

It was 21 below at Walthour Stop, Pa., while Duluth, Minn., the coldest place in the United States on recent days, had only 3 below. Indiana, Wisconsin and Nebraska all experienced sudden rises in temperature, and all three States had forecasts of snow. There was a light snow also in Montana, where temperatures range from 14 below at Billings to 4 below at Missoula.

Congress was reasonably comfortable in 14-below weather here, but the suburbs of nearby Baltimore had close to zero.

Shreveport, La., and Little Rock, Ark., had temperatures considerably below the freeezing point. Late in the afternoon the Aerological Weather in Little Rock reported a moderate snow falling in a temperature of 15 degrees.

Charlotte, N. C., had several kinds of weather during the day, all of it bad. It snowed a while there, then the precipitation turned to mixed freezing rain and sleet, and later the snow resumed where it left off, falling heavily. The temperature was 23 degrees.

Spartanburg reported light sleet and snow in a temperature of 24. Anderson, S. C., had a heavy sleet at 29 degrees.

Jefferson, Ga., late in the day reported a temperature of 31 and a light freezing rain. Atlanta was barely above the freezing point with a cold drizzle falling continuously.

Nashville and Murfresboro, Tenn., had moderate snow and a temperature of 18 degrees in the late afternoon. Monteagle had snow 5 inches deep and more falling. Chattanooga already had 4 inches and the snow continued. Memphis had a heavy snowfall with the city blanketed and the mercury at 15 degrees.

New Orleans had light, cold rain; Mobile had light rain at 40 degrees. Birmingham reported rain at 33 degrees following snowfall.

Western and northwestern sections of Dixie had forecasts promising a little relief, but there was no help in sight for the rest of the area.

Georgia Mountains Blanketed.

Kentucky and Florida were the only States in the South where snow was not mentioned in the forecast for last night and today. Northern Florida expected colder weather, but there was no forecast of freezing there.

Most of the North Georgia mountains were blanketed in snow and ice inches deep. The Berry Schools, at Mount Berry, near Rome, Ga., which had been isolated four days by flood waters from the Costanaula River over highways north and south of the school, had new troubles from a sleet storm that covered buildings and broke down trees. The flood waters had invaded the basement of the largest dormitory, housing 100 boys, and put out the furnace.

Kansas City Is So Cold Ink Freezes in Offices

Kansas City, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—And speaking of the weather—it was so cold today that ink froze in the wells at the offices of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce.

Somebody left three windows open early in the day.

POLICEMAN KILLED IN $30,000 HOLDUP

Two Others Seriously Shot by Minneapolis Bank Robbers.

Minneapolis, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—A policeman was killed and two other persons critically wounded today by bandits who held up the Third Northwestern National Bank and escaped with approximately $20,000 in cash and $10,000 in securities.

Six patrons and ten employes were in the bank, located in a small neighborhood community, 2 miles from the St. Paul municipal limits. When the bandits entered, an employe pressed a burglar alarm button connected with police headquarters as customers and workers were lined up.

Police Encounter Gang.

Police broadcast an alarm. Patrolman Ira L. Evans and Leo R. Gorski, cruising nearby in a police car, hurried to the bank. They arrived just as three bandits rushed out, their arms filled with bundles of loot.

A fourth bandit, armed with a machine gun, followed and opened fire as the police car drew up to the curb. Evans fell with more than twenty wounds. He died before reaching a hospital. Gorski received at least five wounds. Physicians said he had only a slight chance of recovery.

The bandits drove to Como Park, St. Paul. Several of them had entered another automobile when Axel Erickson and Arthur Zachman, who were peddling Christmas wreaths, came along. Erickson slowed down his car and again the machine gun went into action.

Second Victim May Die.

This time Erickson slumped forward. Zachman took the wheel and drove hurriedly away. At a St. Paul hospital tonight physicians said Erickson was not expected to live. Part of his scalp was torn away by a slug.

Police of both Minneapolis and St. Paul surrounded the park soon after, but the bandits were believed to have speeded away to a residential section of St. Paul.

It was the second raid of a Minneapolis bank this year. On March 29 bandits fled with approximately $200,000 after holding up employes of the North American Branch of the Northwestern Bank.

Defective Wiring Causes Home Fire

Chain Bridge Road Man Escapes From Burning House; Loss $9,000.

Fire believed to have been caused by defective wiring destroyed the home of Roy Armentrout, on the Chain Bridge road, near Fairfax, Va., early yesterday. Loss was estimated at $9,000.

Armentrout, alone, was awakened by flames and smoke. His way to the door was blocked by fire. Only by kicking out a window pane was he able to escape. His shouts attracted attention of neighbors, who summoned the volunteer fire department from Fairfax. The blaze was beyond control when the firemen arrived.

Flames fanned by high wind endangered the racing stables containing several horses of Wilmer T. Ralston, about 75 yards from the Armentrout house. The fire was confined by the firemen.

WRITER DIES

Harris & Ewing.
THEODORE P. NOYES.

THEODORE P. NOYES, OF THE STAR, IS DEAD

Associate Editor Succumbs After Long Illness; Had Served in Navy.

Theodore Prentice Noyes, associate editor of the Evening Star, died yesterday at the Naval Hospital following a long illness. He was 36 years old.

Mr. Noyes was the only son of Theodore W. Noyes, present editor of the Star, and a grandson of Crosby S. Noyes, who was its editor for 40 years.

He entered its employ at an early age and, with the exception of a period in the Navy during the World War had been in its employ since.

His death was the result of a minor operation performed last spring which was complicated by an infection. His system failed to rally despite several further operations and blood transfusions.

Mr. Noyes was born at Alton Farm, near Silver Spring, Md., on September 14, 1896. His boyhood was spent in Washington. He received his education at Preston's Academy, the Washington Collegiate School and at Tome Academy.

He entered the service of the Star in September, 1915. Following his wartime service, he resumed this connection. Later he left the business department and became a reporter, and at one time covered the activities of Congress.

In the early part of 1927 he was promoted to the position of associate editor. In this capacity he continued his efforts on behalf of national representation for the District.

Mr. Noyes married Miss Adelaide Pearce, of Washington, in June, 1921. For many years they have lived at 1921 Twenty-fourth street northwest. He is survived by his wife, two children, Mira and Theodore P. Noyes, jr.; his father, and two sisters, Mrs. Ralph Walker McDowell and Mrs. Smith Hampstone.

COURT WANTS DUKE TO PROVE CHARGES

convening of court January 2 to present any facts he may have to sustain the charge of "deliberate falsity in the record."

The Court of Appeals decided also that the hearing in January would be confined to the sole question as to whether the "record in the appeal in this case is a deliberate and premeditated perversion of the facts of the trial." United States Attorney Rover will be given an opportunity at that hearing to reply.

Mr. Duke also petitioned the appellate court some time ago to grant him a rehearing on his motion for a writ to admit the convicted persons to bail pending their appeal, and also to compel the United States attorney to furnish him with a transcript of the testimony at the trial. The court pointed out that the transcript was taken by an unofficial stenographer and was the property of the United States attorney's office, and the court was without power to compel the giving of a copy of it to the attorney. Both the motion for a rehearing, for admittance to bail, and for the furnishing of the transcript were denied in a separate memorandum.

Carrying his battle to the House of Representatives, Mr. Duke has sought the impeachment of Justice Letts and Mr. Rover.

Whether the House judiciary committee will drop the impeachment charges or hold a hearing on the matter will be determined at a meeting of a special House judiciary subcommittee today.

The controversy arose following the conviction of Adolph R. Moder, James Caparotta, James R. Posey and others on charges of conspiring to violate the national prohibition law. After their conviction they were sent to jail, bail being denied by Justice Letts.

In its first consideration of Mr. Duke's charges the Court of Appeals sent for the transcript to see for itself if there was any material difference between the bill of exceptions and the testimony at the trial. Yesterday's ruling was based on a perusal of the transcript and a comparison of it with the bill of exceptions.

POSSE CAPTURES 2 IN DEPUTY'S DEATH

Alleged Attacker Opens Fire on Agents Seeking Arrest; Companion Jailed.

Waterloo, Iowa, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—Elmer Brewer and Patrick Griffith, captured by a posse in a cornfield near here, were held by police tonight for fatally shooting Deputy Sheriff W. F. Dillworth and wounding Deputy H. M. Mitchell when the officers sought to arrest Brewer on a charge of criminal assault.

The men were arrested after they had fled from a two-room farmhouse where the deputies went seeking them. They offered no resistance to officers who discovered them hiding in the field.

Both were brought immediately to Sheriff H. T. Wagner's office, where they were identified. The sheriff said that Brewer did the shooting, while Griffith, a friend of Brewer, was present at the farm home and fled with his companion.

As the deputies entered the home they were met by Brewer wielding an automatic pistol. He warned the officers, the sheriff said, "I am going to shoot you."

The officers stepped closer and Brewer fired. Dillworth was struck in the left temple and died almost instantly, while Mitchell was hit in the abdomen and back.

Mitchell staggered to a nearby inn and was taken immediately to a hospital, where physicians said his wounds were not dangerous.

Mrs. Bernice Graves and her 5-year-old daughter, Darline, occupants of the farm home, witnessed the shooting, police said.

Montgomery Tax Slash Is Studied

Shaw Discloses Plan for Cutting Rate Next Year by Economies.

A threefold plan for reduction of Montgomery County taxes, one of which is reduction by 10 per cent of all county salaries next year, is under consideration by the Montgomery County Commissioners, Lacy Shaw, president of the board, told a meeting of the Nonpartisan Taxpayers League at Gaithersburg High School last night. The other two plans include the consolidation of county road systems under State roads commission control and indirect taxation by the State which will lower the county school rate by approximately 18 cents.

In answer to assertions made by Bowie F. Waters, Rockville lawyer, Mr. Shaw said that Montgomery County gets more for its tax dollar than any other county in the State.

Mr. Shaw said that Montgomery County has been operating economically and that it is hard to cut the tax rate without cutting county services, but that the county commissioners will entertain any feasible plan for cutting taxes presented to them.

Police Pass Up Ride Victim Delivered to Headquarters

After Four Hours, New York Detective Prods Bundle in Stolen Car and Discovers Trussed Up Body; Cleaning Racket Feud Is Theory.

New York, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—Hundreds of detectives passed an automobile parked 25 feet from the entrance to police headquarters today without discovering that it contained the body of a former convict trussed up in a burlap bag.

The car, left under the window of the Missing Persons Bureau about 9 a. m., had been reported stolen 24 hours earlier and the license number had been given to every officer in the city.

The bulging bundle, plainly discernible from the sidewalk, was covered with bloodstains.

After the car had stood for four hours in front of headquarters without arousing suspicion, a member of the bomb squad looked inside and prodded the bundle.

The bag was ripped open in the presence of hundreds of policemen and the victim was identified as Joseph ("Washie") Weskefsky.

His hands were tied behind his back with a stout cord; his knees were buckled to his chest, and the cord was twisted tightly around his neck. This is the procedure which has been followed in several such murders recently.

Police files showed Weskefsky had been convicted twice of burglary. Mrs. Weskefsky said she last saw her husband at 6:30 o'clock last night.

When police found handbills in the car advertising a reduction in dry-cleaning prices, they said the killing may have been the outgrowth of racketeering trouble in the cleaning and dyeing industry.

DePriest Asks Addition Of $460,000 to Bill

Representative Oscar De Priest (Republican), Illinois, yesterday asked the House for an additional appropriation of $460,000 in the Interior Department supply bill to provide a power and heating plant for Howard University and Freedmen's Hospital.

The item was stricken from the Interior estimates by the Budget Bureau. Representative Frank Murphy (Republican), Ohio, and Representative Burton L. French (Republican), Idaho, supported De Priest in his request.

RAIL WAGE PARLEY ABRUPTLY HALTED

Authority of Labor Leaders to Negotiate Challenged by Operators.

Chicago, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—The railroads brought their wage conference with labor leaders to an abrupt halt today by challenging their authority to negotiate.

Representatives of the carriers rejected for the second time a proposal to extend the 10 per cent wage cut for another year, but instead of reiterating their proposal of a six-month extension and subsequent mediation under the railway labor act they demanded a definition of the labor spokesmen's power.

"It is impossible for us to negotiate with you further at this time unless we are definitely acquainted with the extent and nature of your authority," said W. F. Thiehoff, chairman for the managements. "We can not afford longer to have our proposals met by statements that you are without authority to deal with this, that or the other thing."

Breach of Faith Charged.

The joint conference met Monday at the call of the roads to consider an extension of the agreement to deduct 10 per cent, or $200,000,000, from pay checks of railway labor for one year from last January 31, the date and method of termination to be arranged.

Alexander F. Whitney, of Cleveland, speaking for labor, accused the carriers of breach of faith in attacking the basic rates of pay, which are unchanged despite the 10 per cent deduction during the life of the agreement. He argued that when the roads withdrew formal notice of a 15 per cent cut in the basic scale in order to consummate the current agreement they consented to automatic restoration of the higher standard when the agreement should end.

Thiehoff replied the roads never surrendered the right to serve notice of a cut at any time and would have done so last September if they had not been "prevailed upon by high public authority."

"Bind Their Hands."

The roads objected to labor's proposals on four grounds:

1. It would prevent their serving notice of a scale cut at any time during the agreement's life.

2. It would "bind their hands" also as to changes in the rules governing working conditions, a matter "outside the scope of the present agreement."

3. It would prevent them from seeking reductions in wages for at least a year "regardless of how much worse the situation may become," and then be confronted with automatic restoration of higher wages.

4. It goes beyond the present agreement in requiring unanimous decision of all the participating railroads if labor were asked to extend the agreement, "depriving the separate corporations of individual action."

Before continuing the negotiations, the roads demanded to know whether labor's representatives had authority to "negotiate an extension only if it involved automatic restoration of the basic rates on a fixed date; an extension with a termination subject to the provisions of the railway labor act; any change in basic wages; any reduction greater than 10 per cent; cooperation in expediting any proceedings which may follow under the railway act."

Whitney will reply tomorrow at 10 a. m.

PAYMENT BY FRENCH WOULD SPUR RELIEF

that subject. While admitting he had received some ideas earlier in the morning, he declared:

"There was no restraint from the State Department on the debt debate here. I took the position it was the practical thing to do."

It is understood that the conversation between the French Ambassador and the Secretary of State revolved about the future cabinet to be formed by President Lebrun of France and its particular attitude toward the debt payment.

Ambassador Claudel presented to the Secretary a resume of the parliamentary opinion which indicated a trend toward reversal of the position hitherto taken by the Chamber of Deputies when they voted Premier Edouard Herriot out of office.

Cabled reports from Paris indicated the impossibility of forming any ministry that would not incorporate the Herriot debt position into its program. The difficulty with which other parliamentarians are trying to form a ministry to carry on with the chamber foreshadows a return of M. Herriot, which will automatically insure the acceptance of his debt program.

Hoover Drafting Message.

Meanwhile, President Hoover is proceeding slowly with the drafting of his debt message to Congress. Nothing will be formally presented, however, until a lapse of time sufficient to allow France to put her parliamentary house in order and make the debt payment now in arrears. This will probably take the next four of five days.

The Hoover debt message will largely incorporate the general ideas embodied in the second note to Great Britain, which carefully analyzed the economic aspect of the debt problem insofar as it concerns the United States. This is the note that rebutted the British economic appeal.

The preference of President-elect Roosevelt for direct diplomatic negotiation has influenced President Hoover in his recent approaches to the debt. With this idea in mind, instructions were sent to American Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon to postpone his projected trip to Washington until he had first an opportunity of sounding the chancellor of the exchequer on the future trend of intergovernmental debts.

This principle was also behind the visit of Ambassador Claudel to Secretary Stimson yesterday morning. After the normal diplomatic channels have been used to carefully explore all the possible solutions of the debt difficulty, the President will then turn to the concrete plan of attack which he will submit to Congress. It is considered possible that in this phase of the negotiations he may desire to communicate again with President-elect Roosevelt. The results of Gov. Roosevelt's program for direct diplomacy will then be summarized insofar as they have been tried out by President Hoover.

By that time, it is hoped the parliamentary horizon in Paris will have definitely cleared and the formal authority for payment of the debt will have been given. The gold is already available in the Bank of France, it was learned here yesterday, for immediate transmission.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

BRAIN force and materials from all over this far-flung country go into construction of the Nation's Government buildings.

RILEY

From San Francisco comes the designing architect. A Boston concern supplies the sheet metal and roofing. Indianapolis supplies tile and terrazzo. Down East, in Maine and New Hampshire, the granite is quarried.

A Philadelphia company held the contract for the foundation. Over in Chicago is a company furnishing the concrete fireproofing and cement finish. And not least, coming home, we find the brickwork, tile and gypsum partitions put in place by a Washington concern.

Plumbing, heating and ventilating make for efficiency. That important job also was assigned to a Washington company.

Other new Government building jobs are typical.

HERMAN SAURIAN, Bureau of Fisheries, lazily cocked an eye at Swarmi Fedd; as lazily closed his optic again and resumed his task of looking as much as possible like a small floating log. Even the activity of his smaller brother, Aloysius, who was climbing over his back, did not cause a flicker of his eyebrows (if any) until Swarmi Fedd mentioned the mystic words "Vitamin D."

And would you believe it? Here is what he exclaimed: "How the heck can I get any vitamin D down here?" (This is a grumbling tone.) "This basement aquarium may be all right for the rest of these 'poor fish' and for those dumb turtles, but to us old alligators it's just a drink of water. We fellers like the gentle caress of Old Sol on our scaly backs."

"Why, Herman," remonstrated Swarmi Fedd, "if you were out of doors in the sunlight now you'd be frozen as stiff as a dress shirt. Listen, old hide, ease up on your feelings. You've certainly got your scale to squawk."

"The comparison frightens me," replied Herman. "I sure would hate to be that stiff, so you may tell your eager readers that Aloysius and I have decided to winter right here in the warm center pool at the north end of the Department of Commerce Building Aquarium. * * * And now, if you'll excuse me, I think I'll go and disturb that big snapping turtle by slapping my tail across his snout. * * * Yes, the population down here lives in glass houses, so I ought to have something to contribute to your column occasionally. Just call me 'Herman' and Aloysius 'Aloysius.' Ho, hum, how dry I am. Think I'll snap up a drink."

Al Smith is a prohibition agent. He has been since April, 1927, more than a year before the 1928 campaign, says Walton Hood Grant, Prohibition Bureau. It seems Al E. (Edward) Smith works out of the San Francisco office. And speaking of names, Jefferson Davis, deputy administrator, Syracuse, visited headquarters here last week.

Gov. Paul M. Pearson, Virgin Islands governor, here for two months, used to wearing white formal attire in the possessions, found it necessary to hire the conventional black in Boston before attending a function in his honor recently. "I went to a store where they had 700 suits on the racks and paid $3.50 for the rent of one," said the governor.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 (Special).—Gen. George Washington today made his last stand in this, his namesake city. It looked for a while like the general was going to win another war but subsequent developments turned the tide and the valiant soldier met his Waterloo. It was his downfall.

There he stood, alone. Few there were who really knew the titanic task the attackers essayed. The tide was in Gen. Washington's favor until he lost an arm, his good right arm, the same arm that had held oppressors at bay and which was lifted in benediction over his countrymen so often.

Suddenly a hoist raised the head and torso by means of a low-geared chain. 'Twas just as well, for months standing as sentinel at the south entrance, National Museum, called for another coat of bronze paint.

Fifteen hundred pounds of plaster parts were loaded into a nearby truck, waiting to start back to the home of the National Sculptors Society. A. J. Continni and his son, Orazio, were about to complete their work.

The last chapter of the retreat of the immortals from the safekeeping of the museum during the Bicentennial had been written.

Four Firemen Elevated; Private Goes on Duty

Four promotions and appointment of a private were ordered in the Fire Department yesterday by the District Commissioners to fill vacancies along the line caused by the recent death of Battalion Chief Thomas O'Connor. Capt. S. T. Porter was promoted to battalion chief. He has been drill master. Other promotions are Lieut. Clement Murphy to captain, Sergt. Fred Litteral to lieutenant, Private E. M. Warfield to sergeant. Judson George, 25 years old, was admitted as a private.

The promotions are effective today. The action was authorized by President Hoover in accordance with the economy act.

BOLIVIAN AIRPLANES BOMB CHACO LINES

Asuncion, Paraguay, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—A Bolivian trimotored airplane, escorted by two scout planes, made an audacious flight over the Paraguayan lines in the Gran Chaco between Saavedra and Platanillos today. The Paraguayan command believed the big ship carried Gen. Hans Kundt, German advisor to the Bolivian army, on a personal observation tour of the battle area.

The squadron flew fast and fairly low. On the way back to the Bolivian base at Munoz the planes dropped 11 bombs around Alihuata, but there was no damage.

Meanwhile, the Paraguayan forces launched a vigorous attack on Saavedra and the fight went on for five hours, interrupting construction of additional Bolivian defenses, which was being carried out under protection of heavy rifle and machine gun fire.

Paraguayan officials believe that Gen. Kundt now is the real commander of Bolivian operations. They declared his undertaking of a colonization project on the Amazon, announced before he left Germany, masked his intent to resume the Bolivian command in the Chaco.

Five Nations Lined For Truce in Chaco

Reduction to Peace-Time Army Standing Is Suggestion.

(Associated Press.)

A move by five neutral nations to marshal world opinion behind their latest move to bring arbitration of the war-fed Chaco boundary dispute between Bolivia and Paraguay moved toward fruition last night with receipt of cablegrams from several countries and the League of Nations.

The neutrals—Colombia, Cuba, Mexico, the United States and Uruguay—Thursday night notified the fourteen other American nations and the league of their proposal to the disputants that they reduce their armies to peace-time strength and enter at once upon negotiations for arbitration of the long-standing boundary disagreement.

The commission last night announced receipt of communications from Argentina, Panama, Nicaragua, El Salvador, Chile, Peru and Guatemala indicating support of its proposal. Another from the secretary general of the league said copies of the neutrals' proposal were being distributed to all league members and a meeting of the council had been called today to consider the commission's request for supporting messages to the disputing governments.

PAUL-BONCOUR TRYS TO FORM MINISTRY

lated payment to America. M. Chautemps definitely lost the collaboration of Edouard Herriot, the retiring premier.

Then he surrendered. He had proclaimed in advance that without M. Herriot he would not accept the premiership. He also surrendered because he found no warm or spontaneous rallying among the chamber leaders to his formula of compromise and hence of payment.

M. Paul-Boncour was cautious as he emerged from his consultation with President Albert Lebrun at Elysee Palace. He said he had told M. Lebrun he could not foresee the possibility of establishing a ministry until after he had talked to M. Herriot, to whose office he hastened.

"I shall give an answer to the president tomorrow," M. Paul-Boncour said, nervously running his hand through his shaggy crown of white hair.

Well Known to Americans.

M. Paul-Boncour is better known to official Americans than most French statesmen. For a number of years he has represented France at Geneva conferences, especially on disarmament, where he worked side by side with such men as Hugh Gibson, American delegate to the world disarmament conference; Hugh R. Wilson, American Minister to Switzerland; Senator Claude A. Swanson, disarmament delegate, and Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson himself.

He drafted the French plan of disarmament and security, and his slogan is, "National security against invasion and against war."

Paris was still hoping tonight to get some helpful light from Washington, in the form of a nonofficial statement or otherwise, calculated to have a softening effect on the French Chamber. Some politicians thought Mr. Davis, on arriving in America, might contribute some constructive idea because of his close association with M. Herriot and M. Paul-Boncour.

Spokane, Wash., Dec. 16 (A.P.).—A $7,000 gold brick, guarded by a police escort, was lugged onto the convention floor of the Northwest Mining Association here today. The brick was brought to Spokane by James O'Brien from the Gnome mine in central Idaho. He brought it, O'Brien explained, just to prove "thar's still gold in them thar hills."

THE NEW CINEMA OFFERINGS

EARLE

"UNDER COVER MAN." Paramount picturization of a story by John Wilstach, adapted to the screen by Garrett Fort, featuring George Raft and Nancy Carroll, with Lew Cody, Roscoe Karns, Gregory Ratoff, Noel Francis and David Landau. Directed by James Flood. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

In the two pictures in which he is being currently presented on local screens, George Raft is given the benefit of roles completely within the range of his swarthy and well-groomed abilities. "Under Cover Man," being the most recent vehicle arranged expressly for the aggrandizement of the Raft reputation, paradoxically, perhaps, will be the first considered in these dispatches.

"Under Cover Man" is, as its name implies, a story of crime, the police and the vengeful adventures of a boy and a girl whose father and brother, respectively, have been "knocked off" by a clever gang of bond thieves, whom they set out to run down.

The story is dedicated to a grim sort of justice that works itself out through more than one surprising twist of plot, situations that are generously charged with suspense and a romantic touch that never obtrudes itself sufficiently to vitiate the ruggedness of a well-gauged study in modern banditry and hazardous police work.

As the youth who starts out to track down the murderers of his father, the young actor who looks too much like Valentino to be fair to himself has a part that admirably suits his close-cropped speech and the sinister, half-closed Latin eyes that also are rapidly becoming a part of his professional trade mark. He is a tough young racketeer, matching his wits against a lot of other tough young racketeers, and the assignment he finds as congenial as he did the chore of bodyguarding Paul Muni in that other murderous masterpiece, "Scarface," in which he died so handsomely that he is still reaping the rewards of a natural proficiency in dramas of homicide and sawed-off gunnery.

His Nick Darrow, alias Ollie Snell, is a person of some note in any census of underworld personages—calculating, cold, hard and a total stranger to the perhaps fallacious theory that self preservation is the first law of nature. He rushes in where angels would fear for their heads! However, he rushes in engagingly and does much to make "Under Cover Man" an interesting and fast-moving screen entertainment.

There are numerous others who accomplish much toward the same end. Nancy Carrol, as the girl in the case, for example, manages to shake off a good deal of the affectation that has marred her work of late and make Lora Madigan a grief-stricken sister of some believability. Then there are Lew Cody and Gregory Ratoff, as the crooks; Roscoe Karns in a role that will fool you completely; Noel Francis as a gangster's moll, and David Landau, as the police inspector. All work smoothly, intelligently and well.

The stage bill is largely dominated by the vibrant voice and ingratiating personality of Miss Sylvia Froos, who microphones a long list of songs that chalked her up as the hit of yesterday's second performance, the one reviewed. The Donatella Brothers and Carmen weren't getting over too well with their piano-accordioning, saxophoning and dancing until they brought Papa and Mama Donatella out to show what can be done with a shepherd's horn and a tambourine. These simple instruments they converted into mirrors of true and finished artistry.

Si Willis and Joan Davis clowned through a brief interval of music, banter and dance, with Miss Davis carrying the heavy end. Maxine Doyle, arrayed in all her glory, opened the proceedings by introducing the Three Olympics in dizzying feats of roller skating, an item which, to me, is the spinach of the amusement menu!

A simply swell "Merry Melody" cartoon, "Three's a Crowd," a Frank Orth-Ann Codee comedy, "Trouble Indemnity," not too hot, and Mr. McNamee's news reporting complete a program of unsual preholiday merit.

METROPOLITAN

"SCARLET DAWN." Warner Brothers picturization of Mary McCall, jr.'s novel, "Revolt," starring Douglas Fairbanks, jr., supported by Nancy Carroll and Lilyan Tashman. Directed by William Dieterle. Reviewed Friday night by Dorothea Lewis.

Fairbanks, jr., must have had a yen to be very virile and to ogle the pretty girls, and Warner Brothers must have had some spare time a few dozen Russian costumes, several old newsreels of the Czar of Russia, and a couple of cameras that take dark, shadowy pictures—or maybe you really don't have to have any reason at all for making a movie.

This is so very, very innocuous for a piece about a Russian baron and a servant girl, and so very short for anything at all, that we suspect the censors snipped the scarlet out.

And Junior is an awfully nice boy but he isn't an arrogant Russian nobleman nor a topnotch ogler. Usually an equally nice actor, he is handicapped this time through the photographer's concentration on his hot, damp and uncomfortable moments, his just-waking moments, and his moments minus a shirt—none of these being, we believe conducive to great drama.

Baron Nikiti is one of the many titled Russians forced to flee from their country by the revolution. He is accompanied, somewhat against his will at first, by a faithful servant girl, Tanyusha, who keeps saying time and again that he is still her master, and saying nothing much else. Eventually they get to Constantinople and eventually, Tanyusha being pretty, they get married.

Then Nikiti becomes a dish washer and not liking that, leaves Tanyusha and becomes a gigolo, and not liking that, gets deported to Russia and finds Tanyusha again, being deported at the same time and from the same pier. Being a Russian picture, it ends then and there, just like that.

The zero weather forced down the plane carrying the much-touted pictures of the Notre Dame-Southern California football game to the Metropolitan. However, the management expects them in time for unreeling at the first show today.

The newsreel adds some royalty, Ogden Mills and Christmas shopping to the fare.

LOEW'S FOX

"NIGHT AFTER NIGHT." Paramount picturization of the novelette, "Single Night," by Louis Bromfield, adapted to the screen by Vincent Lawrence and Kathryn Scola, featuring George Raft, Constance Cummings, Roscoe Karns, Mae West, Alison Skipworth, Louis Calhern and Wynne Gibson. Directed by Archie Mayo. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

Into a novelette so brief that it was possible to publish it in a single installment, Louis Bromfield packed enough action, romance, excitement and diversity of character to afford ample material for a colorful, amusing and smartly diverting screen play of a former pugilist, turned speakeasy proprietor, and a daughter of former wealth, orphaned and stripped of her riches.

The romantic point of Mr. Bromfield's entertaining but unimportant fiction stems from the fact that Joe Anton sets up the most exclusive and most bizarre of New York's "speaks" in the imposing brownstone front in which the mysterious, lonesome and slightly bewildered Miss Healy was born. Bereft of her accustomed luxuries, she finds it possible to indulge her reveries by visiting Joe's gaudy resort night after night dreaming dreams about the place as it used to be. From this contact springs the series of events that lend the picture a quality of sophisticated and clandestine appeal that few before it have possessed.

Here we meet all the types that might be expected to frequent an expensive night spot in New York—plus a few one never would expect to find there. All become involved in the thrilling developments of two nights and a day—Joe, the Healy girl, his former inamorata, Iris Dawn; Maudie, an earlier benefactor; Mabel Jellyman, the tutor, engaged to convert Signor Anton, from a gutter rat into gentleman, and a heterogeneous mob of attaches, playboys and girls, gangsters and hangers-on.

The story comes out about as you would expect, whether or not you have read it in original Bromfield. It is garishly mounted—as befits its subject matter—not badly directed and played sufficiently well to be consistently enlivening.

George Raft, as Joe, does not vary his method one iota from that so successfully followed in "Under Cover Man," in another column. He is better dressed and more impeccably groomed, perhaps, but his terse speech and roving eye are not altered in their uses, although I believe he is permitted to smile now and again in this higher geared of the two charades.

Constance Cummings, in the role of the girl with the overpowering nostalgia, seems to me miscast. The girl's mental turmoil Miss Cummings fails with remarkable thoroughness to apprehend. I'm not sure it would not have been better casting to have put her in "Under Cover Man" and Nancy Carroll in "Night After Night."

One thing is certain, however, and that is that Mae West, Wynne Gibson, Alison Skipworth and Roscoe Karns, as Joe's old friend, recent sweetheart, tutor and secretary-bodyguard, reading from left to right, turn in flawless performances in roles that are rich in opportunities.

The stage bill is prolific in "names." Lee Morse, the deep-throated songstress from the South, and Jacques Renard and his orchestra, introducing the Eaton Boys, a male quartet, and Do-Re-Mi, a trio of feminine vocalists, head the list with a long catalogue of numbers that were rousingly received by yesterday's first audience.

Maximo opens the stage bill on the slack wire and is followed by Frank Davie and Della Darnell, in a comedy skit that got over well. Mills, Kirk and Martin again demonstrate to what comic perfection lunacy can be brought, and Phil Lampkin does some very splendid cuff-shooting in converting selections from "Carmen" into an orchestral hit.

The Fox Movietone News, with Al Jolson as Santa Claus, singing "Sonny Boy," completes a bill that matches the Earle's in keeping a step ahead of the preholiday average. N. B. B.

PALACE

"RED DUST." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of the play by Wilson Collison, adapted to the screen by John Mahin, costarring Jean Harlow and Clark Gable, with Mary Astor, Gene Raymond, Tully Marshall, Donald Crisp, Forrester Harvey and Willie Fung. Directed by Victor Fleming.

So perfect a combination of judicious casting, flambuoyant drama and picturesque environment could hardly have been expected to do less than engage the interest of discriminating amusement seekers for a fortnight. Indeed, I believe the forecast was specifically made in this space a week ago.

However that may be, the initial appearance of Jean Harlow and Clark Gable as a tempestuous team of rubber jungle lovers does go on another week, thus affording a renewed opportunity for those who enjoy rough humor, daring drama and forbidden lovemaking to have the rowdy time of their lives!

The story of "Red Dust" is concocted on the familiar formula of the domestic triangle, complicated a bit by a brazen hussy from up the river who manages to irritate the boss of the plantation no end until, in the end, she saves him from a situation of some peril for all concerned.

Miss Harlow, of course, is the brazen hussy; Mr. Gable the camp foreman, with a rough exterior but a heart of gold, or something. The object of his temporary infatuation is effectively played by Mary Astor and her husband by Gene Raymond. Tully Marshall, Donald Crisp and Willy Fung are among others who contribute to the highly spiced episodes of the drama.

Charlie Chase in "Now We'll Tell One," a Mickey Mouse cartoon, "The Klondike Kid," and a new issue of the Metrotone News continue the auxiliary features of an ace bill.

RKO-KEITH'S

"THE UNWRITTEN LAW." Majestic Picture's filmization of the story by John Krafft, featuring Greta Nissen, Lew Cody, Purnell Pratt and Mary Brian, with "Skeets" Gallagher, Hedda Hopper, Louise Fazenda and Theodore Von Eltz. Directed by Christy Cabanne. Reviewed Friday night by M. A. McKavitt.

Theatergoers to Keith's showhouse this week will be treated to not only an interesting feature picture loaded with able actors and actresses, but with one of the best short subjects which we have ever had the privilege of seeing. Although the plot of this tale is well known, it still carries the punch. It is done with finished actors, never has a heavy moment, is carefully directed, well photographed, and will be particularly appealing to those who tire easily of frothy, plotless drama.

You will see some lovely close-ups of lovely Mary Brian. You will observe Lew Cody, the screen's most detested and unrivaled traducer, doing a most commendable job. You will be fascinated with the smartly gowned and spirited Greta Nissen. You will wince at the erratic antics of Louise Fazenda, whose fame as a comedienne is rapidly evanescing. You will be mystified by the hypnotic voice of Abu Zeyd, a hindoo, as played by Mischa Auer. You will be mildly amused at "Skeets" Gallagher. You will be spellbound by the excellent dramatic fire displayed in a certain scene featuring Lew Cody and Hedda Hopper. You will like Theodore Von Eltz and Purnell Pratt and admire their splendid characterizations.

Do we have to tell you that the story is based on infidelity? That after nineteen years the betrayed one finally finds his man?

You have no doubt surmised that we enjoyed "The Unwritten Law," but we were positively and thoroughly enthusiastic about that short subject (which isn't so short)—"The Devil's Rope," which presents a thrillingly realistic and expertly photographed dramatization of the famous ascent of the defiant Matterhorn by Edward Whymper, the English mountain climber. If life has been dull, then see this death-defying climb. It will be as stimulating as a stiff shot of adrenalin.

The Pathe News topped off an entertaining screen program, although we could have used a little comedy.

COLUMBIA

"UPTOWN NEW YORK." World Wide picturization of a story by Vina Delmar, featuring Jack Oakie, supported by Shirley Grey, Leon Waycoff, George Cooper and Henry Armetta. Directed by Victor Schertzinger. Reviewed Friday evening by J. F. Brady.

"Uptown New York" does have its moments—a point or two where the real art of its performers can be put to test, and once in a while a flash or two to bring a smile or arouse real sympathy.

Jack Oakie does well with the script and makes a bashful and innocent lover (Eddie Doyle), but that character does not seem to harmonize with the locale of the story. Shirley Grey, as Patricia, pretty and lovable, puts over a splendid performance throughout, poised on all occasions.

The story, as a whole, might have been improved by a little quicker action.

Max Silver and Patricia are sweethearts, Max having recently received his doctor's degree, his parents select his bride, of their own race, and plan for Max's study abroad by which they hope for him to become a world-famous surgeon. Of course, Patricia is heart broken and later takes up with Eddie Doyle, whose pride is his penny vending machine, by which he hopes to make his way to fortune.

The triangle love tangle brings about its troubles for all concerned, but there is a happy ending when all are made to realize that married people should not continue to love single people or other married people.

In the supporting bill, the "Sportsman's Paradise" release specializes in wonderful scenic views; "The Dentist," with W. C. Fields, in his usual vein, and the Paramount News has its interesting items of news.

Colored Singers Receive Ovation at Gala Concert

An audience of more than 2,000 filled the auditorium of the Metropolitan African Methodist Episcopal Church last night to hear the Southernaires, concert and radio singers, in recital, and accorded them an ovation, following a striking rendition of "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny," at the conclusion of the program, in tribute to James Zland, former Howard University student and minstrel, the author of this and other famous Southern melodies.

The program, principally of spirituals, added dramatic features, and freak instrumentation, to such songs as "Goin' Down South," "Wade in the Water," "Deep River," and Will Marion Cook's medley. Especially pleasing was the dramatic rendition of the "Negro Work Song," and a bass solo from the opera, "Old Man Satan." The presentation by colored music lovers was in the nature of a testimonial to the Negro radio quartette.

Walter Nothey, of 1320 Good Hope road southeast, who was driving the machine which struck Whalen, was arrested and charged with drunken driving and bad brakes.

THE PARADINE CASE

By ROBERT HICHENS

SYNOPSIS.

Sir Malcolm Keane, K. C., is asked by Sir Simon Flaquer, a noted English solicitor, to defend Mrs. Paradine, who has been arrested for the murder of her husband, who had been blinded in the war and had been decorated with the V. C. Sir Simon tells Keane that Mrs. Paradine is a beautiful Dane, who had been rescued from a life of degradation in Copenhagen by an American diplomat, taken as a servant to America and later made her way to England. She'd married Maj. Paradine after the war. He agrees to handle the case and becomes immediately intensely interested in it.

Sir Malcolm is happily married to Gay, but when he calls on Mrs. Paradine at Holloway jail he feels the strange fascination of his beautiful client. He is worried because Lord Horfield might be named as judge of the trial and endeavors to be friendly to him. He and Gay give a little dinner party to which they ask Lord and Lady Horfield. After the party Sir Malcolm studies a photograph of William Marsh, Col. Paradine's valet, and the idea occurs to him that the man who acted in so intimate a relation to his blind master might have had an opportunity to kill him. His plan of defense begins to take form in his mind.

Gay meets a Swedish painter, Baron Sedelsward, at the Flaquers', and he invites her to a private view of his paintings. Sir Malcolm decides to go to the exhibition when he learns that Sedelsward was acquainted with Mrs. Paradine. He asks the painter to dine with him that night.

Judy Flaquer, Gay's friend, suspects that Sir Malcolm is neglecting Gay because of his abnormal interest in his client.

KEANE found Mrs. Paradine standing up. She looked at that moment so entirely at her ease that it was difficult to realize that she was a prisoner facing an accusation of murder. Only the bareness of the cell, the strangeness of such a woman standing to receive a caller in such surroundings, suggested that this woman was not free, was not a cordial, self-possessed, unself-conscious hostess greeting a welcome visitor. And once again Keane marveled at his client.

"I didn't expect you this morning."

She spoke as usual in the rather husky voice, weighing a little on the words, as Swedes do, and Keane asked himself:

"Why do I like that husky sound? Why do I like these accented words, this suggestion of almost chanting? Is it beautiful? No. Surely Gay's clear light voice is more beautiful. But this voice troubles something right down in my heart."

"I had to come," he said, in his legal voice. "Since I saw you I've been thinking perpetually about your case, and I've had a long talk with Sir Simon Flaquer. This afternoon I'm to have another long talk with him."

"Yes?"

"I'm not satisfied with the defense. It isn't strong enough. It lacks backbone. You can take this from me. I'm an old hand at defense and can judge where weakness and strength lie as no outsider can, as even you couldn't. Unless we can strengthen it when the trial comes I may find myself in great difficulties. I have in the past, as you probably know, managed to pull off things by strong emotional appeals to juries, by bursts of eloquence by fierce determination to get a verdict somehow. But your case comes up before Lord Horfield, and nothing of that kind is likely to have any weight with him, especially coming from me. With some judges it does have a certain influence. I have sometimes seen that a judge is against me and yet been able in my final speech for the defense to unsettle him sufficiently to snatch a verdict. There are emotional judges, and I have more chance with them, being what I am, than with a judge like Lord Horfield. Now, Mrs. Paradine, you must trust me implicitly and——"

"I do," she said earnestly and looking straight into his eyes.

"You do! That's good! That's what I want!"

He had a longing just then to take both her long hands in his and hold them fast as he went on speaking. But there stood the silent figure between the glass, that cursed warder who would never leave Mrs. Paradine alone until she was free or sentenced. And he gripped his left with his right hand and continued:

"You mustn't mind if I'm brutally frank in what I'm going to say to you."

"I shan't mind," she said.

And he noticed that suddenly the strange white blankness came into her face and over her face, shutting her out from him.

"I have been utterly frank," he said, "for your sake."

"I wish it," she said.

But still she looked completely blank. And even her voice sounded blank.

"Very well!" he said.

He paused, collecting his thoughts. He had, since his last interview with Sir Simon, made up his mind quite definitely what line he wished and meant to take in her defense; it was a line giving scope to his peculiar talents, which was, as it were, in accord with his temperament. It was audacious; it was startling; it was even sensational.

"You know that I believe in your innocence," he began.

"I hope so," she said in an expressionless voice, which he felt she had deliberately forced to be expressionless.

"But believing and proving are desperately different things. There's a great deal against you and we must face that. To save you I consider, in fact, I'm absolutely convinced, that we must lead the jury to suppose that the onus of the crime of Col. Paradine's death lies on a pair of masculine shoulders. We must shift the burden definitely from you not on to space, as it were, but on to another. Some one's got to carry it. I've been in murder cases in which I've got off the accused and yet left the truth of the crime in the dark. Who the murderer was has never been found out. It was so in the Leith case. It was so in the notorious Ratcliffe case. In both I was successful. In both the perpetrator of the crime has remained unknown. But I can't take a chance this time. Now tell me, and you must be absolutely truthful with me or I shall never be able to save you—haven't you got it in mind all this time who murdered your husband?"

Instead of replying to this question Mrs. Paradine startled Keane by putting one to him.

"Tell me first, please," she said, and the blank sound had gone out of her voice, replaced by a sound of determination, "whether you are inventing a murderer or whether you believe you have found one?"

"Inventing a murderer!" said Keane. "What do you mean, Mrs. Paradine?"

"What you said just now implied to me that you had been looking about for a weapon in my defense. I want to know whether you have a conviction that you know who the murderer of my husband is, or whether you have been looking about for some one whom the jury might be made to suppose might be the murderer. There's a difference between the two, isn't there—please?"

"I believe the murderer of your husband to be his former servant William Marsh."

"I knew you were going to say that," she said calmly, and he didn't detect the least quiver in her face full of northern beauty.

"How could you know?"

"I think it is fairly obvious that, failing me, William Marsh had greater opportunities than any one else for destroying my husband. He was perpetually with him in intimacy. When you spoke of masculine shoulders I knew at once whom you meant. But it's no use."

"What d'you mean by no use?" asked Keane in his defiant manner, instinctively squaring his broad shoulders, raising his head and looking aggressive. "Do you suppose that I should ever think of putting forward a defense that was no use?"

"Marsh adored my husband. Every one who knew them knows it. Witnesses could be called from everywhere to prove it—from the regiment, from the household. Even I could not deny it. And I shall give evidence."

"Ah!" said Keane, sharply. "That's just what I have to discuss with you, your giving of evidence."

"We have discussed it," she said, firmly.

"Not with this new line of defense in our minds. Do you know"—he spoke in his most impressive voice—"that, though I shall do all I can for you, I can't save you unless you help me in the way I want. You must help in my way. You must not stand out against me obstinately and cling to your own views of how things can be done. I know better than you do what will be needed to save your life. Do you hear me, Mrs. Paradine? To save your life!"

"What can I do but tell the truth?" she asked. "What more do you want of me than that?"

"I want that you shall not do yourself perhaps irreparable harm by bungling the truth."

"I don't think I quite understand."

"Your evidence in this case will be vitally important—you realize that?"

"Yes. I am not a fool, Sir Malcolm."

She did not say it either angrily or with cold brutality. She said it quite simply as one may make an obvious statement of fact, obvious but which nevertheless at the moment necessity seemed to call for. In spite of the apparent simplicity, however, he was startled, feeling that he was suddenly confronted by a new facet of her character.

"I am no fool, either," he said. "And therefore I like to see exactly where I am going and to walk firmly. We, you and I, can leave the stumbling in the dark to just the fools. Now there is something which I don't understand and which I wish you to clear up for me."

"If I can!" she said.

"I think you surely can if you have the wish and intention to."

"What is it, please?"

"I don't understand—and neither does Sir Simon Flaquer—your attitude to William Marsh and his attitude to you. We can't ask him about it. He isn't our witness and we haven't access to him. But you can surely help us if you choose to. And it is very important indeed that you should. Marsh is, or seems to be, hostile to you. If he persists in his hostility there's no doubt that in the trial he may do you most serious harm. You on the other hand have never had a word to say against Marsh. And you have given me to understand—I don't think I'm wrong in this—that if you should give any evidence at all in reference to Marsh it would be in his favor. Now that won't do. I don't know this man Marsh. But I have considerable experience in the weighing of human character. Marsh is certainly no ordinary man. I've seen and heard enough of him to know that. He may be deceptive. He may be cunning. He may be wicked. You—tell me what he is!"

"I have known him only as a most faithful, devoted servant."

Mrs. Paradine said this with a sort of slow earnestness, pushing out her round white chin a little as she spoke and fixing her long pale eyes on Keane, who, remembering the reiterated assertion of Sir Simon that he was positive there was some secret understanding between Mrs. Paradine and Marsh, felt baffled by this statement and inclined to doubt its sincerity.

"Are you playing with me, Mrs. Paradine?" he said with impetuous sternness. "I cannot believe that you only know Marsh in the way you describe. Can't you be frank with me?"

"What is it you want me to tell you?"

"Exactly why, in your belief, Marsh is hostile to you. The real reason."

"He has never told it to me. But I think he was always acutely jealous of me."

Christian Science Churches

"Is the universe, including man, evolved by atomic force?" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The Golden Text is from Deuteronomy 10:14: "Behold, the heaven and the heaven of heavens is the Lord's thy God, the earth also, with all that therein is." Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "By the word of the Lord were the heavens made: and all the host of them by the breath of his mouth. He gathereth the waters of the sea together as an heap: he layeth up the depth in storehouses. Let all the earth fear the Lord: let all the inhabitants of the world stand in awe of him. For he spake, and it was done; he commanded, and it stood fast." (Psalms 33:6-9.)

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science Text Book, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "CREATOR—Spirit; Mind; Intelligence; the animating divine Principle of all that is real and good; self-existent Life, Truth and Love; that which is perfect and eternal; the opposite of matter and evil, which have no Principle; God, who made all that was made and could not create an atom or an element the opposite of Himself." (Page 583.)

"1900 Years Ago," Sermon Topic.

CUT EXPENSES, NOT PAY.

Interest in legislation affecting the salaries of Government employes shifts from the House to the Senate. With passage of the Treasury-Postoffice supply bill, the House has committed itself to continuation of the economy act with virtually no changes and has made manifest its opposition to further pay cuts. In effect the House has passed on to the Senate two important questions: Shall further sacrifices be required of Federal workers, and, Shall the abuses of the economy act be corrected?

Indications are that the Senate economy committee is aware of the injustices in the furlough plan and kindred measures adopted at the last session. Undoubtedly an attempt will be made to eliminate those abuses. Experience of the last few months has brought the inequities of the economy act into bold relief. It should not be difficult to revise it so that no group of employes will be subjected to unwarranted hardships.

The more important question is: How far beyond the correction of abuses will the Senate committee go? A number of plans are under consideration to impose further sacrifices upon Government workers. Senator Bingham let it be known that the committee is investigating a five-day week plan which would involve a further reduction in annual salaries. This will be a great disappointment to Government employes, and it will meet with stubborn opposition, if approved by the committee.

For several reasons the five-day week does not seem to be applicable to the Government service. Nearly all groups of employes prefer to take whatever leave is allowed them in longer periods than two days per week. Furthermore, general application of the five-day week in Government departments would be a great inconvenience to the public. Government service ought to be available every day, except Sunday. Nothing could be gained by applying the five-day week where it can not operate satisfactorily. The committee ought to remember, also, that the furlough system now in effect was designed to apply the principle of the five-day week to Government workers without limiting all Government service to five days per week.

The economy committee would do well to eliminate the abuses and inequities from the present law and rely upon reductions in the general supply bills for additional economies. The House slashed nearly $33,000,000 from the Treasury-Postoffice appropriation measure. This is more than could be saved by a moderate cut in Federal salaries. If the other appropriation bills are trimmed to a minimum there will be no need of calling upon Government workers to make greater contributions. The true road to economy is not in depriving workers of their fair earnings, but in lopping off huge extravagances in the big appropriation bills.

FEWER WOMEN WORK.

Women have not been able to hold their jobs as well as men during the depression, according to the annual report of Miss Mary Anderson, chief of the Women's Bureau. Unemployment reaches a higher percentage among feminine workers, probably because the jobs they hold are, as a rule, less important than the jobs held by men. At any rate the steady increase in the percentage of women among the workers of the Nation seems to have been checked.

Feminists resent this alleged "discrimination" against their sex. They maintain that women should have the same rights, the same treatment and the same wages as men when they do similar work. But many sages will rejoice to see the number of women in industry diminishing. There is something fundamentally incongruous about the presence of 10,000,000 women in gainful occupations outside of their homes, when more than that number of men are utterly without work.

It is true, of course, that some women have families to support, and that they must work or fall back upon charity. In such instances a job is always preferable. Yet millions of men who are heads of families have no work. Inasmuch as some must depend upon charity, it is entirely proper that men should continue working in greater proportion than women.

It is worthy of note that only one-tenth of the 668,661 women out of work when the 1930 census was taken were heads of families, with others dependent upon them for support. Nearly half of the women gainfully employed are married. Thousands of others have no dependents. The presence of these women in industry makes it more difficult for men with families to secure work, and has a depressing influence on wages.

The momentary gains of a job at meager wages are in conflict with the greater gains that would come from reduction of the labor surplus so that wages would be forced up. Women who take the broader viewpoint will not be alarmed at the tendency of the depression to reduce the percentage of feminine workers.

BUSINESS CAUTION.

Business and financial experts find little trouble in agreeing on why trade revival lags; it is simply that consumers are not buying in sufficient quantities to justify expansion of production to absorb the unemployed and put idle capital to work. As to how this desirable end can be reached there is wide divergence of opinion. Roger W. Babson holds that entirely too much emphasis is placed on economy. He would divert a portion of the funds now being spent for charity to promote judicious spending.

The original efforts of economy movements to eliminate abuses and waste in connection with veterans' aid and other governmental expenditures he finds praiseworthy, but the general preaching of economy at this time is condemned as both wrong and dangerous. The time to have preached economy, Mr. Babson says, was during the boom years, not today; now it is important to emphasize the necessity of rational spending. Only as more is spent will more be produced; only as more is produced will there be more to divide.

"Men can be put back to work," Mr. Babson holds, "interest and rents can be earned, and general prosperity will return, only by enlisting the unemployed to create, under proper leadership, a desire to buy. The Government should subsidize, not idleness, nor the building of public works, nor any other charity, but rather advertising and selling. Unemployment will not be solved by stabilizing production at present low figures. To offer restricted production as a cure for unemployment is a crime against the American standard of living."

Mr. Babson predicts that prosperity will return "in spite of anything which governments and bankers can do to prevent it." He bases his belief on four facts—a change of heart that is taking place in the American people; the fact that deflation has largely been completed; the fact that consumption today is exceeding production, and the fact that there are more idle funds in the United States today than ever before.

There is no question regarding the amounts of money available for investment. The heavy over-subscriptions for Federal issues show that it is seeking returns, however small. The banks have ample funds for industrial needs, but conservative producers are reluctant to borrow when they are not sure there will be buyers for their goods, and the banks will not loan to the more intrepid manufacturers who can not indicate a sure market. What is to break this stalemate? Mr. Babson thinks it can be done by an intensified campaign of salesmanship. He foresees, as all can, that it will be forced eventually by the depletion of existing stocks.

Just now another factor enters as finance and industry await the outcome of present congressional deliberations. First of all, restored confidence depends upon the balancing of the budget and the retirement of the Government from the field as a continual borrower. If this bugbear of uncertainty can be removed and no alarming legislation appears in the nature of exorbitant expenditures or inflationary measures, there is good reason to believe that the present lull will be replaced by a new era of returning confidence that will insure improvement in general business conditions.

CHINA AND THE SOVIET.

Japan is more concerned over the resumption of diplomatic relations by China and Soviet Russia than with the attempts of the League of Nations to conciliate the Manchurian dispute. China too seems to be more intent upon strengthening her own position than upon the application of further pressure on the league. Every new development diminishes hope that the league will deal with the Manchurian issue with courageous determination.

Both Japan and China have been showing deference to the Soviet since their quarrel over Manchuria reached a crisis. Not long ago it was rumored that Moscow would recognize Manchukuo and throw moral support to the Japanese cause. But the Soviet is jealous of Japan's gains in Manchuria. Furthermore, the Soviet is anxious to win favor in China because that vast country has always been considered as the most fertile field for the spread of communism. The sudden decision to extend the hand of friendship to China is at once a warning to Tokyo not to encroach too far upon Russian interests in Manchuria, and a bid for the extension of Bolshevism in China.

The Nationalist government at Nanking realizes that China is crouching between two powerful foes. For five years China has refused to restore normal relations with the Soviet because of the grave danger that her distressed people might succumb to communism. Even now the government is fighting communist hordes who have control of various sections. But Nanking sees even a greater menace across the Yellow Sea. It is feared that Japan's aggression in Manchuria may be only the beginning of conquest in China. For the moment the fear of a Japanese invasion has overcome the dread of communism from Siberia. China will accept an ambassador from Moscow without even stipulating that propaganda shall be forbidden. The communist drive in China is now regarded as the lesser of two evils.

It is improbable that China would have taken such action if the League of Nations had manifested any promise of decisive action on the Manchurian dispute. But the league has been frustrated by the determined and aggressive policy of Japan. The Tokyo government refuses to submit the dispute to a conciliation committee on which the United States and Soviet Russia would be represented, or to any other conciliation body. If the league meets this rebuff with indecision and vacillation, China may be driven into a closer alliance with Soviet Russia to protect herself against Japan.

OPTIONAL RETIREMENT.

Retirement of Government employes has always been a perplexing problem. Congress has attempted to fix definite age limits beyond which employes should not be allowed to continue at their jobs, but the result is to cut off some who are still capable and efficient, and to continue in the service others whose capacity for work has been exhausted. For several years the Civil Service Commission has been endeavoring to induce Congress to change this policy.

In its current report the commission once more lays down a dictum that "no inflexible retirement age can meet the interests of the service." It is impossible to determine in advance when the average member of any group will reach the age of impaired efficiency. But even if that were possible, says the commission, that average age would be too high or too low for most of the individuals in the group. Thus the Government would lose either by keeping wornout employes or by retiring valuable workers before they are in any way debilitated.

This fact leads the commission to recommend "uniform optional retirement after 30 years of service." It may be assumed that most employes still in good health and capable of holding their jobs would desire to continue after the expiration of their 30-year period. Employes not capable of carrying on could drop out earlier than is permitted under the present arrangement. The chief objection to this plan is the practical difficulty of separating the efficient from the inefficient and disabled at the expiration of their 30-year periods.

One prominent employe in the Government service was recently retained beyond his retirement age on the ground that he was indispensable to the service. Then he was relieved of his duties (for which he was indispensable) and assigned to some other work. The administration of a flexible retirement law is extremely difficult. The commission has decided, however, that the abuses which arise under a flexible law are less serious than the maladjustments that result from trying to measure the working periods of all employes by the same yard stick.

If the flexible system should also provide maximum ages for retirement of the various groups some abuses might be eliminated. The maximum ages could be placed high enough to allow any normal individual to continue in the service so long as he is physically and mentally fit. Rigid and impartial examinations to determine the fitness of employes over the optional retirement age would also be required.

Camille Chautemps, who is trying to organize a French government, was once premier for four days. But how long would American premiers last under parliamentary government?

CHRISTMAS GREEN

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

The ages consistently have crowned their triumphs and their joys with symbolic green. We continue the tradition in this day, with special emphasis at this period of the year.

In ancient Egypt, ere Moses was; in storied Greece and desert Babylon; in imperial Rome, from wolf den to forum, green held its prestige in crowns of victory or symbols of popular rejoicing. When Druid priests went forth in the light of the moon to cut the sacred mistletoe with golden sickle, they little dreamed that this illustration of man's dependence upon God would come to light the faith of Christian centuries in charming wise.

The green of the oasis is the hope of the desert, for where it rises there is the water of life. In old Israel the palms of victory were waved in glad abandon. In Greece, Pan's altars were adorned with pine, her heroes crowned with laurel, her shrines made beautiful with ivy. In Rome facade and pillar and arch and palace were decked with branches, festoons and ropes of faith and triumph and rejoicing.

We are no different in this day. As we approach the triumph of Christmas, to commemorate the birth of the Man of Galilee, we turn to the holly, the pine and the laurel with a natural yearning. We deck our stores and our homes with the green brilliance, we fill vases and windows—it is as much a part of the Yuletide as the fabled deer and sleigh which hastens between the stars to make the heart of children glad, to bring sweet content to the elders who witness their joy.

So the men and the women of the mountains send us their treasures of holly and laurel and pine, and for the time the dull and smoky city takes on cheer and brightness.

The Christmas season is a good season; shorn of its crown of green it would not be what it is to many devotees in many lands.

Mama's Wallflower Daughter.

POST HASTE.

Do they think that Uncle Sam, who has side-stepped the League of Nations and the World Court, will walk into a debt trial with the jury packed eleven to one?

Single file, brothers, one at a time, just as before, when you dickered for discounts on 60-year settlements.

Senators La Follette and Blaine are two Republican Progressive Democrats frank enough to vote with the party with which they are affiliated at last accounts.

If the farmers begin getting "adjustment certificates" will they be wanting them cashed in advance, like the veterans?

A free-speech zone is proposed for Washington, a sort of Hyde Park, where visiting "armies" can blow off steam. Don't locate it near Capitol Hill, which is already equipped.

Congress will take only a three-day Christmas recess. Several snappy comments have been suggested—all unprintable.

Miss Grape has been dropped by Bill Beer. It wasn't that he thought he was any better, but her vin rouge was rather high for his crowd.

Hindsight howls against the Farm Board's unfortunate stabilization effort are -ociferous, but, boy! you should have heard them if they hadn't tried it.

Since we must think and drink in fractions, let's figure it out. If a pint of beer is to contain 4 per cent of alcohol and a pint of wine 12 per cent, and since a pint holds two glasses of beer and six of wine, two glasses of beer and two glasses of wine would contain exactly the same amount of alcohol.

Oh, well, of course, if you are going to use beer glasses for wine you might as well continue relations with the bootlegger.

One advantage we have in Washington over Florida and California is that we don't have to take an oath every ten minutes that a little seasonable winter weather is unprecedented and will never happen again.

The uncertainty of beer's appearance on the bar is also shared by its subsequent fate before the bar.

Another timely resolution is not to do your Christmas shopping surly.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE CHOICE.

And one man said:
"All hope is dead
And I wish that I were, too!
For rough is the way
And the skies are gray
And I can't get work to do.
I've lost the things which I thought were mine,
And it's now no use for the sun to shine."

In similar straits,
Betrayed by the fates
And stripped of his worldly gear,
Another man said:
"Well, I'm far from dead,
And I don't want to die this year!
There's a lot proved false which I thought was true,
But I want to be here when the sun breaks through."

All men must choose
Of these opposite views,
And it's easy enough to fail,
If you're willing to quit
You can argue for it
With a truly deplorable tale,
But always the difficult thing to do
Is to stick to a problem and see it through.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY dear Louise: I feel as though I should begin this letter with an apology, for it seems an invasion of your privacy. You have a right to a secret chamber in your soul, uninvaded by well-meaning parents.

I am not referring to any specific case, however, and it isn't an intrusion to discuss general policies.

The general policy I have in mind concerns the boy friend who demands a monopoly.

Perhaps you haven't met that kind yet, but you will. And about the third time he buys you an ice cream soda, he will assume that you are private property and insist that you avoid the company of other boys.

I wonder how you will answer him.

I think these moderns who get liquored up and forget they are married are rotten to the core, and I think young people who fall in love and pledge themselves to one another for life should desire no dates except with one another. If a girl engaged to one youth still claims the right to have dates with others, she hasn't yet found her mate and had better break loose while she can.

But while she remains unengaged, no boy has a right to demand a monopoly of her. The boy who does is a pluperfect egoist and his monumental gall and selfishness deserve a thorough squelching.

In effect he says: "Since I have condescended to show an interest in you, I am now your master. The occasional privilege of being with me should satify your desire for masculine company. I shall take you places when it pleases me, and at other times you must sit at home and wait. That may be a little hard on you, but the object of our relationship is my pleasure—not yours."

Maybe that wouldn't offend you, but it should at least serve as a warning. Boys that selfish and inconsiderate are the ones that later in life keep their wives in purgatory. They are jealous and suspicious. They demand everything, yet they howl when asked for a nickel and they spend most of their earnings to show themselves a good time.

Better let the little egoists alone, my dear. But remember that the rule works both ways. Love, DAD.

POLITICAL COMMENT

Chance for LaFollette.

Springfield Republican.

If Mr. Roosevelt seeks to establish a direct link between the Republican progressives or independents of the West and his administration, he need not confine his attentions to the Senate. Gov. La Follette, of Wisconsin, will retire from office at the end of this year. He is a very able young man. He has been governor of a great State. With his brother, Senator La Follette, he remains a power in Wisconsin. With his brother, he turned Wisconsin to Roosevelt in the electoral college. He may entertain such designs in Wisconsin politics during the next four years as to forbid his dissociation from the Republican party. Yet the offer of the post of Secretary of the Interior to this member of the La Follette family by the President-elect would survive as a friendly gesture, much to Mr. Roosevelt's advantage probably, if the offer were necessarily declined.

Republicans of the stalwart breed everywhere would be glad to see one of the La Follettes in the Democratic cabinet because the formal connection would facilitate, in their view, the unobstructed reorganization of the Republican party by its conservative wing.

Hoover's Reorganization.

Detroit News.

Not built to plan, but rather a product of hit-and-miss action in Congress, the Federal Government long has stood in need of radical reorganization. That has been conceded since President Taft, more than twenty years ago, started the first determined drive to accomplish it.

It was prevented then and since only because—as President Hoover now fears regarding the reorganization he has just submitted to Congress—powerful groups in and out of Congress "whose vision is concentrated on some particular function" defeated every proposal for changes which has been made.

World Troubles.

Topeka Capital.

French and German grain growers should be doing relatively well with wheat selling recently in Germany at $1.65 and in France at $1.79 a bushel, yet French farmers have forced the government to create a national farm board, on the American model, to buy and hold wheat at a profitable price. The effect of the tariff of $1.62 in Germany and of $1.71 in France on wheat has been to stimulate production at home. There has accordingly been some decline in the price since July, and this may account for the agitation for a farm board to stabilize prices. The populations are oppressed by artificial food costs in hard times. Meantime American farmers are sinking deeper into the mire.

It is paying money, gold or dollars, out of the country that causes economic grief in Germany and France, and other debtor countries. They would like to pay in goods. Their tariff policy therefore has been to stimulate exports of goods and shut off imports. They have shut off the imports, but finding markets for exports is a horse of a different color.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Does Uncle Sam Himself Repudiate Debts and Obligations?—A Federal Worker Thinks So.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: While attention is focused upon the foreign debt situation and our worthy senators and representatives are up in the air and howling about default and repudiation, would it not be well to consider seriously if they have not placed our worthy Uncle Samuel in the same unenviable and unsavory category?

Under the provision and subsequent interpretations of the economy act Federal employes are arbitrarily deprived of all earned leave not taken prior to the passage of the act, and promotions, transfers and other benefits to which they were justly entitled.

This, in effect, might well be classed as repudiation of a just debt and obligation, as upon entering Government service employes are denied any leave during the first twelve months of service. At the expiration of that period they are entitled to 30 days' leave, with pay, a contractual obligation and promise to pay as legal and binding as the promise to pay a certain salary to the employe, upon performance of contract, in rendering service. And it would have been equally reasonable and just to have denied payment of the previous month's salary.

This is but one of the many injustices and hardships meted out to Federal workers by this act. By and large they have been made "the goat," presumably that our worthy representatives may "point with pride" to their virtuous act of ruthless slaughtering of high Government expense and by this one mighty act insuring a balanced budget.

Why not junk the whole miserable blunder and start over? Federal employes are willing and ready to bear their share of the burden, but they do protest at being unjustly penalized simply because they are Government workers and made to pay twice over, and then some.

"WILLIAM GOAT."

Why Not Turn the Corner of the Mouth Up and Not Down?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Every time a group of people gets together these days, the "depression" is a sure topic of conversation. Why not all make a greater effort to change the subject and talk prosperity instead? It might help to bring it about, for "as a man thinketh, so is he." While I am not a Christian Scientist, I do agree heartily with their belief that much can be achieved or "demonstrated" by holding the thought for good things. We are not famine stricken—there is a surplus of all the necessities of life in the country; plenty of money, if not in evidence, still in existence, and provision made so that no one needs to suffer if he will make his needs known.

So let's try turning our mouths up at the corners instead of down, and do what we can to promote a more cheerful spirit, each one of us, instead of indulging in calamity howling. Why not be ready to begin the new year with a more optimistic spirit?

And let us stop blaming President Hoover for all the misfortunes that have happened since the flood! Give him the respect that is due him as the President of our great republic.

If we do not work together to bring about a radical change for the better, we are likely before long to be facing the situation that no decent man will ever be willing to accept public office. And we shall get out of the future just what we are putting into it.

Mr. Gill Distrusts Brewers Who Offer to Help the Poor Man.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It must be apparent to all those conversant with the tricks of the liquor trade how true to form they are running in assuring the public they are the real protectors of society, as harmless as turtle doves, and will do all possible to help the poor man get his beer without the evils, pains and penalties of ye olden times.

It's great stuff they are putting over in Washington, so palpably deceptive that even a pronounced wet like LaGuardia lost patience with them and told the brewers to get out!

There's nothing new about all this. Aesop years ago pictured it with discerning eye and mind when he told the fable of the wolf and the sheep; of the stray wolf that seemed so harmless and good-natured that the shepherd gradually allowed the unusually endowed wolf to assume the role of watchdog. But one day the shepherd had to go away to the city and left the amiable wolf to play the part of sheepherder. We are told what happened—a shambles—and the moral is plain even today. We seldom learn, only through experience.

WILLIAM GILL.

Mr. MacChesney Not a Classmate of President Hoover.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Associated Press carried a news story, printed in The Post Friday morning, concerning President Hoover's nomination of Nathan William MacChesney, of Chicago, as Minister to Canada.

The biographical sketch of the nominee mentioned that he was born June 1, 1878, and was a classmate at Stanford University of President Herbert Hoover. This statement is erroneous. Herbert Hoover entered Stanford when it first opened in 1891 and graduated with its first four-year class in May, 1895. During Herbert Hoover's college years Mr. MacChesney was a boy between the ages of 13 and 17. He was not a Stanford classmate of President Hoover's or at Stanford in Hoover's time. I happen to know for two reasons: I was a member of that class, its sophomore president, and for the last 30 years have been its permanent alumni secretary.

ADAMS LAUDS VALUE OF MARINE SERVICE

Secretary Silent on Hoover Corps Cut in Testimony Before Committee.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Adams told a House committee, which is considering the proposed reduction in Marine Corps enlisted strength, yesterday that nothing should be done to interfere with corps efficiency.

The Secretary of the Navy did not express himself specifically on President Hoover's recommendation in his budget message, that corps enlisted strength should be reduced from 15,343 to 13,600 men, but a group of high ranking naval officer who followed him testified belief that the cut in strength would reduce efficiency.

Most of the brief statement of the Secretary to the House naval subcommittee told of the value of the Marine Corps to the Navy. He was not questioned.

Those who followed him included Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of Naval Operations, and Rear Admiral J. V. Chase, head of the Navy General Board.

BIDDING GRAND SLAMS.

THE new scoring undoubtedly has caused more Grand Slams to be bid than ever before. This is entirely logical, as the premium is much greater. The former rule, that at least a 3-to-1 chance of making it is necessary, has to be abandoned, as the difference in points is so much greater.

The following hand was bid by Mrs. Culbertson and her partner, Mr. William J. Huske, in the recent Vanderbilt tournament. This tournament was not run under the new scoring; but, even so, the Grand Slam contract was entirely logical.

East—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ K Q 8 6 4 ♡ 4 ◇ A K 8 6 ♣ K 10 9
♠ 3 ♡ 10 9 8 7 6 ◇ J 10 9 5 4 ♣ 4 2	N W E S	♠ 10 5 ♡ K J 5 2 ◇ 7 3 2 ♣ Q 7 6 5
	♠ A J 9 7 2 ♡ A Q 3 ◇ Q ♣ A J 8 3

The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
			Pass
1♠	Pass	3◇(1)	Pass
4♣(2)	Pass	6♠(3)	Pass
7♠(4)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—The Forcing Takeout here is much better than an immediate Raise to five spades. It gives partner an opportunity to judge the fit of the hands and also allows more information to be conveyed at lower levels.

2—An indirect Slam try. The fact that another suit is bid shows that the hand contains extra possibilities. A bid of three no-trump or three spades would be in the nature of a stop signal.

3—The club bid increases the value of the North hand, as there is no longer any danger of duplication. Had South bid three hearts, North would have been content with a five-spade bid.

4—On North's bidding, a Grand Slam must be a laydown. When partner can make a Forcing bid and then leap to a Slam over partner's response without three Aces, his hand must be sufficiently padded with intermediates and be distributionally strong in addition. There is no danger in contracting for seven.

There is nothing to the play, as not even the club finesse is necessary. Two clubs are discarded on the Ace-King of diamonds and two hearts ruffed in Dummy. This is an example of a sound Grand Slam, bid correctly under the old scoring. Under the new scoring it would be reached by any number of players.

What Today Means

"SAGITTARIUS."

IF December 17 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 5 a. m. to 6:30 a. m., from 4 p. m. to 5:15 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 9 a. m. to 10 a. m. and from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m.

A general feeling of restlessness will prevail on this date. It will seem to affect most every one, causing them to be on edge and slightly irritable. Not a good day to make new contacts or to straighten out tangled personal relationships and difficulties. All who have anything to sell will meet with great resistance.

Born on December 17, the child will have a hasty temper and will be inclined to be emotionally unstable. The trait of jealousy will make an early appearance in his make-up. He will be a difficult child to handle. His will be a mental rather than a physical existence and he should be encouraged and if necessary made to take part in outdoor activities.

If December 17 is the date of your birth, you must guard yourself against becoming "hard-boiled," cynical and distrusting. Life gives us all some difficult spots to traverse, but that is no reason for us to lose sight of the finer things that life offers us and to run around feeling depressed, blue and carrying a chip on our shoulders. You must make yourself rise above these things. Do that, and you will find yourself well on the way to success, for you have abilities and qualities that assure you a worthwhile place in your community. Your sincerity and honesty, your direct and forceful manner, your love of humanity, your desire to be of service to others, these and other qualities make you a man capable of assuming leadership and of acting with foresight and judgment.

You place a great value on friendship. Accordingly, you will receive great benefits from the many fine friends who always will be seeking to help you. You are not, yourself, a creative person but you do enjoy tremendously the beauties of life. You have an ear for music, a good sense of rhythm, and should be a splendid dancer. Music uplifts you and inspires you to carry on in spite of the troubles that beset you. You do not appeal emotionally to the opposite sex, but there is a certain strength and firmness about you that draws them to you.

Successful people born on December 17:

Henry R. Worthington, pump inventor.
Frederick W. Lander, engineer and explorer.
Alexander Agassiz, scientist.
William Harkness, astronomer.
William G. Farflow, botanist.
Julian Edwards, musician.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

I WONDER if you realize the importance of tastefully wrapping your Christmas gifts? Not only does this enhance the gift, but it displays your own daintiness and good taste, quite as well as the gift itself.

But this year, let's be practical about it, shall we? Having just combed the city for cardboard boxes in which to pack gloves and stockings and things for this trip, I appreciate boxes as never before—because we couldn't get any! Why don't all of our friends send us Christmas gifts in nice, strong, white cardboard boxes, I ask you plaintively—so we could use them afterward to keep our pretties in? The decorated holly boxes won't do, of course, but the plain white boxes can be wrapped just as attractively and Christmasly and still be of some use to us after Christmas.

Take plain white boxes that have only the least bit of printing on them or the tiniest trade-mark—and paste colored papers over this printing. That makes a serviceable and decorative box, now.

Whatever you do, see that the gift you send is adequately wrapped for its trip through the mails, and adequately wrapped inside to express the good and artistic taste of the lovely lady who is making the gift.

And do not forget to wrap the gift appropriately for the person who is receiving it, will you? The gift you make, for instance, to the maid or janitor, will be doubly appreciated if it is wrapped in what will seem to the maid or janitor a tasteful wrapping—even though it might seem a gaudy one to you! The children's gifts, too, have to be wrapped with the whimsicality that children appreciate, rather than the taste you would display in wrapping a gift for a woman of elegance.

So give a little thought and advanced buying for your Christmas gift wrappings, and right today, too!

* * * *

And send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the new leaflet which tells you in detail how to make Christmas boxes and gives you all sorts of suggestions for wrapping different types of gifts for different people. This leaflet will help you just lots and save buying a lot of unnecessary string and papers and things. Do send for it while you think of it—which is now!

* * * *

If you saw a belt of wide and narrow meshes, big links, supple, elastic, molding themselves to the figure of the wearer, what would you think? You would think what I thought—no doubt—and look closer to see what you could see. . . .

Which would be enough—for seeing would be believing, and nothing else would matter . . . and you would find that the meshes were as supple and, figure hugging as they were for the simple reason that they were made of hundreds of closely twined metal threads—but each link was square and solid looking.

* * * *

If you are really sun tanned—all over, don't wear black for a while. You can have dresses dyed lighter you know. And 'tis the contrasting colors to your skin which are the most effective. Brown is of course mysterious and chic, and the suntanned lady, properly made up, can be most alluring in brown. But somehow, it just misses fire in black—the allure, I mean.

Au revoir!

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

ELLA MAY: Red nose may be caused by poor circulation or indigestion. Take regular outdoor exercises; deep breathing exercises are particularly beneficial. Watch your diet carefully, being sure to include plenty of fresh fruits, green vegetables and raw salads. Avoid excess tea, coffee, stimulants, spicy condiments, alcoholic beverages, sweets and rich, heavy foods of all kinds. Locally, treat the skin gently, cleansing with warm water (never hot water or ice) and a bland soap, rinse with warm, then cool water. Apply a little zinc oxide ointment at night before retiring. In the morning, cleanse again and sponge with cool water to which a few drops of spirit of camphor have been added. A finishing cream, applied sparingly and blended carefully before powdering will tone down the color and keep powder clinging longer.

C. Woods: The complete treatment of Acne, which includes local care, balanced diet, exercises and health rules is too long to print in my column. For full information on the subject, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and it will cheerfully be sent to you.

M. S. Patterson: The simple henna rinse which can be made at home is not harmful to the hair. Add three tablespoonfuls of henna leaves to a pint of water and boil until the liquid becomes dark, reddish-brown in color. Strain and apply to the hair while the liquid is still warm, either full strength if you wish a heavy dose, or diluted if you prefer the lighter henna.

* * * *

Mrs. Place: Pure white hair should be shampooed with only the very finest castile soap. And after the shampoo, a few drops of French bluing may be added to the last rinsing water; or if you wish, you might try a ready-prepared platinum rinse for this purpose. There are special white salves and white brilliantine for gray and white hair. Ask at a reputable toilet goods counter as I cannot mention trade names.

M. A., New Orleans: Equal parts of glycerin and spirit of camphor is fine for softening and whitening the hands. Half a lemon or lemon juice may be rubbed over the hands to bleach them. Allow to dry and follow by massaging with a cream.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

FOOD DEFICIENCY AND THE EYES.

NO small part of our eye troubles result from improper diet.

Among the eye disorders that are charged against food deficiencies are: Night blindness, a form of ulcer of the eye going by the name xerophthalmia, a good part of the trachoma, and still more of the granular lids, sties and redness and itching of the borders of the lids, some of the cases of hemorrhage of the retina and of iritis, and, possibly, some of the glaucoma and cataract.

Of these, ulcerations of the cornea and night blindness are best recognized. In fact, it is said that several thousand years ago Greek physicians recognized that night blindness was due to food deficiency, and the standing remedy for it was a diet rich in liver. The other conditions listed are not generally thought of as being either caused by wrong diet or cured by a good one.

A recent report coming from Japan is to the effect that when the deficient diet has been maintained for only a short time, and the eye is only starting to react, it is the cornea that goes wrong, ulcers result. If the same deficiency is kept up, and even made worse, other parts of the eye suffer. Among these are the lens, the iris, the retina, and, finally, the optic nerve goes under.

The error in a diet may consist in its proteins, starches, fats or minerals, but the vitamins are the principal scurces of trouble. Vitamin A heads the list. A prolonged deficiency in this vitamin is the cause of night blindness and xerophthalmia. To this possibly may be added sties and inflammation and irritation of the border of the lids. Among the sources of vitamin A are carotin from carrots, butter and other yellow oils, milk, cream and cod liver oil.

We now speak of vitamin B as a complex or mixture of several vitamins, one of which is called vitamin E by many. A deficiency in this vitamin causes neuralgia in the eyes, the eye changes of pellagrins, iritis, some trachoma, and granular lids, and perhaps some glaucoma.

Dr. Stucky attributed much of the trachoma that he reported from the mountain districts of Kentucky as due to diet deficiency. The people cooked their meat and vegetables in a pot. The pot liquor they gave to the pigs and they themselves ate what was left. The pigs had good eyesight, could see a revenue officer a long distance off. Their good vision and their athletic abilities made them thief proof. In fact, they could be used as sentries. On the other hand, their owners, because of errors in diet and drink, had poor vision, and some of them were caught by "revenoors."

The foods rich in this vitamin are yeasts of various kinds, some yeast products, but not all, sprouted grain, grain germs, nut germs, whole grain flours, meals and cereals, and most lean meats and eggs.

The principal eye damage charged against vitamin C deficiency is hemorrhage of the retina. Some of that condition, though by no means all, may be due to scurvy and vitamin C deficiency. This also applies to some of the cases of detached retina and of iritis.

Vitamin D deficiency causes rickets and its eye troubles. It may be a factor in some cases of cataract. The best preventive agency is some form of fish liver oil. The best known of these are cod liver oil and halibut liver oil.

MANCHURIAN CASE SOLUTION DELAYED

Hostility Japan and China Show for Conciliation Hampers Progress.

Geneva, Switzerland, Dec. 16 (A.P.). Attempts to solve the Sino-Japanese problem may be postponed until after Christmas because of the hostility Japan and China showed today toward a resolution for conciliating the dispute regarding Manchuria.

Japanese representatives here said they do not want to have the provisional text of the resolution discussed in the absence of Sir John Simon, English delegate, who is in London.

China dislikes having the discussions continue in the absence of Eduard Benes, Czechoslovakian delegate, who tonight planned to leave for Prague, and Salvador Madariaga, who will resume his post in Spain's embassy in Paris on Monday.

Uncertainty as to who will be the next foreign minister of France is another factor in the general tendency to delay.

After Chinese and Japanese representatives had expressed their disapproval of the tentative resolution, the document was sent back today to the drafting committee of the conciliation commission of nineteen for revision.

Earlier today it was considered probable that work of drafting a new resolution would proceed when official replies come from Nanking and Tokyo.

"The assembly will meet before Christmas," one committeeman said, "but I don't know what year."

With Flu Spreading From the West, Authorities Urge Extra Precaution Against Colds

THE so-called Flu, or epidemic of colds, which started on the West Coast a month ago, is spreading rapidly over the country. However, there appears no immediate cause for alarm. In its present form, this year's Flu is generally mild and sometimes lasts only four or five days.

But take no chances! Colds pull down body resistance and often pave the way for pneumonia and other serious complications. For greatest safety and protection, follow Vicks Plan for better Control of Colds. Briefly, the Plan is this:

TO BUILD RESISTANCE: Live normally—don't worry. Get plenty of rest and sleep. Eliminate regularly. Drink lots of water. Eat light, wholesome food.

TO PREVENT MANY COLDS: At that first feeling of stuffiness or nasal irritation, sniffle or sneeze—Nature's usual warning that a cold is coming on—use Vicks Nose & Throat Drops, the new aid in preventing colds. This will check many colds at the nose and throat—where most colds start.

TO END A COLD SOONER: If a cold has developed, or strikes without warning, vigorous measures are necessary. Rest as much as possible, preferably in bed. Take a mild laxative, if needed. At bedtime, apply Vicks VapoRub for its direct, double action while you sleep. During the day, use the convenient Vicks Nose Drops for added comfort and relief while you work.

Follow Vicks Plan for Better CONTROL of Colds

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

SATURDAY is becoming the established day for programs of classical music. Again today three classical features of merit will be presented over the local stations.

Mozart's opera, "Don Giovanni," will be brought to the radio audience in its entirety for the first time when the complete opera is broadcast from the Metropolitan Opera House in New York City over WRC this afternoon.

"Don Giovanni," the most enduring of the many operas on the subject of Don Giovanni, or Don Juan, and his amours, will occupy the air from 1:45 to 5:15 p. m. and will mark the first participation of Rosa Ponselle, celebrated dramatic soprano, in the opera series this season.

Tullio Serafin will conduct, and the cast, in addition to Miss Ponselle, who will sing the role of Donna Anna, will include Ezio Pinza, basso, singing Don Giovanni; Leon Rothier, basso, Don Pedro; Tito Schipa, tenor, Octavio; Maria Mueller, soprano, Donna Elvira, and Editha Fleischer, soprano, Zerlina.

LEOPOLD STOKOWSKI and the Philadelphia Orchestra will be heard in the second Saturday evening concert in the current series, under the sponsorship of Philco, to be broadcast over WJSV from 8:15 to 10 o'clock tonight. Eunice Norton, young American concert pianist, will be the featured soloist.

Miss Norton, who will be heard in the solo passages of Paul Hindemith's Concerto for Piano and Orchestra, the only contemporary work scheduled for the Philco series, is a native of Minnesota. A pupil of Tobias Matthay, of London, and Artur Schnabel, of Berlin, Miss Norton has made many recital appearances abroad; with the Russian Orchestra in Berlin, the London Royal Philharmonic under Sir Henry Wood, and in Paris with the Societe Philharmonique. Four years ago she appeared with the Boston Symphony under Koussevitski and last January she made her New York debut at Carnegie Hall. This season Miss Norton will be heard with the New York Philharmonic, the Chicago Symphony and the Minneapolis Orchestras, in addition to her appearance with Stokowski.

In addition to the Hindemith concerto, which is the second number, the program will open with an orchestral version of Wagner's music-drama, "Siefried:" "Siegfried Forging the Sword," "Forest Murmurs," "Siegfried Climbing the Burning Mountain to Brunnhilde," and the "Awakening of Brunnhilde." Strauss' tone poem "Tod und Verklaerung" (Death and Transfiguration), will conclude the concert.

THE third event will be the appearance of Lucrezia Bori, Metropolitan Opera soprano, who will be featured as the guest soloist during the Children and Young People's Concert by the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Ernest Schelling (WJSV, 11 a. m. to 12:30 p. m.). With Schelling at the piano, Miss Bori will sing a group of selections by DeFalla, Joaquin Nin, Granados and Obradors.

Continuing his exposition of the concerto form, Schelling directs the orchestra in movements from three Mozart concertos. Douglas Moore's "Pageant of P. T. Barnum" and Albeniz's "Triana" conclude the program.

After Listening to WJSV.

(Theme: "River, Stay 'Way From My Door.")

When the moon comes over the mountain,
And you settle down snug in your chair
For an evening's entertainment
From the artists of the air.

Your daily cares are banished
By the charm of Boswell's song,
Or you smile at Easy Aces
And thrill at Manchu's gong.

Your joy is undiminished
As you tune in Singin' Sam
Or Edwin Hill regales you
With a tale from old Siam.

What golden hours of pleasure
If a single flaw were cured,
If "dat Davil" called "Potomac"
From the program could be lured.

Columbia the gem of the Ocean,
Is a truth no one will doubt,
But Columbia boosting the Potomac
Is a "plug" that should be out.

R. H. J.

THE bells of St. Botolph's Parish Church, in Boston, England, will ring out for the first time in many years when their mellow chimes signal the opening of exercises celebrating the completion of restoration work on the historic place of worship (WJSV, 3:30-4:15 p. m.). The ceremonies will be broadcast throughout England and America.

Both the Columbia and National broadcasting systems will broadcast the annual Christmas party from the lounge of the National Press Club on Saturday, December 24, at 1:30 p. m. It is hoped that by short-wave rebroadcasting the program may be heard in Europe, South Africa and New Zealand.

Dr. Albert W. Harned, director of the National Capital Choir, has selected a program of carols including: "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," "Holy Night," "O Little Town of Bethlehem" and "O Come All Ye Faithful."

Irene Koehl, soprano, and Jessie Masters, contralto, will be the soloists and John Billings, the accompanist.

Bascom Timmons, the president of the Press Club, will introduce Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, who will extend Christmas greetings.

When Rex Battle is playing the piano with his orchestra, he listens through earphones in an effort to test the radio quality of his program.

"STRAIGHT men" should know their comedians better than any one else. And here's how several comedians look to their assistants:

"Ed Wynn?" exclaims Graham McNamee. "Why, he's the most natural fellow in the world. And serious, too. I've seen him worry about the smallest detail and it's always himself that he criticizes most severely."

Jimmy Wallington thinks Eddie Cantor is the easiest man in the world to work with. "We never do a lot of rehearsing," says Wallington. "We go through the continuity on Sunday morning, but never change lines."

"Jack Pearl is the greatest mispronouncer of them all," Cliff Hall says. "And he's absolutely the fastest on the comeback of all the comedians I've ever worked with and I've been a 'straight man' all my life."

Beresford Renamed to Board.

Robert F. Beresford was reappointed member of the Board of Examiners and Registrars of Architects yesterday by the District Commissioners. The term is five years from January 3.

LENIENCY FOR BURNS UNLIKELY IN GEORGIA

Gov. Russell Says Fugitive Will "Take Medicine" as Any Other.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 16 (U.P.).—Robert Elliott Burns, much publicized "fugitive from a Georgia chain gang," faces the prospect of little if any executive leniency in event he is returned to this State, as confidently expected by officials here.

"As far as I am concerned, you may say he will have to take his medicine like any other highway robber," Gov. Richard B. Russell, jr., said today.

Governor-elect Eugene Talmadge, at present agricultural commissioner, firmly declined to be drawn into a discussion of the possible pardon of Burns, one of three coperpetrators of a petty armed holdup here in 1921, saying:

"When I get to be governor, and the matter is placed before me, I'll act on such facts as are presented to me, but until that time I've nothing to say."

Pardon Hope Discounted.

Russell, however, was positively outspoken. He spoke of the case from the point of view of a lawyer, declaring emphatically "it is unthinkable that New Jersey authorities will not promptly honor our requisition for the immediate extradition of this man."

The governor firmly waved aside the suggestion that because of the inconsequential sum of money involved in the holdup, and the fact that Burns already had served some of his six to ten years sentence, that he should be given a pardon.

"That's entirely beside the point," he said. "As a matter of fact, that small amount was all there was to get. It was highway robbery under intimidation of a deadly weapon—exactly the circumstances under which Jesse James used to get $20,000 or more."

Newark, N. J., Dec. 16 (A.P.).—Hopeful and doubtful by turns of the outcome of his fight against returning to Georgia where he is wanted as an escaped convict, Robert Elliott Burns, chain gang fugitive, awaited in jail here tonight the arrival of officers from the South, bearing requisition papers for his return.

The knowledge that numerous persons have already interceded in his behalf with Gov. A. Harry Moore, moved Burns to hope that he would escape the trip South.

Pleas in Burns' Behalf.

"Public sentiment seems to be against returning Burns," a telegram to Gov. Moore from State Senator Emerson L. Richards, of Atlantic City, said today.

"Don't grant requisition from Georgia for Robert Elliott Burns until you have visited Georgia convict camp and seen chain gang in action," said another from Mayor Jacob S. Coxey of Massillon, Ohio, leader of the famous "Coxey Army." "You can then decide intelligently."

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Dec. 16.—A group of Winchester citizens tonight sent a telegram to Gov. Richard B. Russell, jr., of Georgia urging him to grant an immediate and full pardon to Robert Elliott Burns, World War veteran and fugitive from a Georgia prison camp who was captured last night in Newark, N. J., bearing the signature of each individual of the group. The telegram read:

"In the name of common justice we request that you grant Robert Elliott Burns an immediate and full pardon. We believe that he has fully paid his debt to society and is due the opportunity to live the life of a respected citizen."

Marine Chiefs Quit Nicaraguan Guards

Americans Withdraw as First Concrete Step in Evacuation.

Managua, Nicaragua, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—Officers of the United States Marine Corps, who have been serving with the Nicaraguan National Guard in the northern sector today turned over their commands to Nicaraguan officers. This was the first complete step in the carrying out of Secretary Stimson's promise, that the guard would be turned over to Nicaraguan authorities immediately after the inauguration of President-elect Sacasa on January 1.

Among the officers relinquishing their commands were Capt. Fred Biebush, of Greeley, Colo., who recently received the Cruz de Valor for bravery in action, and Capt. Lewis Puller, whom the Nicaraguans called the "Tiger Man of the Mountain."

President Moncada, in a message read at the opening of Congress today, praised the assistance of the United States in the restoration of peace in Nicaragua, announced that American intervention would come to a close in January and warned that the future is entirely in the hands of Congress, the new administration, the political parties and the people themselves.

Turtle Soup Season Opens.

London, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—Britain's turtle soup season has been officially opened by the lord mayor's banquet, and James Coffey is consequently a very busy man. Mr. Coffey is London's high priest of turtle soup and has a precious 200-year-old secret formula for the aromatic consomme which heralds important aldermanic dinners. In olden days London aldermen used to consume vast quantities of turtle soup. Mr. Coffey says it is not so true these days.

U. S. HOLIDAY FEASTS MUCH LIKE BRITISH

Roast Beef and Young Pig With Cranberries Are Still Popular.

By MARTHA LOGAN.

The food that graces the "joyful'st feast" varies in the many lands celebrating this traditional festival of the centuries. Our Christmas seems to lean more toward the atmosphere of the English traditional dinners, of course, with modern American improvements!

Traditions of old England have been portrayed in American literature through the pen of Washington Irving. His description of the great feast day at Bracebridge Hall in his Sketch Book is always interesting. From the striking of the rolling pin on the serving table by the cook, to summon the servants to carry in the meats, to the amusing portrayal of the boar's head ceremony, with the accompanying carols, we find custom decreeing the menu.

If the methods of serving the meats seem strange to us today, the directions for cooking meat as given to women in the early seventeenth century are even more so. First she must "order her fire according to what she has to dress. If anything very little or thin, then a pretty brisk little fire, that it may be done quick and nice. If a very large joint, then be sure a good fire be laid to cake. Let it be clear at bottom, and when your meat is half done, move the dripping pan and spit a little from the fire, and stir up a good brisk fire, for according to the goodness of your fire, your meat will be done sooner or later."

Roast Beef Popular.

The directions are not such a far cry from today's methods. Only we let the little regulator on our oven govern the high boiling temperature for our "little or thin" cuts, and we use a low, slow oven, instead of a "caked" or covered fire for our roasts.

On most of the menus we find roast beef, Yorkshire pudding and plum pudding the Christmas favorites. Roast beef is certainly one of the most popular foods on any menu.

Rib of beef is the most popular cut of meat for such a roast as you will want to serve on Christmas. You can have it boned and rolled if you wish, but it will be more festive if the ribs are left in. The size of the roast is entirely up to you. Here is a Christmas roast beef suggestion, however:

Select an eight or ten pound rib roast. The ribs should be left in. Score the fat side in diagonal lines each way. In the center of each diamond made by scoring make an incision just large enough to hold a small onion. Dredge with flour, season with salt and pepper, and place in an open roasting pan, fat side up. Put in a hot oven and after fifteen minutes reduce the heat to 325 degrees F. and continue roasting for about two and one-half hours. Replace the onions by uncooked cranberries to give a festive Christmas touch. Serve on a platter with browned potatoes and Yorkshire pudding. Garnish with parsley.

Yorkshire Pudding.

The Yorkshire pudding to serve with it is made in this manner:

Fifty-five minutes before the roast will be done, remove four tablespoons of fat from the roasting pan and put it in the bottom of two bread pans. Put them in the oven to become hot and mix the Yorkshire pudding.

Put in a bowl 1 cup of flour and ¼ teaspoon of salt. Add 1 cup of milk gradually, stirring to make a smooth paste. Add 2 eggs, unbeaten, and beat the mixture 2 minutes, using an egg beater. Pour the mixture ½ inch deep into bread pans, return to oven and bake 45 minutes, basting once or twice with fat from the roasting pan. Cut in squares for serving.

If you want to follow the boar's head tradition, a modern version is the serving of either a crown roast of pork or a little roast pig.

Order a four or five weeks' old pig. Thoroughly clean and wash the pig inside and out, taking care to cleanse all openings. Dry it well with a coarse cloth. Rub it inside with salt and pepper and outside only with salt. Stuff it with dressing and sew into its original shape. Wrap salt pork or buttered paper around the ears and tail to keep them from charring. Brush the pig with melted butter and roast in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until tender. This will require 3 or 4 hours. As soon as the roast is done make two deep incisions, with a small-pointed knife, into each side of the head (where the incisions will not be visible), so that the steam can escape, and the roast will thus retain its shape. Also remove the salt pork or paper from the ears and tail. Brush the pig with a heavy cream. Then, remove to a serving dish, put a small red apple in its mouth, use cranberries for eyes, and a laurel wreath or strings of cranberries around its neck. Serve with sections of red apples and watercress.

Martha Logan Says---"Try Deviled Ham Steak"

Try this deviled ham steak and surprise your family. Purchase from your market man a thick slice of ham—at least 2 inches. place it in a casserole or shallow baking dish.

To make the "devil" part, spread the ham slice with a generous layer of peanut butter; spread this in turn with a little prepared mustard, and sprinkle the "frosted" ham slice with a liberal portion of brown sugar.

So that the ham will be lovely and moist and have a grand flavor, pour on a sufficient amount of milk (even if it takes a quart) until the peanut butter layer is reached.

Now for the baking. Slip the deliciously laden casserole into a slow oven (325 degrees Fahrenheit) and bake until done. From 1½ to 2 hours will be needed.

Holiday Dainties of French Caterers on Columbia Road Show Handiwork of Artist; Turkish Coffee, Copper Pots and Demi-Tasse Cups Suggested for Change.

Christmas cakes, candies and deserts in rich perfection are coming from behind the imposing doors of a shop owned and operated by French caterers on Columbia road. The Meanderer explored not only behind the imposing front doors but beyond the softly swinging inner doors and into the clean candy, cake and ice cream making rooms.

N. Avignone.

The holiday sweets from this shop are in rich mixtures, pretty colors and unusual designs. For instance, a winsome, china-faced Christmas lady may have a costume of whipped cream in billowing folds, covering delicately colored petticoats made of ice cream and cake! But it was not this entertaining Christmas cleverness that most impressed the Meanderer. There is a whole room devoted to the designs, molds, figurines and other decorative touches made by N. Avignone, one of the French brothers operating the shop. Cathedral spires and seraphim—small, and made of sugar or plaster to be sure—but beautiful, nevertheless—are proof that this is a master confectioner's workroom, and enough to make the spectator wonder if there shouldn't be a medium more sublime than sugar for expressing the gift of this artist.

True Christmas significance is found in graceful little brass incense-burning lamps that the Meanderer found in a food importer's shop on Ninth street, just below the Public Library. Do not infer that these are ordinary incense burners. They are the most acceptable incense burners the Meanderer has ever found, and the incense provided for use with the lamps is elusive and delicate, not the heavy, Chinese sort considered obnoxious in many homes. These newly discovered incense lamps are patterned after those used in the Greek church and are like the ones used today in both churches and homes in Greece and America, particularly at the Christmas season. Charcoal is burned with the incense. The lines of the lamp's design are in beautiful harmony with the Georgian urn patterns so often the choice in Washington's fire place fittings, so that one of these little Greek incense burners for the mantel may make a suitable as well as unique gift. Their cost is low. Call The Washington Post, National 4205, extension 52, and you may learn where to purchase these interesting little lamps.

One way of finishing the holiday menn in an interesting way would be a demi tasse of the Turkish coffee the Meanderer mentioned recently. The Meanderer found half-pound packages at 25 cents for those who would rather not experiment to the extent of buying a pound of such coffee. And, too, directions for making the coffee can be supplied to those who write the Market Meanderer, The Washington Post. The copper pots and demi tasse cups as well as the black, powdery Turkish coffee are found in the Ninth street food importer's shop mentioned just above.

Still another Christmas suggestion from this Ninth street haunt of the Meanderer is the newly received Turkish paste, suitable for Christmas gifts. The paste comes in cartons gaily decorated in Far Eastern mode or in round tins, many of them brightly painted. A pound of this unusually nice candy—a gelatine concoction containing almonds and rolled in perfumed sugar—is only 25 cents.

Christmas cookies from Germany, received in sturdy wooden barrels with a picture of Nurnberg on the barrel top, are holiday features in a well-known bakery stand in a centrally located downtown market. The always welcome pfeffernusse at 30 cents a pound, Nurnberger allerlei in assortments, delicious cocoanut leebkuchen and the fascinating large spice-cooky figures of German boys and girls or of St. Nicholas, are all in the appealing cooky display. The last-named cookies are delightful as Christmas tree ornaments. The Meanderer will be glad to guide you to the market stand, where these cookies are sold, if you will call National 4205, extension 52.

If hams baked in Southern style are always included in your Christmas food lists, you will be interested to know that the price of these hams, cooked, ready for the table, are lower than they have been for many years. The Meanderer found the Virginia cooked hams of unquestioned quality in a downtown quality meat marketer's stand—the hams, gay with colored garnishing plumes and cellophane—for 85 cents a pound. Many other Christmases have found such hams costing a dollar or more a pound.

The little fleet of dark red, shiny motor delivery cars are a sort of birthday-Christmas present a well-known Washington dairy products company located in Southwest Washington has bought this month. The fortieth anniversary of the company's founding is now being observed. The misty, drizzling weather has not been allowed to dim the glory of the new trucks, for their drivers are spending much time in frequent rubbings of the impressive red finish. The newly elected president of the dairy company, who has been associated with the concern for more than 30 of its successful years, reminisced to the Meanderer about early days in the business when the present delivery business.

SHRIMP A LA LOUISIANA.

I'VE found that Creole dishes are nearly always delicious—the seafood dishes are a joy to see and to eat.

They certainly know how to prepare shrimps down in Louisiana. The other day I was served shrimp jambalaya, a real Louisiana dish.

There are quite a number of ingredients in it—but I don't care how complicated a dish is, when I'm on the receiving end. It's when I do the cooking that I count ingredients. Here is the recipe:

One can shrimp, 1 cup rice, 1 onion (chopped), cooking oil, salt and pepper, bay leaf, thyme, parsley (chopped), cup tomato juice. Wash rice in cold water. Saute until golden brown with onion (in hot oil). Add shrimp, stirring constantly. When brown add tomato juice and enough water to just cover the whole. Season with salt, pepper, bay leaf, thyme and parsley. Boil slowly, adding water until rice is well cooked. Serve hot.

With a can of shrimps, you can get some very nice low-cost surprises—shrimp cocktails, salads, shrimp patties, shrimp Newburg and shrimp pies.

A year ago last April, when I was down in New Orleans, I visited a shrimp fishery. My host there sometimes has as many as 150 boats at a time, down on Lake Pontchartrain. The shrimp are gathered with nets and packed on ice. Then they're brought to a factory, and prepared for canning.

If you serve nothing more fancy than creamed shrimp on toast, you'll have a good meal.

To make the creamed shrimp mixture, to serve a family of five, you'll need two cans of shrimp, and two cups of fairly thin white sauce. This is very easy to prepare.

Mix the shrimp and the sauce thoroughly, add a little diced celery or a little celery salt. Season with a few spoonsful of chili sauce and the main part of your meal is ready.

NATS REJECT SPENCER-SEWELL TRADE WITH TRIBE

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

TRADE TALK.

CLARK GRIFFITH instigated the six-player swap with the Browns . . . but Joe Cronin took all the responsibility for trading Marberry for Whitehill . . . the folks who thought the Nats had no trading material were surprised . . . Fred Schulte is not so slow . . . he stole more bases than Sammy West last season . . . and Cronin thinks there will be few groans at his playing in center . . . The New York Yanks and Athletics have been eyeing the Washington deals closely . . . The Nats may have profited most of all by the release of Dick Coffman . . . last season he was as valuable to the club as an armless outfield . . . Cronin may be trying to steer his club into the pennant through the back door . . . his deals brought to Washington three pitchers who knocked the Nats off in ten games last season . . . which would look very imposing on the other side of the ledger . . . Walter Stewart is the hardest working pitcher in the league . . . and he won't be afraid to throw his fast ball within the far-flung confines of Griffith Stadium . . . as contrasted with bandbox Sportsman's Park in St. Louis . . . but Sammy West will have nearly as much territory to roam in St. Louis' center field . . . Cronin was a Joe Judge booster in Biloxi last spring . . . but he is solid for Joe Kuhel now . . . Judge has been gazing at the handwriting on the wall since last midseason . . . the Robins offered to boost Judge's salary $5,000 if Griffith would part with him last spring . . . but there was doubt then concerning Kuhel . . . now Griffith has waived the waiver price of $7,500 and Brooklyn can have Judge for the taking . . . Manager Max Carey still has the matter under advisement. . . . The familiar figure of Marberry striding out to the bull pen to relieve a faltering Washington pitcher will be seen no more . . . but Marberry never again reached the peak of his relief work of 1924, '25 and '26. . . . Bucky Harris will use him as a starter . . . but Marberry's fast ball is no more . . . Dave Harris' batting average is due for a slump with Walter Stewart now on the same club . . . when Stewart was able to get Harris out it was news. . . . There will be fewer slow balls thrown in Griffith Stadium with Carl Reynolds out of the Washington line-up . . . Reynolds was a

Hilltop Five Bows, 35-30, To Duke

Jim Thompson, D. C. Boy, Leads Blue Devils to Win.

Georgetown Rally at End Short; Trail by 24-19 at Half.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

JIM THOMPSON, who absorbed the fundamental principles of basket ball while at Western High School, returned to town with a group of polished courtmen representing Duke University last night, and together they handed Georgetown a 35-30 trimming in a game marked by good basket ball and a minimum of thrills in the wide open spaces of the Tech gym.

Georgetown's attack was sluggish and its defense ragged as the fray got under way and Duke took advantage of the situation to ring up 8 points before the locals discovered the game was on. Tommy Carolan potted a long one for the Hilltoppers' first points.

Duke Has Edge In Passing.

The teams exhibited a smooth brand of basket ball, Duke holding a slight edge in the passing. There were times, however, when the Hoyas clicked in great style. These outbursts, infrequent as they were, invariably resulted in scores. Carolan flipped the last Georgetown basket in the first half, bringing the total to 19. But husky Pete Pargoe, Weaver and Herb Thompson kept the Southerners in front with a mixture of fouls and "snowbirds." Duke led at the intermission, 24 to 19.

Georgetown's start in the final half was remindful of its play at the opening minutes of the game, and Duke stretched its margin to nine points on double-deckers by Fred Lewis and Weaver. Connors and Crowley made good on foul shots for the locals and then saw their efforts nullified as Jim Thompson came through with his eighth and final basket of the night and a subsequent foul.

Hilltop Five Rallies.

Duke faltered as Georgetown unleashed a furious eleventh hour rally that threatened to reach out and grasp the visitors by the scruff of the neck only to fall short. Joe Corliss, a substitute guard, started the rally by dropping a foul. Parcell, another sub, eased one through from close in, bringing the score to 26. Fred Lewis

Kelly Clusters 71 In Cue Title Event

New York, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—With his titular aspirations already crushed, George Kelly, of Philadelphia, today shot the brand of billiards that carried him to runner-up honors last year as he turned back Walter Franklin, of Kansas City, to win his second game in six starts in the national pocket billiard championship.

Topped by a high run of 71, the second best cluster of the tournament, Kelly came from behind to defeat Franklin, 125 to 63, in 18 innings.

Bennie Allen, of Kansas City, champion from 1913 to 1915, was forced to call upon all of his experience to defeat James Mills, of San Jose, Calif., 125 to 99, in 22 innings.

SUCCESS

Black-jerseyed Duke University players and white-jerseyed Georgetown men are pictured scrambling under the basket at Tech High last night as Weaver, of Duke, dropped in a field goal in the second half. Left to right—Carolan, Jimmy Thompson, Connors, Weaver, Crowley and Herb Thompson.

N. Y. Ring Chiefs Suspend Banovic

New York, Dec. 16 (U.P.).—The New York State Boxing Commission, at its weekly meeting today, suspended Joe Banovic, Binghamton, N. Y., boxer, on charges of having participated in a "bootleg" boxing bout at Binghamton under the name of Joe Boland.

A challenge was received and filed from Tommy Paul, of Buffalo, with Kid Chocolate, recognized by the New York State commission as featherweight champion. Paul is recognized by the National Boxing Association.

The commission also approved a bout between Stanley Poreda and Ernie Schaaf for Madison Square Garden, December 23, despite Poreda's recent suspension by the Pennsylvania commission.

The commission told Seaman Watson, British featherweight champion, that he must first appear in a small club before he can meet Kid Chocolate in a bout that has been arranged for Madison Square Garden.

Braves Seek Hogan, of Giants

Terry Says Club Is Still in Market; Pitcher Wanted.

Baseball Men Agree Griffith Swung Clever Deal.

By ALAN GOULD (Associated Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—The New York Giants, who have so far completed four baseball deals involving a dozen players since the close of the 1932 season, still "are in the trading market for any reasonable proposition," Manager Bill Terry said today.

The only deal now pending, however, is one that seems certain to send Catcher Frank Hogan back to the Boston Braves. It is understood the Giants already have accepted a price offered for Hogan, but they also are anxious to pry a first-class pitcher loose in the deal. For the time being, Terry indicated, any prospect of a deal with Brooklyn or Philadelphia is off. The Dodgers and Giants were "hot and cold" all week without definite results.

Nats in Limelight As Traders.

Although the National League set the trading pace for the record-breaking turnover in baseball players, the biggest packages on the Christmas tree seem to have been picked off by the "old fox," Clark Griffith, on behalf of his Washington Club.

Griffith's success as the real David Harum of the winter meetings assures his youthful manager, Joe Cronin, a 1933 combination which figures to be the chief challenger of the world champion New York Yankees. Baseball men agree that Washington has been tremendously strengthened in the two vital departments of pitching and hitting by the acquisition of Southpaws Walter Stewart and Earl Whitehill. Right-handed Jack Russell and Outfielders Goose Goslin and Fred Schulte, in a series of swaps with St. Louis, Detroit and Cleveland.

Outside of Bob Grove and Lefty Gomez, there are no better southpaws in the American League than Stewart and Whitehill. Russell, while with Boston, was a thorn in Washington's side, beating the Nats more often than any other club. Goslin and Schulte figure to provide a heftier punch than Reynolds and West, who went to the Browns along with Lloyd Brown, southpaw pitcher.

The man the Nats may miss most is Fred (Firpo) Marberry, one of the greatest relief pitchers ever developed in the big leagues. Marberry has figured in an average of 50 games per season for the past nine years with Washington.

Cubs, Pirates Strengthen In National.

Every club in the National League has participated in a free-for-all of trading since the season closed but the chief beneficiaries to date are the Chicago Cubs, who obtained the slugging Babe Herman from the Reds, and the Pittsburgh Pirates, who drew the ace of a three-cornered deal in Freddy Lindstrom.

Boston so far has successfully withstood the temptation to trade some of its star pitching talent, in exchange for more batting power, but the Phillies parted after a struggle with Ray Benge, star right-hander, in order to plug a gap at second base with Neal Finn, of the Dodgers, and replenish the club's treasury.

Player deals held the spotlight all week but the sudden and unheralded action by the joint major league meeting in repudiating, in effect, the previous objections of Commissioner Landis to the "Chain-store" system of club ownership aroused considerable comment today. The magnates promptly denied there were any other differences, however, and pointed out that the commissioner's contract calling for $65,000 a year salary, still has two years more to run.

Nats' Owner Waives Waiver Price on His Veteran.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

"WHILE Manager Joe Cronin and I are willing to make any trade that we think might benefit the Washington Club, I think we're about through making deals for this winter," said President Clark Griffith yesterday, adding that "we're still dizzy from running around in circles making wholesale shifts at the New York meetings." This was the Nat owner's answer when asked if there was any truth in rumors going the rounds in New York that he was considering a trade with the Cleveland Club which would bring Catcher Luke Sewell here in exchange for Roy Spencer.

Griffith considers Spencer a better man than Sewell. He turned down a more attractive offer than this for his first-string receiver. Griffith and Cronin have just about decided that Spencer is plenty good enough for the Nats.

Robins May Take Judge.

There is one possibility of a change, Griffith admitted, and that has to do with First Baseman Joe Judge.

"I've given him permission to negotiate with the Brooklyn Club," said the Nat owner, "and he may be able to connect there. It has been reported that the Dodgers are hesitating because they don't want to pay the Washington Club the waiver price. This is not true. Because of Joe's long service here, I told Manager Max Carey that the player would not cost him a cent if he wanted him. I have a hunch that they will take Joe before long."

While Cronin, just getting his first taste of managerial duties, showed that he was willing to do a little gambling when he O. K.'d the many trades which the Nats made at the annual meetings and probably will show the same take-a-chance proclivities when emergencies arise out

GA. TECHMEN UNDERDOGS ON COAST

By RUSSELL J. NEWLAND.

BERKELEY, Calif., Dec. 16 (A.P.).—With no championship standing to worry about, but keyed up over an intersectional football rivalry that began four years ago in Pasadena, Georgia Tech's Engineers and California's Bears will meet here tomorrow.

Four years ago the Bears took one on the chin in the Tournament of Roses game, best remembered by the 75-yard reverse run by Roy Riegels, California center. Last year at Atlanta the Ramblin' wreck of Georgia Tech fell to pieces, 19-6, before a high-geared California eleven.

The Bears this season won six games, lost three and tied two. Georgia Tech brings a standing of four wins, four losses and one tie to the West Coast.

The Bears are overwhelming favorites in the eyes of local fans, but Coach Bill Ingram has warned all and sundry to "watch out for those tricky Southerners."

Coach Bill Alexander of Georgia Tech welcomed the role of under dog.

"This isn't the strongest team we have had," he said, "but it has as much fight per square inch as any I've coached."

Rain started falling today, with prospects of a wet field tomorrow. The rival coaches gave no indication they would change the style of attack they have decided upon—a wide open game.

California functioned all season on

White's 7 Points Are Futile as La Salle Takes Game.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—La Salle College rang up its third straight victory by defeating Catholic University, 31 to 21.

Catholic sprang into the lead with a rush, running up 4 points on two successive field goals by Pat Montague and Galiher.

Two fouls made good by Charley Mosicant, star La Salle center, and a field goal, bagged by Ray Bahr, after a nice follow-up, soon tied matters. On the next tap-off Joe Meehan was fouled and he put the Philadelphians into the lead with a 1-pointer.

From then on La Salle was never headed. The two Meehan brothers, Joe and Clem, played a floor game that led to goal after goal.

Before the first half was over La Salle had bagged eight field goals and made good on five of their six foul tosses to gain a comfortable 21-to-8 lead.

Catholic University could not make headway against the Explorers. Charley Mosicant was high scorer with two double deckers and five fouls for a total of 9 points.

Eddie White, former Philadelphia Catholic High star, led Catholic U. by tallying three times from the field and once from the foul line for 7 points. Pat Montague was next with two fouls and two twin pointers for 6 markers.

Ryder Cup Golf Play In England June 26-27

Chicago, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—The 1933 Ryder Cup matches between England and the United States will be played at the Southport and Ainsdale Club, Ainsdale, England, June 26 and 27, Business Administrator Albert R. Gates, of the Professional Golfers Association, announced today.

McLarnin Stops Fuller in Eighth

Madison Square Garden, New York, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—Jimmy McLarnin, pride of the Irish clouters, knocked out little Sammy Fuller, of Boston, in eight rounds of a ten-round bout tonight, but added little to his fighting laurels before a dissatisfied crowd of 10,000.

He was on the floor four times in all.

Sammy, considered the best of the lightweight contenders, went down on his back under the ropes. He rolled over and reached his knees by seven, but his strength and ability to take more punishment were gone. He stayed there, head down, blood seeping from his nose and lips, as Referee Pete Hartley ran the count to ten and out.

Oregon U. Choice Over Dixie Eleven

Baton Rouge, La., Dec. 16 (A.P.).—All the football speed deception and determination Louisiana State University's undefeated Southern Conference team can muster will be matched tomorrow against the University of Oregon's driving power and weight in a cold, wet intersectional game on a soggy field.

Tonight found the Oregonians, on a far-flung invasion of the South, favored to win by virtue of a weight advantage of about 10 pounds to the man, a factor calculated to swing the scales decidedly in their favor in the certain wet going.

Both teams wound up game preparations today with Oregon receiving final instructions from Coach "Prink" Callison in New Orleans before taking a late day train to complete the remaining 90 miles of their trip to Baton Rouge, and Louisiana State winding up practice with last orders from Coach "Biff" Jones.

THREE SCORE 68'S IN GOLF TOURNEY

By PAUL ZIMMERMAN.

BROOKSIDE PARK, Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 16 (A.P.).—Three of golf's veteran campaigners and a comparative youngster staged a concerted attack on par to take the lead after the first eighteen holes of the Pasadena $4,000 open tourney today, with scores of 68.

Leo Diegel, of Agua Caliente, Mexico, former national P. G. A. champion; Harry Cooper, of Chicago, defending title holder, and Fred Morrison, of Pasadena, Agua Caliente open winner of last January, were forced to make way for little Dick Metz, of Deal, N. J., in a round of play which saw par shattered half a dozen times out of the field of 171 starters, and half a dozen others equal perfect figures of 71.

In the case of the veteran three some in the lead, it was a matter of expert approaches but rather casual putting. Metz, on the other hand, sank long putts for his fine card.

One stroke behind the leaders was Craig Wood, Metz's employer at the Hollywood Country Club, Deal, N. J. Wood, fresh from his victory in the San Francisco open, finished with a sparkling 69. Willie Hunter, of Los Angeles, former British amateur champion, had a 70.

Olin Dutra, of Santa Monica, present national P. G. A. champion, was suffering from a cold and had trouble with his putter, but finished in even par for 71 along with five others, including Frank Walsh, of Chicago, from whom he won the professional title in the last round.

Ralph Guldahl, of St. Louis; Chet Beer, of Bakersfield, Calif.; Eddie Loos, of Chicago, and Archie Hambrick, of Zanesville, Ohio, were the others who came in on an even basis with the par in the running for the $1,000 first prize money which will be paid after 72 holes have been completed Sunday.

Roland Mackenzie, Washington, D. C. "business man-golfer" was reasonably well up in the running with a 76, achieved by shooting two consistent 38's during the day.

St. John's Beaten By Tech, 57 to 36

St. John's proved no match for Tech's powerful combination yesterday and was defeated, 57-36, in a slow game on its own floor. Coach Artie Boyd used almost as many players as there were spectators in putting the cadets to rout.

Three years ago a jumper at Saratoga fell upon clearing an obstacle and lay as if dead. A ground crew rushed in, glanced at the stricken horse and dragged it off the track by its tail. They called the wagon and it came about 10 minutes later. The horse hadn't moved a muscle. They started to slip a truss around it to lift it in the wagon, when suddenly the animal opened an eye that had a sort of mischievous light in it, stood up and walked slowly to its stall. The crew stood dumbfounded, and if the horse had emitted a long neighing laugh, they probably would have been applicants themselves for the wagon . . . In a game last season, Johnny Allen, of the Yankees, fanned Dave Harris in a pinch and then wrote about it to a friend in Dave's Greensboro home. Two days later Harris pinch-hit again against Allen and hit a homer. "Send a tel-e-gram to Greensboro about this," he jeered at Allen as he trotted around the sacks.

GILBERT AND MILLS RIDE ONE WINNER EACH AT JEFFERSON

Durva, Neel Up, Annexes Feature

Mills Rides Portam to Victory in Mud and Rain.

Gilbert Clings to His 3-Winner Lead, Takes Final.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—The Lone Star Stable's Durva, well handled by J. Neel, raced through a steady rain and over a muddy track to win the Kenner Purse, featured attraction at Jefferson Park today.

The 4-year-old bay daughter of Durbar II—Neva S. made a show of her opposition to win by three lengths to pay $8.80 for a $2 ticket. Mrs. M. Eslick's Sandwrack was a driving second, a length in front of A. J. Halliwell's Hurawav, Buck Hero, ridden by Johnny Gilbert, was barely two lengths out of the money. The time for the mile and one-sixteenth was 1:51.

Durva shot into an early lead and held command all the way. Buck Hero followed the early pace, but soon gave way to Hurawav and Sandwrack. At the stretch turn, Sandwrack went into second place and held that position safe, although the gelding failed to threaten the winner.

Gilbert and Mills Ride One Each.

Gilbert and Hank Mills, staging a great duel for riding honors, each added one winner today. Gilbert made it 195 winners to Mills' 192.

Mills had much the best horse under him in the curtain raiser, Portam revelling in the going to score by two lengths at $7.00 for $2. Green Wave was an easy second over Lawful Gamble. Mills shot Portam into an early lead, then took a snug hold on the colt which held his field safe for speed for the entire mile and a sixteenth, Green Wave supplying what contention there was.

Gilbert retrieved his three-winner lead over Mills, which the latter had chopped down to two earlier in the day, when McGonigle, a 1-to-2 shot, won the finale by five lengths from Crowned Head. Dick Porter was third.

Putting Is Separate Art

Ted Johnson, Post Staff Photographer.

By WALTER CUNNINGHAM
(Burning Tree Club Professional)
As Told to Dave Herman, Post Staff Golf Writer.

PUTTING, in golf, always has impressed me as being a separate game in itself.

In order to become a consistently good putter one must be cool and determined whenever he steps up to his ball on the green. Inability to control the nerves, I find, has proven the downfall of many a splendid putter. Confidence and judgment of distance are two other important factors that go to make up the successful putter. A golfer who trembles on the green and obviously shows he is afraid he might miss will never be a good putter.

Make up your mind that you can't miss, that you're going to sink the putt and if you feel otherwise I suggest that you step away from the ball before addressing. Wait until you can adjust yourself to the situation. Then step up and play it with confidence. I might state that good putting will add to your confidence, and spur you on to the extent of playing your other shots better.

No Prescribed Stance In Putting.

There isn't any prescribed stance in putting, and every player has his or her own way of playing the shot. But you must feel comfortable, there must be no crampness in your style. There is no body action in putting. While practically every golfer uses his wrists, this is not so in my case.

In approaching your ball, look to see which way the grass is growing. This is important. If the grain is against you, it means hitting the ball harder. Next, get the line on your putt. Study it carefully, and don't hurry yourself. There's no rush. Good putters take their time.

I play the ball with the feet close together, and lock my knees. This keeps me from turning my hips when hitting. I play the ball off the left toe, bend my knees, and have most of my weight on my heels. Keep your eye on the ball until after it's hit.

Now, I take my putter back with the arms only swinging them like a pendulum, and do not use my wrists. I prefer the arm movement because I find I can hit the ball the same way all the time, and am able to catch the ball on the upswing. I find that in breaking the wrists there is a tendency to jab at the ball. Again, the arms give you one clean, sweeping stroke, and enable you to get a top-spin.

In a contour putt, I turn the blade of my club in. Remember that in a downhill putt there is not much of a backstroke. The ball must be hit easily.

UCLANS AND FLORIDA IN BATTLE

By DILLON GRAHAM.

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Dec. 16 (A.P.).—Florida's sophomore eleven, seeking to climax a disastrous season with an intersectional triumph over a representative of the Far West, faces California's Uclans here tomorrow.

In point of distance this battle brings together the most widely separated teams enjoying intersectional gridiron relations this year and also marks the first time a California squad has played on Florida soil.

The California outfit from Los Angeles, which detrained here this morning and snapped through a short drill, was looked upon as the favorite to repeat their decision of a year ago over the Alligators. Florida slightly outweighs the visitors in the line, but the Uclans hold a large advantage in the back field.

Florida Played Good Football.

Florida played well even in defeat against some of the best Southern Conference teams this year, and Coach Charles Bachman does not believe the Uclans are as strong as some of the Dixie squads he has faced.

Both teams concentrated on their aerial attacks in last workouts and the prospects are for a wide-open engagement.

NATS REJECT SEWELL TRADE FOR SPENCER

there on the ball field next season, fans may rest assured that in all other respects Joe's decisions will not be made except after considerable thought.

That the running of the Washington club will be no haphazard, hit-or-miss affair was clearly indicated at the stadium yesterday when Cronin and President Griffith were in conference practically all day. Other extended sessions are scheduled for this morning and afternoon, after which the "boy manager" will board a train for the long return trip to his San Francisco home.

Cronin Thinking of Line-Up.

The season will not start for four months but already Cronin is figuring out a new batting order which will give the Nats the maximum benefits of the material he will have available. This subject, according to Joe, consumed many hours yesterday and the answer has not yet been found. Three players—Myer, Schulte and Kuhel— are being considered for the lead off berth, said Cronin, with Schulte being favored at this time. "And, if I don't use Schulte at the top of the list, he'll probably hit second," Cronin said.

It is only the top five positions which are causing Cronin to risk injuring his think-tank in this connection, Joe admitted. He evidently plans to again take the clean-up position himself and, if he does this, it is just a question as to whether Goslin will hit third and Manush fifth, or vice versa. Judging from his conversation last night, it is the writer's guess that the 1933 starting line-up will be: Schulte, Myer, Manush, Cronin, Goslin, Kuhel, Bluege, catcher and pitcher.

Another subject over which Griffith and Cronin debated yesterday was the deciding upon dates for some extra games to be added to the spring schedule. Joe is particularly anxious to fill in the gaps on the date list, so as to give his men the most competitive benefit. For years, Griffith has been urging the American League to lift the ban against its teams meeting each other in preseason engagements, and he finally was successful at the Wednesday meeting.

Spring Games With Tribe Planned.

This means that at least two games will be played with the Cleveland Indians at New Orleans next spring, while the Atlanta Club has decided to train at Mobile, which is near Biloxi, and some games will be arranged with the Southern Leaguers.

Speaking of the training camp plans led Cronin to come out with one or two additional ideas which he has formed in connection with the development of his pitchers. "I want to hurry them along a little," he said, "so that they will be nearer ready to go the route by the time the team returns to Washington to open its season. So I'm not going to lay down any fixed rules making all extend their shifts at the same time. Those who round to form a little faster, will be allowed to continue their advance. "But," he continued, "please understand that Im not going to rush any one and, until the season is a couple of weeks under way, as soon as any of the pitchers show that they are pressing, I'm going to yank them rather than to take a chance of them having any setbacks."

DUKE GUESTS TONIGHT OF G. W. FIVE

Colonials Handicapped, Losing Burgess, Parrak.

WHAT Georgetown was unable to do last night, George Washington will attempt tonight when the Colonials meet up with the dynamic Blue Devils of Duke University at Tech High Gymnasium. The game will start promptly at 7:30 o'clock, having been moved up to that time so that it would not interfere with a theatrical venture also sponsored by the school.

The events of the last two nights have rearranged the odds which a few days ago were in G. W.'s favor to win tonight. Duke exhibited unexpected strength last night in beating Georgetown, 35-30, and also produced a great player in Herbie Williams, who rang in 17 vital points for the Devils.

Then, too, George Washington tonight will be without the services of one and possibly two of the greatest basket ball players ever to handle a ball in Washington.

Forrest Burgess, leading college scorer of two seasons ago is ineligible to compete tonight under Southern Conference rules, having transferred to G. W. from American University. And Wick Parrack, 6-foot 5-inch forward, who led District scorers last year, has failed to improve from an attack of influenza which made him only a husk of his former self in the Missouri game Thursday night.

If Parrack is not used tonight, Bill Noonan, 6-foot-4 local boy, will take his place. Jimmy Howell, sharp-shooting reserve, will take Burgess' place. Otherwise the team will be the same as it has been for two seasons, with Capt. Otts Zahn and Wayne Chambers, at guards, and Ty Hertzler in center. Duke will start its same line-up as used successfully against Georgetown.

Charity Mat Card Listed Thursday

A rassling show whose proceeds will go to the Washington Police Department Basket Fund will be held next Thursday night at the Washington Auditorium with a card of six first-rate bouts on tap. The feature will bring together Gino Garibaldi, long a favorite here, and Frank Judson, one of the most popular of the new faces of local rassling.

In the semifinal Joe Cox will take on Abe Coleman in a 45-minute bout.

This is the first charitable sporting show Washington has staged in many months. Promoter Joe Turner has donated the Washington Auditorium and his promotorial staff. Stage hands and principals are not permitted under union rules to work for nothing, but taking out their wages will not reduce the general receipts very vastly.

added another pont to Duke's total with a foul, but Corliss evened matters by making his portion of a double foul, while Hayes, the Duke offender, missed.

Hargadan took a pass from Crowley to drop a "snowbird" on what was without doubt the most cleverly executed play of the game. He followed up with a foul, but the twenty seconds of playing remaining ticked away before Hargadan, who came in possession of the leather following the tap-off, could get it moving toward the basket.

Shetland Pony First Mount Of Johnny Gilbert, Then 7

PITTSBURGH, Kans., Dec. 16 (A.P.).—When the talk hereabouts swings to Johnny Gilbert, the year's leading jockey, among the better informed members of the "I-knew-him-when" group is Dr. E. G. Gilbert, foster father of the 17-year-old rider.

It was about ten years ago that two ragged, wide-eyed little Assyrian boys began to haunt the stable where Dr. Gilbert, a veterinarian, kept his Shetland ponies. That was the beginning of a racing career for Johnny and his older brother, Pete Dyer, who later became the Gilbert boys by adoption. Other youngsters in the neighborhood began to ride, and soon there were spirited derbys in the alley behind the stable, with bare heels urging the ponies to greater speed.

Brother Killed in Auto Crash.

Pete was killed in a motor accident in Texas last March, shortly after he had been named to ride Liberty Limited in the Kentucky Derby. But Johnny is riding on and today stands three victories ahead of his rival, Hank Mills, with 195 wins, just 12 short of the American record for one year.

"I saw it in them from the start," Doc Gilbert commented. "They had a natural horsemanship. They sat on their mounts well and held the reins with natural talent. I said all the time they were riders."

When Johnny was only 12 years old and Pete 13 they rode in the Crawford County Fair races. Track officials protested against the employment of such youthful jockeys, but the young Gilberts begged for a chance. The officials relented and the boy riders gave good account of themselves.

Progress in Game No Bed of Roses.

Further progress in the game was no bed of roses for Johnny and Pete, their foster father explained. Johnny cried to come home, and once wrote: "I can't do it. I just can't do it. They're running away with me."

But Doc Gilbert urged them to stick, and stick they did. Johnny's grit carried him through several misfortunes. At Fairmount two years ago his mount fell on him, but he came back the same day astride a winner. He fell again at Hawthorne, but hung up a record of seven wins in eight days. There were spills at Bowie and at Havana, but each time Johnny emerged a more determined and resourceful jockey.

Joe Dyer, another brother, also is a jockey, and the two are the sole support of their widowed mother, Mrs. Anna Dyer, two sisters and an invalid brother.

"BABE" CITES OLD A. A. U. RULING

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 16 (A.P.).—Mildred (Babe) Didrikson, stellar feminine athlete suspended by the American Athletic Union because her picture and testimonial appeared in an automobile advertisement, declared today A. A. U. authorization had been given for photographing other amateurs for advertising purposes.

She made public what she said was a copy of a letter as follows:

"Illinois Women's Athletic Club.

"Miss Waterman:

"Permission is hereby granted to Underwood & Underwood, Inc., to take such moving pictures or still action pictures of your athletes as may be desired.

"It is expressly understood that the athletes shall receive nothing, money or prizes, of any description for these pictures that will be used for advertising purposes.

(Signed.) "ROY E. DAVIS,
"Chairman Registration Committee, Central A. A. U."

Miss Didrikson said:

"I have been suspended for an advertisement that carried my name and picture. I never authorized the use of either. In regard to my suspension A. A. U. officials based it on something that the Central Association of the A. A. U. gave the Illinois Women's Athletic Club authority to do. I would like for Mr. Lawrence di Benedetto, of New Orleans, secretary of the Southern A. A. U., and Mr. Daniel Ferris, of New York, secretary-treasurer of the A. A. U., to explain why I am suspended on something I didn't authorize when other A. A. U. athletes are allowed to pose for pictures of any description, knowing they will be used and authorized for advertising purposes."

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: JEFFERSON PARK, DEC. 16.

Remember the Johnstown flood? Well, neither do I. At any rate, I've been told it represented quite a collection of mud and water. That was the order here today and only equine amphibians had a chance. I had only one winner, Portam, and I was surprised at the $7 mutuel after Mills took the mount. Hal Riley and Sandwrack tried their darndest to put me over but both were second. I was well represented in the money on several other occasions. All of which is not so bad, considering that I don't have to make excuses today for my friend Drombo. Thus closes today's lesson. BILL.

FIRST RACE—As much as I despise favorites, I believe I'll have to go to TADCASTER in the opener. This one was raised on mud and only needs a good ride to take down the brackets. FORT WORTH easily is second best. The show onions might be gathered by MOTIVE.

SECOND RACE—I woke up DR. SYNTAX on one occasion. Now let's see if we can make him perform tomorrow. Loves the going and may take the measure of DONATE, another old friend of mine. DOLLAR PRINCESS to defeat the others.

THIRD RACE—OZITI appears to have something on the juveniles scheduled to step it out in this. Fairly consistent sort. CONCISUS has been whispered around as a good thing, but will have to draw Mills or Gilbert before I'll get down on the top end. CATWALK has a chance.

FOURTH RACE—This brings together a number of sleeptrs which are now shown up and out in the open as the result of recent races. Unless some of them are still holding back something, ALLEGRETTO should win. HARUM SCARUM and STRONGHEART appear eligible for the place battle.

FIFTH RACE—NELL KUHLMAN has a way with her in the mud and may provide the boys with something to talk about besides the depression. PROMETHEUS was given a tightener the other day and may move up to second. ANTE BELLUM, scratched yesterday, is dangerous.

SIXTH RACE—Go ahead and say it. I know I have a lot of nerve to stick to BLACK PATRICIA. Just can't believe that tailing off yarn. I'd let you pick the second and third if you were here. My guesses are CHENE and PACHECO.

SEVENTH RACE—They pulled HOLD HARD out of their sleeve the other day. Now let's see what this one will do for John Public. DUELIST for place. DANDY DAN to show. Buck Hero hardly will be sent back. Moves up if he starts.

ROOSEVELT'S FIVE BOWS, 40 TO 31

LED by a trio of eagle-eyed court stars, Kane, Alferro and Troup, George Washington University's Freshmen handed Roosevelt a 40-31 trimming in a fast game on the Colonials' floor yesterday. It was the first defeat charged to the Teddy-bears this season.

Dan Howley Signed To Manage Toronto

Cincinnati, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—Dan Howley, former manager of the Cincinnati Reds, today announced that he would manage the Toronto club of the International League next summer.

His contract, he said, will run for a year. The amount he will receive under it was not revealed.

Agreement on the contract was reached, Howley said, at the meeting of the major leagues in New York.

Hitting the Headpin

ADDING to her slim lead, gained in the second block last week, Lorraine Guili finished with a total pinfall of 1,039 to win the fifth annual Meyer Davis sweepstakes last night at the Lucky Strike alleys. It was her third triumph in the tournament as she won the first and second. Her set score last night was 326.

Irene Scott finished second, occupying that position from start to finish, with a 996 total. Helen Sullivan was third, Rena Levy, fourth, and Catherine Quigley, fifth.

Miss Mamie Payne, for whom the tournament was her first, rolled the best set of the evening, 333, but she finished well down on the list.

Stock Prices Drift Lower In Dull, Listless Trading

Four-Tenths Loss Reported as Dealing Drops to 916,211 Shares.

New York, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—Stocks drifted lower in a sleepy session today. Closing prices, slightly above bottom, represented fractional losses on most leaders, and the market still appeared to be waiting for something that would provide a basis for action.

U. S. Steel preferred, being more or less of a key stock at present, doubtless had something to do with the general list's tone. This issue dropped about 2 points, which put it in the late 50s compared with the year's low of 51½. Steel common was less sharply depressed, but yielded a major fraction of the day. Coppers wore down a bit further, Anaconda losing nearly a point.

Oils still looked soggy, though rails fared more comfortably and utilities closed with a fairly firm tone. Pennsylvania, Canadian Pacific, Public Service of New Jersey and Consolidated Gas improved around a point. Allied Chemical, Loew's, Standard of New Jersey, Case and Kennecott sagged. Aviation Corporation held closer to the ground than yesterday, but added a fraction to recent advances. Sales totaled 916,211 shares.

Foreign debt affairs were kept prominent by Paris dispatches bearing on the parliamentary situation and the possibility that France might make a belated payment, but even more interest was taken in President Hoover's prospective debt message. Sterling exchange again improved, while francs provided a contrast by being somewhat unsteady.

Commission house sentiment, on the whole, was optimistic. In the background, of course, is the tradition of a holiday rally, although last year the market was so preoccupied with trouble that this pleasant custom was overlooked. Year-end "investment demand" theoretically cuts some figure, especially in the bond market; also, there begins to be speculative anticipation of business' emergence from winter dullness. Much of the current hopefulness is based on the market's thoroughly deflated appearance, though bulls have had very poor sledding on their recent attempts at a rally.

Advances	124	195
Declines	316	236
Unchanged	149	169
Total issues traded.	589	600

Stocks.

Listless trading sent prices fourtenths of a point lower, and the volume of sales dropped to 916,211 shares. United States Steel preferred declined 2 points. Rails closed firm.

Bonds.

Mixed losses and gains marked dealing in bonds. Activity developed in foreign issues, and some showed appreciable gains. The average loss on the day's sales was one-tenth of a point.

Curb.

Selling handicapped curb transactions, and leaders closed lower. The volume of sales declined to 160,000 shares. Utilities firmed somewhat near the close.

Wheat.

Chicago prices declined as Winnipeg and Liverpool reported heavy losses. Scarcity of United States supply aided in a short rally. Corn and oats recorded gains. December wheat sold at 44¼ to 44⅜ cents.

Cotton.

Small gains were added in a session of narrow price changes. March contracts sold at 6.01, with the general marget 1 to 4 points higher. Liverpool listed imports of Russian cotton totaling 54,000 bales.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—Trading was idle on the stock exchange. Gilt-edged securities drooped owing to lack of support despite further improvement in sterling exchange. Transatlantic issues eased in absence of any pronounced advance in Wall street while profit-taking caused recessions in oil shares and gold mining issues. The closing was uncertain.

Paris—The persistent firmness on the bourse was attributed to the firmness of sterling exchange, better tendency of metal prices and also on the belief that the doors were not closed to new debt negotiations. Profit-taking moderated the upward trend but offerings were easily absorbed. The closing was steady.

BOND MARKET SAGS ON MIXED DEALINGS

Active Buying in Foreigns Boosted Prices; Loss Averages One-Tenth.

New York, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—Today's bond market was again a study in contrasts. Marked strength in some of the prime investment favorites was coincident with a decided tendency to softness in the main of so-called secondary issues of practically all groups.

In the foreign division German government and municipal issues were featured by active buying which resulted in several substantial advances. Reversing their heavy trend of yesterday French Republic 7½s of 1941 climbed about a point. United States Governments displayed an easy tone, receding from their highs of the previous day.

Price movements in the rails were highly confused, with many of the top grade loans, continuing to hold firmly in the face of rather sharp declines in the more speculative issues. Losses ranging from 2 to 3 points were registered in some of the issues of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, Gulf, Mobile & Northern and Chicago & Northwestern. The best rail performers were certain issues of the Baltimore & Ohio, Canadian Pacific and Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis. Several of the last named, which is controlled by the Pennsylvania Railroad, were particularly strong.

Utility issues were marked by general firmness, and there were indications of further investment absorption of the best lines. In general, the industrial issues of good rating held their ground well, but some wide and erratic price movements featured the less favored issues.

Sales totals, $11,898,000 par value. The average for 60 domestic corporate bonds declined one-tenth of a point.

Chilean Wheat Output May Be Under Estimate

The average annual consumption is 7,249,265 quintals, making necessary imports from Argentina in 1933 unless substitutes are mixed with flour in bread.

Stabilization Signs Found In Industries, Experts Say

New York, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—The weekly mercantile reviews said today that business and trade showed increasing signs of stabilization, and that the economic outlook was becoming somewhat brighter.

"Business has established a line of resistance which is not yielding during the first two weeks of the present month," Bradstreet's asserted. Admitting that retail trade is poor both in value and physical volume, this agency found some compensations in signs of improvement in industrial production.

Reviewing the unfavorable developments of the last month it asserted that "business has taken all these on the chin and refused to yield the residue of gain still left over from the super-seasonal spurt of the late summer and early fall.

"The greatest encouragement for business is to be found in the behavior of that group of statistical items which fall under the head of production. As a whole they have rebounded vigorously from October and show a rise of 2.8 points to 54.6. This is the highest the composite production index has been since February, 1932."

Dun's declared that most of the business news of the week had been of a constructive tenor, adding that "while the major industries continue to recede under seasonal influences, some encouragement is provided by the fact that the downward rate is not so rapid as it was a year ago and that the foundation is more secure and amply reinforced to take advantage of any broader trade movements."

Refund Plan Issued By Baldwin Works

Five-Year Bonds Proposed for $15,000,000, in Notes Due Soon.

New York, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—The Baldwin Locomotive Works today announced a plan for refunding $15,000,000 three-year 5½ per cent notes which mature March 1 next. Under the plan a new issue of $15,000,000 five-year 6 per cent consolidated mortgage bonds would be created. The bonds would carry detachable warrants for the purchase of common stock of the company at $5 a share in the ratio of four shares of common for each $100 principal amount of bonds issued. Preferred and common stockholders of the company would be entitled to subscribe to the new securities in the ratio of $100 face amount of bonds for each eight shares of stock now held, prior to any offering to the general public.

If the warrant privilege is fully exercised, the plan would result in the issuance of 480,000 additional shares of common, equivalent to about 36 per cent of the company's total capital stock then outstanding.

Subscription forms will be mailed to stockholders of record December 27, it was stated, and subscriptions will be received until January 16, 1933. A special stockholders' meeting will be held on January 17 next to ratify the plan.

Hops Unchanged.

Dollar Holds Rise In Paris Market

Pound Is Stronger as Gold Indicates Movement From France.

Paris, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—The dollar stayed at its high mark of 25.625 today for the third consecutive day, with its position at the gold point regarded as assuring the shipment of some gold to America aboard the steamer Europa tomorrow.

The pound sterling was stronger, closing at 84.68, compared to yesterday's quotation of 84.48. The newspaper Journee Industrielle says there is an important movement on the foreign exchange market, with some movements of capital.

"This is not evidently a movement of French funds toward foreign lands, but the repatriation of foreign capital which has been sent to Paris since the fall of the pound and perhaps since the weakness of the dollar at the beginning of 1932," the newspaper says. "The Paris market thus is going through the same pressure which in February was produced in New York at the time the dollar reached the point where it was unprofitable to send gold from America to Europe," the journal added.

CURB PRICES LOWER ON SALES PRESSURE

Market Tone Is Improved as Turnover Declines to 160,000 Shares.

New York, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—The Curb Market was under scattered selling pressure in another quiet session today. The list developed a little better tone toward the close, but final prices were irregularly lower, with oils notably heavy.

The petroleum group was depressed by the slash in Mid-Continent crude prices. Cities Service, an active feature, sagged ¼ to 2⅛. In a smaller volume, Standard of Indiana lost 1⅛ and Gulf ¾.

Utilities stiffened somewhat in the late dealings. Electric Bond & Share held to a narrow range, showing a loss of ½ at one time, then recovering to finish up ⅜. American Gas & Electric declined nearly a point, then rallied to close unchanged. The preferred issues of these companies lost about a point.

Industrials were mixed. Aluminum Co. lost more than a point, then regained a fraction. Deere sagged ½, in sympathy with the heaviness of wheat. The day's total transactions were about 160,000 shares, off some 20,000 from yesterday.

Gillette Razor Is Victor In Patent Case Decision

Hartford, Conn., Dec. 16 (A.P.).—A decision in favor of the Gillette Safety Razor Co. has been handed down by Judge Edwin S. Thomas in United States district court in the company's patent infringement action against the Standard Safety Razor Corporation of Norwalk.

The Gillette Co. charged infringement of a patented improvement on certain safety razor blades which it manufactures. Last week Judge Thomas decided another patent infringement action in favor of the Gillette Co., also brought against the Norwalk corporation.

India Giving Up Gold Saved Since 1870

(Associated Press.)

Gold which has disappeared into India for years emerged from its hiding places to the amount of 11,386,700 fine ounces between January, 1931, and September of the present year. The Department of Commerce said yesterday that between 1870 and 1930 India, long known as the "sink of the precious metal," had imported gold worth $2,800,000,000.

During recent months, however, the depreciation of the British Indian rupee and the English pound sterling caused the price of gold in India to soar and brought the metal out of hiding. The movement was called important by the department because it said from 1922 to 1930 India had absorbed 27 per cent of the world's gold production.

COTTON PRICES GAIN IN MODERATE RALLY

March Closes at 6.01 as General Market Rises 1 to 4 Points.

New York, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—Cotton closed a shade higher today after a session of narrow price movements.

March contracts, after some early irregularity, sold up to 6.11, or 12 points net higher, but eased off to 6.01 at the close under increased offerings. The final tone of the market was easy, although last prices showed net gains of 1 to 4 points.

The opening was 1 point on December, but generally unchanged to 2 points higher. Liverpool cables made rather an indifferent showing, but this appeared to be offset by reports of continued unfavorable weather for the movement in the South.

South's Offerings Light.

Offerings from the South were said to be lighter than yesterday. January sold up to 5.99 and May to 6.22, with active months generally showing net gains of 10 to 16 points, but the market met more cotton in the last half hour which seemed to come partly from brokers with cooperative connections. Closing prices showed reactions of about 9 to 13 points from the best.

While hedging was less in evidence today, there were reports of a continued firm basis. There was some local or Wall street selling on the weakness of wheat and the earlier action of the stock market.

Cable advices from Liverpool to the New York Cotton Exchange Service said that imports of Russian cotton there now totaled 54,000 bales and said spot sales there today were mostly of this growth to the detriment of Texas cotton. Exports today 9,203, making port stocks 4,873,660.

WHEAT VALUES DROP AS WINNIPEG LOSES

Liverpool Joins in Canada Slump; Corn and Oats Record Gains.

Chicago, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—Semidemoralized wheat markets in Winnipeg and Liverpool, with all-time bottom price records reached at both, had decidedly unsettling effects today on grain values here.

Wheat in Winnipeg fell 4 cents a bushel, but Chicago quotations stopped at a 2-cent setback, and then rallied. Scarcity of wheat available for immediate use was apparent in the market here, and did much to counteract the influence of big stop-loss selling that appeared to have swamped traders in Winnipeg.

Keen competition between Canada and Argentina to capture export outlets for surplus wheat supplies was generally regarded as the main disturbing factor, intensified by unlooked for increased official estimates of 1932 wheat production in the United States.

Chicago prices for wheat future deliveries closed nervous ⅝ to ¾ under yesterday's finish; corn, at ⅛ to ⅛ advance; oats, ⅜ off to ¼ up, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 12 cents.

Depreciated Foreign Money.

Depreciated currencies in foreign countries received much notice as one of the reasons assigned for the upsets of wheat values abroad and for the relatively greater steadiness of United States quotations. It was contended by leading authorities here that the Chicago market showed itself to be in the process of asserting its independence of foreign markets. Extreme scantiness of the domestic rural movement of wheat to terminal centers suggested to many traders that prices in the United States had reached a level at which producers refused to part with supplies.

An element of the acute weakness of wheat prices at Winnipeg was reported here as a rush to sell farmer-owned storage tickets, on which money had been advanced at higher prices. Pressure from Canadian banks for liquidation of wheat loans was mentioned in this connection. On the other hand, large export buying of Canadian wheat, about 2,000,000 bushels, appeared to have resulted from today's price breaks, wheat values in Canada being cut to about 3¼ cents a bushel under Argentine prices.

Despite transient effects of wheat weakness, corn and oats developed strength, largely as a result of the fact that Government estimates showed less corn production in 1932 than had been looked for.

Provisions averaged higher with hog values.

YOUNG OUTLINES HIS DEALS WITH INSULLS

Tells Bankruptcy Referee 2 New York Banks Acted Properly in Refusal.

New York, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—Owen D. Young outlined before a referee in bankruptcy today his services as intermediary between New York and Chicago bankers in the several months preceding the collapse of Samuel Insull's empire of power.

The chairman of the General Electric Co. told Referee John Joyce of a visit to Chicago last February 27 to outline the position of two New York banks in refusing to assent to a six months' suspension of demands for further collateral on loans to the Insull utility groups.

The New York banks refusing to join in this agreement are the Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co., and the Irving Trust Co.

Their position, Young said, was that they felt the interests of New York and Chicago banks were not coincident and that they could not rely on Chicago banks for information regarding the Insull affairs.

Losses Appeared Certain.

Young said he believed this attitude was "quite proper."

Lewis Jacobson, attorney for Insull creditors, asked Young if at the Chicago conference there was any discussion of the public's investment in Insull enterprises.

Young said he recalled none.

The conference, he said, dealt mainly with the quick maturities the Insull groups had to meet to avoid foreclosure of the collateral held by banks. It appeared certain at that time, he added, that the public would lose if the banks foreclosed.

Although he held numerous conferences with Melvin Traylor, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, over the trend of Insull affairs, Young said he did not "remember the gist of these talks because there were so many."

Buys $50,000 Stock.

Soon after the Wall street crash of 1929, Young related, Insull visited him and expressed concern because "large interests" were buying into his companies. At this time, there was an Insull investment company—the Insull Utility Investments, Inc.

Insull, Young said, thought it would be wise to form a new company into which he would put all, or a substantial part, of his families' holdings and sell stock.

Insull felt this necessary, Young said, to prevent displacement by the outside investers of the Insull management.

Young said he subscribed to $50,000 in stock in this investment company, doing so because of his personal association with Insull and because Insull wanted him identified with the holding company.

Housekeepers Opposed To Women on Juries

Following the lead taken by the Prince Georges County Community Council last week when it went on record as opposing jury service for women, the Housekeepers' Club of Decatur Heights has adopted a resolution against using women on juries. The stand was taken on the ground that jury service would not aid justice, the woman herself, or the home.

The present Maryland law exempting women from jury duty was declared to be a protection for women rather than a discrimination against them.

FOREIGN NEWS IN BRIEF

Athens, Greece, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—In consequence of the cabinet's decision to pay 30 per cent due to foreign bondholders under the Varvaressos agreement made by the late government, M. Angelopoulos, minister of finance, has resigned. The payment will be made on Monday. Regarding the American 1929 loan, payment of which was due November 10, the cabinet decided in principle also to pay 30 per cent, but first to submit the question to a meeting of all party leaders tomorrow.

Bucharest, Roumania, Dec. 16 (A. P.).—King Carol was confined to his room today with a severe cold. Physicians said his condition was not dangerous, but advised him to remain quiet for a few days.

Bogota, Colombia, Dec. 16 (A.P.). Engineer Meliton Escobar and Pilot Guenther Klotz were killed when their plane, bound for Bogota from Girardot, clashed near Tequendama Falls today. Klotz was compelled by fog to attempt a landing and the plane hit a tree. The bodies were brought here.

St. Malo, France, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—Victor Smith, 19-year-old South African flier, who was forced down here yesterday at the beginning of an attempted flight from London to Cape Town, crashed again today shortly after starting back to London. He landed safely in a parachute but the plane was wrecked.

Budapest, Hungary, Dec. 16 (A.P.). A Christmas tax armistice extending to January 15 began in Hungary today. All executions of tax foreclosures and other actions against delinquent taxpayers must be postponed until that date, thus giving hard-pressed citizens an opportunity to celebrate Christmas without fearing the bailiffs.

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Dec. 16 (A. P.).—The ship Ruth, renamed Rio Branco, was ordered to the upper Amazon today to assist the cruiser Floriano in the border patrol established to protect Brazilian interests during the dispute between Peru and Colombia over possession of Leticia. It was announced the ship will be armed if necessary.

Colon, Canal Zone, Dec. 16 (A.P.). The United States charge d'affaires in Honduras cabled shipping representatives here today that the port of Anapala has been closed because of revolutionary activities and that no consular papers are being issued.

Perpignan, France, Dec. 16 (A.P.). Three passengers and the engineer were killed and fifteen other persons were injured today when an express train from Paris was derailed at Maury, near here. The wreck was caused by washout resulting from floods which have caused considerable damage in this region. Three trainmen were injured, one fatally, when a freight train was derailed at Leucate.

2 Cod Liver Oil Foods Announced

Bread and Milk Are Made With Special Content of Vitamin D.

New York, Dec. 16 (A.P.).—Cod liver oil bread and cod liver oil milk, two new health foods, products of ten years research at Columbia University, were described in detail tonight for the first time at a meeting of the American Institute of Chemists.

The foods are made by adding to bread or milk a few drops of the vital essence of the fish oil, its vitamin D, sometimes called its bottled sunshine. A quart of milk so treated was claimed to be equal to three teaspoons of cod liver oil, but without the least trace of the oil taste. The bread is still "experimental," with two commercial firms testing its baking. But the milk was reported as already having cured 40 babies of rickets, the disease which softens the bones.

The big job with cod liver oil has been to remove the flavor, milk being peculiarly susceptible to bad tastes. Now expert tasters have been unable to recognize the milk containing the fish vitamin.

Lee Perry, of Bristol, Md., was the man released after he testified that he had been ill and had not been over his farm lately. Those who were held for further Federal action were John James, arrested after a raid on a 200-gallon still near his home in Accokeek,, and Samuel Williams, of Pomonkey, arrested after agents located a 500-gallon plant.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

FOR three successive years, as a member of the Lehigh U. basket ball quintet, Robert H. ("Bob") Many topped the 200 mark as a pointgetter to set a record for consistency, with 14.69 points per game as an average. During his three years he tossed 241 field goals and 150 free throws. Many also played varsity football and was a middle-distance runner on the track squad.

So that they would always have "something to fall back on" in case of necessity the Flemings of three generations ago put aside a bale of cotton for such an emergency. Having never needed that particular bale, the Fleming bale has become something of a family heirloom and is now kept in the Laurens County bonded warehouse. It was harvested in 1862 and is now the property of G. Hall Fleming, who inherited it from his grandfather.

Al Davis, United Air Lines pilot, reports that on a clear night, 10,000 feet up in the air, he saw the lights of cities 200 miles away. He was over Eugene, Oreg., and could see Marshfield, 200 miles distant; Portland, 125 miles away, and Astoria, 200 miles away.

ROCKEFELLER CITY.

ROCKEFELLER CENTER, New York, otherwise the Loudspeaker Louvre, is nearing completion. The $250,000,000 movement to put all the marketable noises of the entertainment world under one tent is in its final strides, and the result is something that makes the Hanging Gardens of Babylon look like nature in the raw.

* * * *

Going through it in wide-eyed astonishment you find it is a combination of Bagdad, the Palace of Versailles, Coney Island, Ivar Kreuger's penthouse, the French Riviera, the bridal suite on the latest Atlantic liner, the Metropolitan Museum of Art and a Hollywood director's dream.

* * * *

One look at the City of Dreadful Amplifiers would make King Solomon scrap his temples and admit he had been living in a roadside tourists' camp. It blinds the eye, staggers the imagination and makes every radio announcer and moving picture house usher believe in two Santa Clauses.

* * * *

Marking the spot where 50 speakeasies died, Loudspeaker City rises like a spendthrift's dream to dwarf the buildings all about it and to make passers-by wonder how the radio entertainers will ever get from mike to mike without the best Alpine guides that the cigarette companies can buy.

* * * *

There are so many features of grandeur that they cannot be listed in one newspaper, but it is reported that there will be six rooms and bath for every master of ceremonies, a penthouse for all sister acts and an outdoor Roman pool for Amos 'n' Andy.

* * * *

Continuity writers will have a palace of their own and Roxy, according to unconfirmed reports, will live in a hall of mirrors on the premises and be borne to and from his superhippodrome theaters by Ethiopians waving palms that have never been waved in this country before.

* * * *

* * * *

It will have the very latest conveniences, including pink-tiled swooning rooms for actors when they hear that some merchant prince is willing to pay them $5,000 for going over their old vaudeville routine in front of a microphone once a week.

* * * *

Two of the largest theaters in the world are ready for an opening Christmas week. One, the Radio City Music Hall, will hold 3,000 people. The other, Roxy's Picture Theater, will seat 3,700. In no other two theaters in the world can so many people sleep at one time.

* * * *

There will be seat phones for people who don't hear well and ear plugs for those who do.

* * * *

And all about the great center there will be gardens, malls, grottoes, pools, fountains, statues and paintings of fauns chasing nymphs from pillar to post and from post to microphone. Two hundred and fifty million dollars, eh? Well, it's worth it, even if you don't like the advertising talks.

CHILD TRAINING.

The United States imported 416,000 canary birds last year. But somehow even that wasn't enough to stop the depression.

U. S. WORKERS CHEER KVALE AS HE URGES REUNION WITH A. F. L.

National Federation Scores Salary Slashes at Mass Meeting.

Applause greeted the statement of Representative Paul Kvale, of Minnesota, last night, when he told 1,000 members of the National Federation of Federal Employes that they should renew the bond with the American Federation of Labor, which they severed a year ago.

The occasion of the young representative's declaration was a mass meeting in protest of further reduction of Government wages, held at the Raleigh Hotel.

Hopes for Reaffiliation.

"I deplore the separation of your group from the American Federation of Labor," he said, and added that he hoped the connection would be restored.

The separation of the group from the national labor organization sundered its ranks and caused the formation of a rival organization called the American Federation of Government Employes, which is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Kvale shared the speaking rostrum with Representatives William P. Connery, jr., of Massachusetts, and W. P. Lambertson, of Kansas.

All three pledged their support against the trimming of Federal salaries.

Lambertson said that he might vote for a wage cut, but only when he saw rents reduced, the price of bread as low as the price of wheat, when limousines were not fitted to Cabinet officers' stovepipe hats, and when steamship companies did not receive $400,000 for carrying 100 pounds of mail.

Economy at this time is out of place, Connery declared. "The time has come to cut out economy," he said, and added that perhaps a $5,000,000,000 prosperity loan would start things going.

Byrd's $10,000 Pay Recalled.

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, retired, head of the Economy League, which is carrying the cry for salary cuts, was described as receiving nearly $10,000 a year from the Government as retired pay and compensation for an ankle injury "in an Annapolis gymnasium."

Luther C. Steward, president of the federation, paid tribute to the Washington press for its friendly and sympathetic attitude. J. W. Ginder, president of the District of Columbia, presided.

Circulars were distributed proposing that immediately "a committee of both unions and unorganized employes be set up to call a huge mass meeting of all Government employes in protest against the proposed pay cut and furlough system."

Reduction of Fines Given 16 Policemen

Penalized Group Benefits $5 Each by Yule Custom.

The District Commissioners played Santa Claus to the Metropolitan Police Department by remitting part of the fines of sixteen policemen, penalized by the Police Trial Board. The action was just an old Yule custom.

The sum of $5 was cut from the fines of each of the following: J. E. Armstrong, J. B. Belt, J. D. Bennett, Frank Boneslawsky, Wade H. Cox, William P. Doran, D. A. Curley, F. R. Gue, W. A. Johnson, W. J. King, William McEwen, C. R. Roberts, W. A. Shepherd, E. E. Thompson, Richard Willey and L. I. Tudge.

It is the hope of the Commissioners, the order stated, that "the officers concerned would, by conduct and attention to duty, show their appreciation of this action."

Irish Debaters Prophesy Capitalistic Plan Doom

Irish debaters, taking the role of prophets of doom for the capitalistic system, debated with George Washington University speakers last night on the question "Resolved, that capitalism has broken down."

James J. Auchmuty and Garret E. Gill, of Trinity College, Dublin University, took the stand that capitalism had seen its last days, and Seymour Mintz, and Arthur Murphy upheld the system. Dean William Cabell Van Vleck of the local university law school presided. No decision was rendered.

Man Who Gave Beveridge Political Start Is 94 Today

W. H. H. Smith Has Voted for 19 Presidents and Lives Here.

WILLIAM HENRY HARRISON SMITH

The man who selected Albert J. Beveridge as Indiana's first paid political orator today observes his 94th birthday in the National Capital.

Ninety-four today, William Henry Harrison Smith, of 1418 Perry place northwest, has voted for 19 Presidents. At the last election he journeyed by motorcar with other Hoosiers to Indianapolis to lay his ballot on the line for the Republican ticket for the nineteenth time.

Mr. Smith, who recalls he joined the Union Army 12 hours after President Lincoln's call to arms, recently entered Mount Alto Veterans' Hospital for an operation for removal of a cataract on his right eye.

The operation was a complete success, and, his sight restored, Mr. Smith got home yesterday in time to celebrate his birthday today. He was loud in his praise of the care given him at the veterans' institution.

Mr. Smith's life has been closely aligned with the Nation's political history. As soldier, newspaperman and Government official he has "seen a lot."

Informed of Mr. Smith's connection with Indiana politics in the 80's, the reporter asked:

"Why you must have come into close contact with Senator Beveridge?"

"Did I?" thundered Mr. Smith. "Why, by gad, sir, I helped to make him."

Mr. Smith related how Senator Beveridge attained some notoriety as a youthful orator at Asbury College, now Depauw University. Upon his graduation, Mr. Smith, head of the Republican State speakers' bureau, made young Beveridge a $12-a-week orator.

Mr. Smith's matrimonial partner of 42 years will be with him to celebrate his birthday, as will his son, William Wolfe Smith, former general counsel of the Veterans' Administration.

MENTAL TEST SET FOR HOUSE GUNMAN

10-Day Study at Gallinger Decided on at Hearing of Kemmerer.

Gallinger Hospital mental experts will be called upon to make a 10-day examination of Marlin R. M. Kemmerer, 25, of Allentown, Pa., who startled the House of Representatives Tuesday when he brandished a gun from a vantage point in the gallery.

The decision to have an examination made was reached by Assistant United States Attorney Michael F. Keogh in Police Court yesterday with two of Kemmerer's brothers, Lee A. and Ernest M. Kemmerer, and Representative Norton L. Lichtenwalner, of Allentown, and Representative Melvin J. Maas of Minnesota, who disarmed the boy.

Nothing in Marlin's conduct prior to the House incident was cited by the brothers as indicative of any mental disturbance, but they asked for an examination because of the unusualness of his conduct Tuesday.

Previous to being sent to the hospital, Kemmerer was arraigned before Judge Gus A. Schuldt on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon. He waived a hearing, pleaded not guilty and his bond was set at $2,500. The complaining witness in the charge is E. J. Roche, president of the Allied Printing Trades Council, who sat near Kemmerer when he flashed his gun, and who was menaced by Kemmerer when he attempted to placate him.

Capper's Rent Probers Will Meet This Morning

Chairman Arthur Capper, of the Senate District Committee, will call his rent investigation subcommittee together at 10:30 o'clock this morning to hear excerpts from the report of Oscar H. Brinkman, the committee's rent investigator.

The Senate yesterday voted to extend the deadline for a report to the Senate on the committee's findings, from December 15 to January 10. Indications are that the subcommittee's report will be filed directly with the Senate. Under the resolution, the subcommittee is not required first to lay its findings before the full District committee.

Trophy Awarded Moebs At Yacht Club Banquet

The Washington Model Yacht Club gave its annual banquet last night at Tilden Gardens, marking the end of the autumn racing season. The club is a branch of the International Model Yacht Racing Association.

Skipper A. E. Moebs was awarded the club trophy as the season's winning member. His boat, the Noel, won the deciding race by a considerable margin. A number of new boats are planned for construction during the winter by members.

CITY WILL ACQUIRE PLOTS FOR CENTER

Condemnation Step Ordered for Last Four Pieces in Huge Project.

Condemnation proceedings were ordered instituted yesterday by the District Commissioners to acquire the four remaining pieces of property in the municipal center area that have not been obtained by the city government.

With these acquired, the District government will be ready to start construction of the huge development as soon as money is available. This, however, may be several years, no money being in sight for at least another two years.

The properties to be condemned are: The Antoinette Carry property, 483 C street, assessed value of $17,487; the Hanty Schaffert estate, 330 John Marshall place, assessed at $12,596; 467-469 Pennsylvania avenue, assessed at $29,718; and the May Hardware Co., property, 469-477 C street, assessed at $90,950.

Purchase of Joseph L. Tepper's property at 468 Louisiana avenue, also in the municipal center area, for $38,750 was also authorized by the commissioners.

OLD FIRE STATION 'C' MOVES TO NEW SITE

Venerable Bell Recalls Days of Restive Steeds Ready for Race to Blazes.

The shades of firefighters of other years, with their restive steeds, must have stood at attention yesterday as the old bell in the firehouse, Fourteenth street and Ohio avenue, rang the signal for abandonment of quarters to make way for progress in the Government building program.

The old red-brick quarters resounded with the clanging of the old bell that had drawn the firehorses from their stalls in days gone by. Yesterday, it signalized a roaring of motors, the shriek of sirens, and Fire Station "C" was sacrificed on the altar of progress.

The full complement of engines left their quarters for a new home on Thirteenth street, between K and L streets. The engines were out of service only the time that it took the engines to run from the old quarters to the new.

The building was erected in 1890 and housed Company "C." The companies were known by letters in those days. At the time of its abandonment it housed a half-dozen fire-fighting units, including engines, a truck and a water tower.

DR. BALLOU REGRETS BUDGET CUT WHICH KILLED NEW SCHOOL

Superintendent Asserts All Present Buildings Are Badly Crowded.

Elimination of an initial appropriation for a new senior high school for Washington was the most severe blow delivered the school system in the pruning of the budget now before Congress, Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of District schools, declared last night at a joint meeting of school officials and citizens.

Reviewing the 1934 budget with the citizens, Dr. Ballou pointed out that an appropriation of $30,000 had been asked for the drawing of plans and purchase of land for a new senior high school in Manor Park. This item was eliminated by the District Commissioners and was not restored by the Bureau of the Budget, it was shown.

Dr. Ballou said that it is of extreme importance that a new senior high school be built to relieve the constant threat of congestion in senior high schools. He observed that this threatened congestion is now more acute than ever before because a great many high school graduates are remaining in school for post-graduate courses as a result of unemployment and lack of funds to enter college; also because of the larger influx of pupils from elementary and junior high schools.

High Schools Jammed.

The superintendent served notice that two or more senior high schools will be forced onto a double schedule unless relief is given or enrollment diminishes. The high schools, he said, will be seriously crowded after February 1, because of new pupils from the lower schools. Western, now with an enrollment of 1,700 pupils, will have to be placed on a stagger system if the enrollment increases to more than 1,800, he warned.

The superintendent reviewed in detail the reductions made in the budget. The Board of Education, he showed, asked for an appropriation of $13,899,884. This was cut by the District Commissioners to $12,713,775 and by the Bureau of the Budget to $10,679,620. The 1933 budget now in operation, amounted to $12,162,730.

Use of Jobless Urged.

The school board and officials are unable to act toward restoration of the lost items, Dr. Ballou said, and the only recourse left to citizens, he added, is to solicit members of Congress.

J. G. Yaden, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, urged that unemployed be given work repairing school buildings and grounds. Superintendent Ballou said he fully approved of the idea. Edward R. Williams offered a resolution on behalf of the citizens, petitioning Congress to appropriate an adequate employment relief fund for this purpose. Harry O. Hine, secretary of the board, was asked to send this resolution to Congress, not as an official of the school board, but on behalf of the citizens.

TRAFFIC TOLL TO DATE.

Of all the sources of dangerous accidents the drunken driver is the worst. The motorist who gets behind the wheel of a car under the influence of alcohol is not only taking his own life in his hands, but is a decided menace to all others, pedestrians as well, and if caught does and should get the full penalty of the law.

In the eyes of the police, the driver who is even slightly under the influence of liquor is a menace.

In some cases a driver may have had only one drink, but just the fact that he has tasted an intoxicating beverage renders him liable to the full penalty of the law if he becomes involved in an accident and the accident is attributable to him.

The number of injured persons yesterday went up 13. The figures are:

	1931	1932
Deaths	72	116
Injuries	3,360	3,627
Accidents	7,700	7,384

"Be Careful!"

THREE-YEAR TERM METED SCHREINER

Head of Closed Brightwood Bank Had Made Guilty Plea in Embezzling.

Raymond L. Schreiner, former president of the closed Bank of Brightwood, was given a three-year sentence yesterday by Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue in District Supreme Court. He will be eligible for parole in six months.

Pleading guilty two months ago to a charge of embezzling approximately $15,000 of the funds of the bank, Schreiner, through his attorneys, Harvey L. Cobb and Daniel S. Ring, threw himself on the mercy of the court. He produced two letters written by depositors in the bank asking that he be placed on probation. Both depositors had more than $9,000 in the institution.

A petition bearing the signatures of 300 persons who lost money when the bank was closed, was presented to Justice O'Donoghue. The tenor of this petition was that Schreiner should be denied probation.

In asking for leniency for Schreiner, Mr. Cobb said that all his mistakes had been mistakes of judgment and that no criminality was shown in any of them. It was stated by the attorney that some $68,000 was the amount of shortage existing in the bank's accounts. A portion of this is covered by Schreiner's bond.

Schreiner, now only 34 years old, is married and has two children. He began working in the bank at the age of 24, and soon worked his way up to the presidency of the institution, which was closed early in the summer.

District Subcommittee Members Are Selected

Chairman Arthur Capper, of the Senate District committee yesterday named Senator Warren R. Austin (Republican), Vermont, chairman of the committee's judiciary subcommittee, to succeed the late Senator Wesley L. Jones.

Senator James J. Davis (Republican), Pennsylvania, a new member of the committee, was assigned to the education and labor, the public safety and the traffic subcommittees. Senator Elijah S. Grammer (Republican), of Washington, who also is new on the committee, was named to the public utilities, parks and highways and traffic subcommittees.

REGULAR AIRLINERS TO SPAN ATLANTIC, SAYS MISS EARHART

Special Gold Medal Winner Recounts Experiences on Ocean Hop.

Regular transatlantic airliners will be spanning the Atlantic Ocean not many years hence, Miss Amelia Earhart, famous transatlantic solo flier, told members of the National Geographic Society at the Washington Auditorium last night.

Timed Arrival by Daylight.

Taking the air at Teterboro, N. J., airport, she flew to Harbor Grace, where her trim red and gold plane was refueled. It was nearly dark when she left Newfoundland and winged eastward. She said she chose the afternoon start so that she would arrive on the other side of the Atlantic in daylight.

A few hours after leaving Harbor Grace, a failing altimeter was her first disturbance, she said. Later she found her exhaust pipe was overheating, which was one of the principal reasons for landing in an isolated farm near Londonderry, Ireland. Although the New York Weather Bureau reported favorable weather conditions, several times during the flight she was uneasy because ice, one of the most feared flying hazards, collected on her plane.

Fishing Boat Saluted Her.

The most exciting part of the trip, she said, was the sighting of a small fishing boat off the coast of Ireland. She circled it several times and was saluted. The last two hours of the flight, she imagined she saw islands and small lakes which she later found were mere cloud shadows on the ocean. Anxious to reach land as soon as possible, due to the overheating exhaust pipe, she was about to follow two small fishing boats which she thought would take to land, but on second thought, she kept on her old course.

Motion pictures illustrating Miss Earhart's remarks showed her reception in London by Ambassador Mellon and the laying of a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Paris. She also visited Rome before returning to New York where the usual hero welcome was accorded her.

Commission Relief Testimony Slated

City Heads Will Testify on Charity Request of $1,250,000.

The District Commissioners, the chairman of the Board of Public Welfare and the public welfare director will be called before the House appropriations subcommittee on deficiences Monday or Tuesday to testify on the Commissioners' request for $1,250,000 to care for the District's needy the balance of this fiscal year.

Although hearings will open before Representative Joseph W. Byrns' subcommittee Monday morning, it is probable the local relief item will not come up until the following day. Various departmental deficiency estimates, totaling $42,570,000, are awaiting subcommittee action.

An appropriation of $1,500,000 for prevention of hunger and suffering due to unemployment in the District of Columbia was urged yesterday in a resolution adopted by the executive committee of the Washington Chamber of Commerce.

A candlelight service will be held at the Metropolitan A. M. E. Church at 4:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.
